Subject: Clarity Needed

Hi Toni,
It's my understanding from Reshma that she is not the official acting director. However, it appears that she is making executive-level decisions. Since Barbara is no longer ED and we are pressed for space, I would like to hold 2 meetings in Barbara's former office, one of which should be occurring as we speak. However, the door to Shaw's office is kept locked unless Barbara is here working and meeting with Reshma and others, which thus far has been several times a week. Reshma has a copy of the key but says she does not feel comfortable with staff utilizing the office because of confidential documents that are kept there. She indicated that she is the proxy interim director until the formal is identified.

I realize that this is yet another niggling issue in the IVPA saga but I really do need to know what is going on, who has actual authority and what is the protocol for someone who is no longer employed that continues to utilize an office. The team and I are trying to conduct business but are being prevented within that space because Reshma wants to maintain Shaw's space. We will attempt to find another space to meet but your advise would be appreciated. Please advise.

Thanks!
Lorri
