The question is the level. There are no positions open at the level her experience would demand. So the question is would she consider an entry level position. Don't want to put our friend in a difficult position

We only have E03 positions open in Communications and an E04 position open in Marketing. This person was previously at a director position and I presume that she is looking for something around that level. Please advise.

Would you consider interviewing this person to fit in your communication department?

Mike
