1 To the Electors of the State of Illinois:

The purpose of a state constitution is to establish a structure for government and laws. There are three ways to change to the Illinois Constitution: constitutional convention may propose changes to any part; (2) the General Assembly may propose changes to any part; or (3) a petition initiative may propose amendments limited structural and procedural subjects contained in the Legislative Article. The people of Illinois must approve any changes to the Constitution before they become effective.

11 EXPLANATION

- The Constitution sets forth substantial rights for crime victims. The proposed amendment expands certain current rights:
- 1) Victims are currently entitled to fairness and respect throughout the criminal justice process. The amendment would also provide that they shall be protected from harassment, intimidation and abuse.
 - 2) Victims can make a statement to the court when a criminal defendant is sentenced to punishment. The amendment would allow a victim to be heard at any proceeding that involves the victim's rights, and any proceeding involving a

- 1 plea agreement, release of the defendant or convicted
- 2 individual, or sentencing.
- 3 3) Victims may obtain information about conviction,
- 4 sentencing, imprisonment or release. The amendment would
- 5 require prosecutors and the court to notify victims of those
- 6 events before they happen.
- 7 The amendment would also grant additional rights to crime
- 8 victims:
- 9 1) A victim would have a right to formal notice and a
- 10 hearing before the court rules on any request for access to
- 11 privileged or confidential information.
- 12 2) A victim would have the right to have the judge consider
- 13 the victim's safety and the safety of his or her family before
- deciding whether to release a criminal defendant, setting the
- amount of bail to be paid before release, or setting conditions
- of release after arrest or conviction.
- 17 3) The victim would have the right to assert his or her
- 18 rights in any court with jurisdiction over the criminal case,
- 19 but would not have the same rights as the prosecutor or the
- 20 criminal defendant and the court could not appoint an attorney
- 21 for the victim at taxpayer expense.
- The proposed amendment would not alter the powers, duties
- or responsibilities of the prosecutor. Further, a criminal
- 24 defendant would not be able to challenge his or her conviction on the basis of a failure to follow these provisions.

Arguments in Favor of the Proposed Amendment

Crime victims deserve stronger protections under the Constitution than are currently provided. Victims should not have to fear intimidation and harassment when they participate in the criminal justice process. Judges must consider a victim's safety when setting bail, deciding whether a criminal defendant should be released during his or her trial, or sentencing a convicted defendant.

Further, victims should also be allowed to object when a defendant or a defendant's attorney attempts to obtain confidential or private information, like mental health records or personal journals. A judge would still be able to require a victim to turn those records or communications over to the court, but the amendment would allow the victim to object if he or she feels that a privacy violation would result.

A constitutional amendment is necessary because judges need to be certain what rights a victim has before the court. This amendment would provide that judges and prosecutors have a constitutional duty to keep the victim informed of developments

- 1 in the case, and to allow the victim to participate when
- 2 appropriate.

Arguments Against the Proposed Amendment

The proposed amendment would disrupt the criminal justice process and impede the work of prosecutors. Our criminal justice system tasks prosecutors, not victims, with punishing criminals and restoring justice after a crime is committed. Victims and their attorneys may attempt to take over that important role, second-guessing prosecutors and objecting to decisions made by judges.

Victims already have a right to be present and informed during the process, and Illinois already provides extensive rights to crime victims under the Rights of Crime Victims and Witnesses Act.

The proposed amendment threatens the rights of criminal defendants, both the guilty and the innocent. Our system gives criminal defendants the right to access information, documents and records that could prove their innocence; however, the amendment would give a victim the opportunity to prevent disclosure of certain materials or documents that might prove the defendant's innocence.
