Acknowledgments

In completing the Quadrennial Review, the Illinois Child Support Advisory Committee (Committee), through public outreach, received a broad range of comments from child support stakeholders including parents/guardians, IV-D attorneys, family law private practitioners, the judiciary, and other child support professionals. The Committee thanks everyone who graciously shared their opinions and experiences. The Committee also gratefully acknowledges the invaluable assistance provided by:

- Dr. Jane C. Venohr, Senior Researcher, Center for Policy Research, for her presentation to the Committee of economic data on the costs of raising children. Dr. Venohr compiled the attached Review of the Illinois Child Support Guidelines (Appendix A) to help the Committee understand technical, economic data, as well as new child support concepts.
- Bryan Tribble, Administrator of the Division of Child Support Services, for his assistance to the Committee in identifying target areas for the Committee's oversite and review and developing and actively promoting opportunities for the public to offer its input concerning the current child support guidelines. Mr. Tribble also led a dedicated team of child support staff who coordinated and participated in virtual town hall meetings touching all corners of the State.
- Richard W. Zuckerman, Chair of the Child Support Advisory Committee, for his leadership as Chair of the Committee since January 1, 2018. For many years, Mr. Zuckerman has devoted his efforts to developing better child support systems, and he was instrumental in facilitating Illinois' transition to an income shares child support model in 2017.
- Margaret A. Bennett, Member of the Child Support Advisory Committee, for her research and review of other states' child support laws, all of which contributed to the drafting of this report. Ms. Bennett, a former Chair, has been an active member of the Committee since 2010.
- Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services, Division of Child Support Services, for its child support expertise and commitment to all child support stakeholders.
- Illinois State Bar Association, Family Law Section Council, for sharing its data and PowerPoint presentation, Examining the Income Shares "Cliff Effect" (Appendix G).

Section I: Introduction and Committee Goals

The Child Support Advisory Committee.¹ is charged with periodic review of the State's child support guidelines as required by the federal Family Support Act of 1988.² This report presents the findings of that guidelines review and recommendations for revision thereto by the 2022 Illinois Child Support Advisory Committee (hereafter, "Committee"). In completing this report, the Committee was guided by the mandates found in 42 USC § 667 and 45 C.F.R. § 302.56, both of which require states to review and, if appropriate, revise their child support guidelines at least once every four years to ensure their application results in appropriate child support amounts.

45 C.F.R. § 302.56 requires states establish one set of child support guidelines applicable to all child support cases.<sup>3</sup> On July 1, 2017, Illinois transitioned from a child support formula based on a percentage of the support obligor's income to an income shares model that considers both parents' incomes.<sup>4</sup> As stated in 750 ILCS 5/505, the purposes of the current child support guidelines are:

- (1) to establish as State policy an adequate standard of support for a child, subject to the ability of parents to pay;
- (2) to make child support obligations more equitable by ensuring more consistent treatment of parents in similar circumstances;
- (3) to improve the efficiency of the court process by promoting settlements and giving courts and the parties guidance in establishing levels of child support;
- (4) to calculate child support based upon the parents' combined net income estimated to have been allocated for the support of the child if the parents and child were living in an intact household;
- (5) to adjust child support based upon the needs of the child; and
- (6) to allocate the amount of child support to be paid by each parent based upon a parent's net income and the child's physical care arrangements.<sup>5</sup>

Collectively, the purpose of Illinois' guidelines is to establish fair and equitable child support obligations based on individual familial circumstances.

The Committee began its guidelines review in March of 2019 in anticipation of a December 31, 2021, deadline. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, however, the federal Office of Child Support Enforcement extended the deadline to December 31, 2022. The Committee identified its guiding principles for the review as follows:

- To achieve balance in the child support guidelines where both parents are contributing to the care of their children.
- To be thoughtful and strategic regarding the changes made during the quadrennial review as a means of controlling the variables and to allow further assessment of the effectiveness of the guidelines.
- To establish guidelines that, as consistently as possible, result in fair and equitable child support obligations based on discernable facts, thereby preventing uncollectible debt from accruing and minimizing the negative impact on support payors and their families.
- To consider the impact of the guidelines on the recipient of support.
- To meet the needs of children for whom child support is ordered.
- To explore the nexus between child support and family dynamics, and to develop methodologies within the child support system to strengthen families.

With these guiding principles in mind, the Committee set the scope of its review by identifying the following goals as potentially being the most impactful on the guidelines and whether they are applied fairly and equitably to Illinois families:

- Retaining the existing child support guidelines model, which uses Betson-Rothbarth 4 (BR4), or adopting Betson-Rothbarth 5 (BR5) or another model for determining child rearing expenditures;
- Automatically terminating a court or administratively ordered child support obligation upon a support obligor's incarceration of 180 days or more and developing an implementation process that balances the interests of both the support obligor and the support obligee;
- Reviewing the current self-sufficiency reserve of 75% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines for a single person;
- Evaluating the appropriateness of the current minimum support order of $40 per month per child, not to exceed a total of $120 per month for all children of a support obligor whose income is at or less than 75% of the federal poverty guidelines;
- Evaluating adjustments to the guidelines due to changes in the cost of living and inflation, as well as determining if the child support guidelines schedule should be capped at less than $30,000 per month of combined income, based on available child rearing expense data, with options for determining child support when the combined income is in excess of the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation;

- Reviewing the more expansive federal factors for imputation of income and determining whether they should be incorporated into Illinois' statute on imputation of income;
- Reviewing the current shared physical care child support formula along with other options to eliminate the "cliff effect";
- Reviewing the current multi-family adjustment to determine if it meets the needs of families and treats all children fairly;
- Reviewing the health insurance provisions in 750 ILCS 5/505.2 relative to the requirements of 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(4). NOTE: This issue was resolved with the passage of P.A. 102-87, which became effective on January 1, 2022;
- Reviewing child support orders containing deviations from the guidelines and child support orders set by default, as required by federal rule.

For purposes of this review, terms used in this report are defined as follows:

- IV-D Attorneys: Attorneys from the Office of the Attorney General and various State's Attorney's offices who represent the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (hereafter, "HFS") in judicial child support proceedings
- Majority time Parent: The parent or caretaker who has a court order for a majority of parenting time with the child
- Non-majority time Parent/noncustodial parent: The parent who has a court order for less than the majority of parenting time with the child
- Stakeholders: Parents/guardians, IV-D attorneys, family law private practitioners, the judiciary, and other child support professionals
- Support Obligee/Parent receiving support: The parent or caretaker to whom child support is owed
- Support Obligor/Payor or Parent paying support: The parent who is responsible for paying child support

Section II - Guidelines Review

On July 1, 2017, Illinois transitioned from a child support formula based on a percentage of the support obligor's income to an income shares model that considers both parents' incomes. The income shares statute includes provisions for a self-support reserve, minimum dollar orders for support payors with income at or less than 75% of the federal poverty level, zero dollar orders for support payors who are incarcerated or receive only means-tested assistance, a shared physical care formula for parents each having 146 or more overnights per year with their child, a split custody formula when each parent has majority parenting time with at least one child, and a multi-family adjustment for parents who have a child from another relationship. Cost sharing by parents for child care, school, extracurricular, health insurance, and out-of-pocket health care expenses also is addressed in the income shares statute.

This review is the Committee's first review after Illinois' transition to income shares. In keeping with the Committee's guiding principles, the Committee's review seeks to determine if the income shares guidelines are positively serving the families of Illinois and whether they should be refined to increase fair and equitable outcomes and further strengthen families. The Committee's review was completed in accordance with federal requirements. 45 C.F.R. § 302.56(h) instructs that a state's guidelines review must:

- (1) Consider economic data on the cost of raising children, labor market data (such as unemployment rates, employment rates, hours worked, and earnings) by occupation and skill-level for the State and local job markets, the impact of guidelines policies and amounts on custodial and noncustodial parents who have family incomes below 200 percent of the Federal poverty level, and factors that influence employment rates among noncustodial parents and compliance with child support orders;
- (2) Analyze case data, gathered through sampling or other methods, on the application of and deviations from the child support guidelines, as well as the rates of default and imputed child support orders and orders determined using the low-income adjustment required under . . . this section. The analysis must also include a comparison of payments on child support orders by case characteristics, including whether the order was entered by default, based on imputed income, or determined using the low-income adjustment . . . . The analysis of the data must be used in the State's review of the child support guidelines to ensure that deviations from the guidelines are limited and guideline amounts are appropriate based on criteria established by the State . . . ; and

(3) Provide a meaningful opportunity for public input, including input from low-income custodial and noncustodial parents and their representatives. The State must also obtain the views and advice of the State child support agency funded under title IV-D of the Act.

For the 2022 review, HFS retained Dr. Jane C. Venohr from the Center for Policy Research as a consultant for purposes of aiding the Committee in analyzing the economic, labor market, and case data requirements (Appendix A). Dr. Venohr was involved in the State's 2017 transition to income shares, and she continues to prepare the annual gross-to-net income tables that are part of the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation. Public input was collected largely through a series of virtual townhall-style meetings held statewide with child support stakeholders.

A. Economic and Labor Market Data

Federal regulation requires the Committee review and consider economic data on the cost of raising children. This report uses current data to create an updated Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation. The update also considers recent inflation. Price levels have increased 18.9% since the existing schedule was developed and October 2022, which is the most recent data available when this report was written.

The updated schedule produces increases that vary with income and the number of children. The increases become larger with more income. At combined incomes below $7,500 net per month, the average increase is 8 to 10% depending on the number of children. For combined income between $7,500 to $15,000 net per month, the average increase is 6 to 11%. For combined incomes above $15,000 net per month, the average increase is 17 to 22%. The percentage increase is higher for one child and less for more children.

Federal regulation also requires the analysis of labor market data. The intent is to gather information about the employability of low-skilled workers within a state to help inform income imputation provisions and the low-income adjustment. In most states, parents with IV-D child support cases have barriers to employment and earnings, including limited job skills, low educational attainment, history of incarceration, and other barriers. Although Illinois data are not available, national data find that 35% of parents not living with at least one of their children have incomes below 200% of the federal poverty level and are less likely to work full-time year round.

As reflected in Appendix A, labor market data available as of May 2022 reveal Illinois had a statewide unemployment rate of 4.6%, which was higher than the national rate of 3.6%. Locally, unemployment rates ranged from a low of 2.5% in Brown County to a high of 8.5% in Boone and Pulaski Counties. On average, Illinois workers work 34.6 hours per week. For retail employees, the average drops to 30.1

hours per week, and for leisure and hospitality, the number drops even further to 25.9 hours per week. Illinois' minimum wage is $12.00 per hour in 2022 and will increase to $13.00 per hour on January 1, 2023. Notwithstanding Illinois' minimum wage, many high demand non-managerial/non-technical occupations in Illinois offer median wages ranging from $14.36 per hour (retail sales) to $30.63 per hour (human resources specialists). Other high demand occupations falling within this hourly wage range include truck drivers, sales and customer service representatives, laborers, nursing assistants, food service workers, and secretaries/administrative assistants (non-legal, medical and executive). What is clear from the labor market data relied on during this review is that Illinois workers, on average, do not see 40-hour work weeks.

B. Case File Data

The Committee also analyzed case file data in accordance with the applicable federal regulation. Specifically, the Committee analyzed guidelines deviations; rates of income imputation, default, and application of the low-income adjustment; and child support payments. The federal objective, as established by a 2016 rule change, is for states to use the data to inform guidelines recommendations that limit deviations, income imputation, and defaults, as well as set appropriate low-income adjustments. Establishing support orders that consider the specific circumstances of support obligors who have limited ability to pay is more likely to result in those orders being timely paid in full.

The previous case file data analysis of Illinois support orders was from 2009. For this review, the Division of Child Support Services (hereafter, "CSS") pulled from its automated system and provided to the Committee and Dr. Venohr a data extract consisting of support orders entered in 2020. As reflected in Appendix A, the analysis of the case file data revealed a deviation rate of 3%. This rate was unchanged from the 2009 Illinois analysis and less than the deviation rates in comparable states. The majority of Illinois deviations were downward and due to the financial resources and needs of the support obligor.

Illinois' default rate for 2020 orders was 9%. This rate is well below comparable states that saw default rates from 34-40%. Of the default orders entered in Illinois, only 50% had payments made compared to 70% of non-default orders that had payments made. The percentage of current support due that was actually paid was 33% for default orders and 60% for non-default orders. These rates of compliance suggest orders entered as a result of a support obligor's participation in the process result in increased payments, which lead to more positive outcomes for the family.

Because CSS's automated system does not track either income imputation or application of the low-income adjustment, proxies were developed. The rate of income imputation in Illinois was estimated by identifying the percentage of analyzed orders set at amounts equivalent to the guidelines amount for minimum-wage earners. Other states also use this methodology because income imputation at full-time minimum wage is common across the nation. This method yielded an estimated income imputation rate in Illinois of 8%, which falls on the lower end compared to comparable states. Sixty-four percent of orders with estimated imputed income saw some payments, while 68% of orders without imputed income (i.e., based on actual income) saw payments. Further, the percentage of current support due that was actually paid was 45% for orders based on imputed income compared to 58% for orders not based on imputed income.

Finally, the minimum order ($40 per month per child) was used as a proxy for application of the low-income adjustment. Ten percent of analyzed orders were set at the minimum order. This, however, likely understates the application of the low-income adjustment because the low-income adjustment could also result in an order above the minimum amount. Generally, minimum orders see poorer payments than all analyzed orders. For example, only 46% of minimum orders had any payments while 71% of orders not set at the minimum amount had payments. This likely reflects the fact support obligors with minimum orders have income at or less than the federal poverty level.

C. Public Input

As part of its effort to become more family centric, CSS has prioritized listening more closely to parental concerns and using technology to assist parents in having a more positive child support experience. For example, during the transition to income shares, HFS created and published on its website a child support estimator that parents may easily access with their electronic devices, including mobile phones. HFS has recorded over 1,000,000 "hits" to the estimator since July 1, 2017 (Appendix F). The online estimator allows parents to easily estimate child support payments and determine the allocation between them of child care expenses and health insurance costs. Making this tool available to the public not only educates parents about how child support is calculated in Illinois but also offers parents the opportunity to amicably resolve their child support issues without costly litigation.

Given the Committee's responsibility under the federal regulation to provide meaningful opportunity for public input about the guidelines, the Committee, in keeping with both CSS's family centric goals and the Committee's guiding principles for this review, partnered with CSS to develop a series of innovative virtual townhall-style meetings held via WebEx. Holding these meetings virtually was deemed to be the most efficient way to reach as many members of the public as possible with minimum imposition on them.

Participants were able to "attend" by connecting via WebEx or participating by phone.

Townhall meetings were conducted over the course of 20 Wednesday evenings from 7:00 - 8:30 p.m. to reach customers in CSS's nine service areas:

Aurora Region
Belleville Region
Champaign Region
Cook Region
Joliet Region
Marion Region
Peoria Region
Rockford Region
Springfield Region

Two townhall meetings were held in each of these service areas with the exception of Cook, where four townhall meetings were held. Additionally, townhall meetings were held for CSS staff, victims of domestic violence, IV-D attorneys, family law private practitioners, and the judiciary for a total of 27 townhalls. CSS staff advertised the townhall meetings by sharing flyers with service partners of both HFS and the Illinois Department of Human Services; posting information on the HFS website and HFS's social media accounts; and sending email blasts to IV-D customers. IV-D legal representatives also shared information with the public during routine child support calls.

The first townhall meeting was held January 24, 2022, for CSS staff and functioned essentially as a test run to determine what the format should look like for future townhalls with the general public. Nevertheless, many of the CSS staff who participated had personal experience with the child support system, and overall, staff provided valuable feedback to the Committee regarding choice of topics, presentation, format, and methodologies to gain maximum public input.

Thereafter, the Committee developed a list of specific child support topics to be discussed at all future townhalls that would (1) promote discussion, (2) elicit the feedback needed to meet the Committee's 10 goals as previously stated, and (3) discourage participants from seeking legal advice from the panel about their personal situations or discussing issues unrelated to the guidelines review. As each service region held two townhalls, the topics were divided between the two weeks in each service region.

The Townhall meeting topics were:

• The basic child support obligation and whether it meets the needs of families;

- Identifying basic family needs and other child support related expenses shared by parents;
- When a child support obligation should legally terminate (e.g., age 18, high school graduation, some other date?);
- Health insurance requirements for children and allocation of uncovered healthcare costs between parents;
- Whether child support should terminate automatically upon incarceration of the support obligor;
- The multi-family adjustment and whether it meets the needs of families;
- The shared physical care child support formula, which begins when the non-majority time parent has 146 overnights or more per year, and whether the parents' and child's support needs are being met when applied.
- Other factors: Are there factors the guidelines currently do not consider that they should?

The format of the townhalls was such that panelists would introduce one of the aforementioned topics by providing a brief description of the issue and ask for comments from participants. To encourage maximum participation, a chat feature also was available during the townhall for participants to type comments or questions. Slido polls (Appendix D) and word clouds also were used. At the conclusion of each townhall meeting, participants were invited to complete an exit survey and/or send additional comments or questions to HFS via a designated email address. Parents were thanked for their participation in the townhall meeting and informed of the forthcoming creation of a community child support advisory council in 2023 and how they can volunteer to participate.

Six additional virtual townhall meetings were subsequently held by the Committee. On July 28, 2022, a townhall was held for victims of domestic violence. On October 19, 2022, two townhalls were held for family law private practitioners. On October 21, 2022, a townhall meeting was held for IV-D attorneys who shared information on how courts process IV-D cases and provided insight on judges' rulings and interpretations of the child support statute. Finally, on October 25, 2022, two townhalls were held for family law judges. A variety of topics were discussed including the guidelines, the shared care parenting formula, and courtroom procedures.

The greatest public input came from two categories of stakeholders: parents/guardians and family law private practitioners. The Committee found participants who identified as parents/guardians were concerned primarily with:

- Child support not meeting the needs of the child due to inflation;
- Child support placing an unattainable financial burden on the support obligor.
- Support orders being set too high for the support obligor, causing noncompliance.
- Child support needing to be terminated during incarceration of the support obligor.

- The overnight threshold for the implementation of the shared care child support formula being too high at 146 overnights per year.
- Child support not being spent on the child, and receipts should be provided by the support recipient.
- The inability to collect extracurricular activity, school, healthcare, and childcare expenses from the support obligor.
- Child support being based on parents' incomes; several parents suggested child support be a fixed amount for all children regardless of the parents' income; a "one size fits all" approach that does not include housing and other basic needs.
- The need for more enforcement of child support orders.

Overall, however, most parents believed the income shares model is a significant improvement over the prior model that set support as a percentage of only the support obligor's income. Parents also generally expressed that the cost sharing between parents for extracurricular activities, school, childcare, and healthcare expenses was fair so long as both parents contributed their portions.

Family law private practitioners shared many thoughts similar to the parent/guardian participants, yet they also identified other areas of concern:

- Child support orders not meeting the needs of the child;
- Failure to properly impute income to the support obligor when determining support;
- How to better assist parents seeking compliance by the other parent of expense allocation provisions in child support orders (extracurricular, school, childcare, and out-of-pocket healthcare expenses);
- The reduction in child support when the shared physical care formula is applied at 146 overnights per year (the "cliff effect");
- Litigation prompted because the non-majority time parent is requesting 146 overnights of parenting time per year to achieve a child support reduction, and the majority time parent is opposed because of the reduction.
- Support obligors who have an order for 146 or more overnights, resulting in application of the shared physical care formula, but fail to care for the child on those overnights, resulting in the support obligee receiving more overnights per year but reduced support.

The post-townhall exit surveys CSS emailed to the participants sought both demographic information as well as additional input on the topics discussed during the townhall. More than 600 completed or partially completed surveys were returned. The complete survey results summary is attached as Appendix E. Some of the survey demographics can be summarized as follows:

- Age: 40% of respondents were age 35-44; 32% were age 45-54; 16% were 55 or older; and 12% were age 25-34
- Gender: 80% of respondents identified as female, and 18% identified as male
- Race/Ethnicity: 57% of respondents identified as White/Caucasian; 22% identified as Black/African American; and 9% identified as Hispanic/Latino
- Education: 46% of respondents identified as having a bachelor's degree or post graduate degree;
   28% attended a trade school or had some college credits; 13% had an associates degree; and 11% had a high school diploma or equivalent
- Employment status: 66% of respondents reported full-time employment; 17% reported part-time employment or no employment; 8% reported being unable to work; and 6% identified as selfemployed
- Income: 35% of respondents reported income between $10,000-$50,000; 32% reported income between $50,000-$100,000; and 8% each reported income under $10,000 or between $100,000-$150,000

Substantively, the post-townhall exit survey asked participants additional questions about incarcerated support obligors, health insurance coverage, additional children and the multi-family adjustment, whether the shared physical care adjustment was fair and equitable, and whether the support order was fair, equitable, and adequate to meet the family's needs.

Incarcerated Support Obligors

On the subject of how child support should be addressed with incarcerated support obligors, 46% of respondents believed the State should automatically modify the incarcerated support obligor's child support order, while 42% of respondents indicated notice should be sent to the parties to seek modification of the existing child support order. Assuming child support was terminated during the support obligor's incarceration, the survey also asked how child support should be addressed upon the support obligor's release from incarceration. An overwhelming majority, 63%, responded that a new support order should be established. By contrast, only 37% believed the support order in effect prior to modification because of incarceration should be reinstated. When asked who should be responsible for taking action after the support obligor's release from incarceration to obtain a new support order or resume the prior order, almost 50% of respondents believed the process should happen automatically, requiring no one to take action. About 21% of respondents indicated HFS should be responsible for the process, and 17% preferred to place the responsibility on the support obligor.

Much discussion was had during the townhall meetings about the ease with which an incarcerated support obligor can access the court system to effect a modification of support. While some participants believed child support should not be terminated due to incarceration, the majority of commenters believed incarcerated support obligors are entitled to relief from child support while incarcerated. Suggestions for what that process should look like, however, were varied.

Health Insurance

The post-townhall survey asked participants if health insurance was addressed in their orders. Sixty-six percent of those responding said health insurance was addressed in their order. Further, 29% of respondents indicated health insurance was provided by the parent paying support, 23% said it was provided by the parent receiving support, 19% indicated health insurance is provided by HFS/Medicaid, and 15% indicated both parents shared in the health insurance costs.

Additional Children and the Multi-family Adjustment

On the question of whether respondents support children for whom they are legally responsible other than the subject children on their child support case, 81% answered yes. The number of children for whom respondents indicated they are responsible ranged from one to five children. When asked if these other children were considered when child support was set, 41% of respondents answered no, and 33% answered yes. It is possible the 41% who answered no had child support orders entered under the preincome shares formula, which, generally speaking, considered only the support obligor's older children for whom child support was paid pursuant to an order. In other words, a support obligor's younger children were not considered under the old formula, and a support obligee's other children, regardless of age, were not considered at all. In cases where other children were factored into the child support calculation, 32% of respondents believed the amount of credit they received in reducing their income was not fair, while only 11% believed it was fair.

Shared Physical Care

When asked if the number of overnights spent with a child was considered when setting child support, 63% of respondents answered no, and 37% answered yes. As with the multi-family adjustment, this discrepancy could be the result of the order having been entered prior to income shares when the number of overnights with a child was not considered at all (unless the court specifically ordered a deviation from the guidelines because of significant parenting time). In cases where the number of overnights was considered, respondents were asked if the threshold of 146 overnights, which must be met before the shared physical care formula is applied, was too high or too low. Interestingly, the responses were nearly evenly split, with 51% responding the 146-night threshold was too high and 49% responding it was too low. When polled on whether the shared physical care adjustment was fair and equitable, 66% answered no, and only 34% answered yes. These results generally comport with what the Committee heard during the townhall meetings. Support obligors expressed frustration that they exercised less than 146 overnights with their child but realized no reduction in support to account for the costs they incur in exercising those overnights, and on the other hand, support obligees expressed frustration that some obligors had more than 146 overnights in their court order, thereby resulting in a reduction of child support, yet the obligors were not actually exercising their overnights, which has the effect of placing a greater financial burden on the support obligee. On the subject of shared physical care, the general themes heard by the Committee were (1) support obligors believed the 146-night threshold was too high, and (2) support obligees believed the 146-night threshold was being used as a tool by support obligors to reduce child support when the support obligor had no intention of actually exercising the overnights that game them the reduction in the first place.

Concerns Expressed by Parents Receiving Support

Seventy-nine percent of respondents to the post-townhall survey identified as receiving support or being entitled to receive support. When asked if the support amount on their case was enough to support their child(ren), 80% answered no. To fill the gap, respondents indicated they borrow from family/friends (45%), have secondary employment (36%), receive food stamps/SNAP (32%), and/or receive public assistance (27%). In a category described as "Other," respondents shared other ways in which they subsidize their household needs when child support is inadequate:

- Buying second-hand items
- Keeping HVAC settings high or low to reduce utility costs
- Seeking assistance from food pantries, churches, Salvation Army
- Borrowing from a 401k
- Obtaining loans
- Going without
- Free child care from family members
- Working overtime
- Clipping coupons/taking advantage of sales/buying on payment plans
- Seeking fee waivers/grants/scholarships for school/activities
- Deferring own healthcare needs
- Dipping into savings
- Receiving WIC
- Having a new spouse/partner take a second job
- Assuming credit card debt
- Living in public housing

Among respondents who receive child support, 95% were dissatisfied with the amount.

Concerns Expressed by Parents Paying Support

Twenty-one percent of respondents to the post-townhall survey identified as paying support or being required to pay support. When asked if the amount of child support they were ordered to pay was fair and equitable, 85% responded no. When asked why their orders were not fair and equitable, 28% indicated they contribute in other ways to their child's support (clothes/food/activities), and 27% believed the support amount was too high. Nearly 46% of respondents cited other reasons why their orders were not fair and equitable, including:

- Unable to afford personal monthly expenses
- A second family's needs were not being met
- The other parent's assets are greater
- Another child support order was not considered
- Support did not go to the child
- Child support should not be used for rent
- The other parent had no legitimate need for support
- · Personal standard of living was reduced
- The number of overnights was not equal to the other parent's
- Other children living in obligor's home
- Unable to feed children during overnights

Ultimately, 81% of support obligors reported being dissatisfied with the amount of support they were ordered to pay. When asked if they felt their voice was heard, 81% of respondents answered no.

Section III: Committee Findings and Recommendations

During the course of this review, the Committee, in keeping with its guiding principles, sought legislation not only to complete the transition to an income shares model, but also to enhance the lives of and better serve Illinois families in the child support system. Examples of this legislation include but are not limited to the following:

- PA 102-823, effective May 13, 2022, amended 750 ILCS 5/505 to give courts discretion to order either or both parents to secure their child support obligation, in whole or in part, with reasonably affordable life insurance on the life of one or both parents on such terms as the parties agree or as the court orders.
- PA 102-0087, effective January 1, 2022, revised 750 ILCS 5/505.2 to comport with the changes to 750 ILCS 5/505 made with the passage of income shares. Specifically, § 505(a)(4) requires that when a court orders child support, the court also order public or private health insurance coverage for the child and allocate the associated costs between the parents.
- PA 102-0541, effective August 20, 2021, amended the Public Aid Code to clarify, among other things, that an order for custody/allocation of parental responsibilities is not a prerequisite to establishment or enforcement of a child support order; additionally, this Public Act also amended 750 ILCS 5/510 to remove language that stated receipt of medical assistance, i.e., public health insurance, shall not be considered to meet the need to provide for a child's health care needs.
- PA 101-0336, effective August 9, 2019, amended 305 ILCS 5/10-16.5 to permit HFS to determine, by administrative rule, if or how it will enforce interest on past due child support in IV-D cases. HFS subsequently issued the rule found at 89 III. Adm Code 160.89, which sets forth the criteria that must be met before HFS will complete an interest determination. This change was intended to remove from HFS's purview and return to Illinois families the decision about whether or not to assess interest on past due child support. PA 101-0336 also amended the Illinois Vehicle Code<sup>7</sup> to eliminate the requirement that a support obligor whose driver's license has been suspended a second time for failure to pay child support be required to pay their past due balance in full before their driver's license can be reinstated.

Notwithstanding these important pieces of legislation, the Committee believes further legislative enhancements consistent with the Committee's guiding principles can be made that would increase fair and equitable outcomes and further strengthen families. The following findings and recommendations are based on the Committee's review of federal child support regulations, the current Illinois child support guidelines, current economic data, and public input from child support stakeholders.

A. The Child Support Guidelines

Federal Requirements 45 CFR 302.56(e) requires states review and, if appropriate, revise their child support guidelines at least once every four years to ensure their application results in the determination of appropriate child support order amounts.

Illinois Child Support Guidelines 750 ILCS 5/505(a) provides, in pertinent part, "the Court may order either or both parents owing a duty of support to a child of the marriage or civil union to pay an amount reasonable and necessary for support." The current Illinois child support guidelines, which are known as the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation, became effective July 1, 2017, when Illinois transitioned from a child support model based solely on a percentage of the support obligor's income to an income shares model that accounts for both parents' incomes. The current Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation, which is comprised of both a Gross to Net Income Conversion Table and an Income Shares Schedule based on parents' combined adjusted net income, is based on economic data from 2017. The economic measurement model adopted by Illinois at that time was BR4. The Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation currently provides child support guidelines for parents earning up to a combined net income of $30,000 per month.

Findings The Committee considered the research, economic data, and recommendations provided by Dr. Venohr as well as public input from the townhall meetings and townhall meeting exit surveys. The Committee determined the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation should be reviewed and considered the adoption of BR5 as the economic measurement model. The Committee also reviewed the current Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation's cap of $30,000 per month of combined net income and determined there is more credible data to support a guideline cap at $25,000 per month of combined net income with extrapolation options for parents with greater combined income.

Recommendation The Committee recommends three changes to the child support guidelines: (1) updating the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation; (2) adopting BR5 as the economic model; and (3) capping the Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation at $25,000 per month of combined net income.

B. Imputation of Income

Federal Requirements

45 CFR 302.56(c)(iii) requires state child support guidelines must, if imputation of income is authorized, take into consideration the specific circumstances of the support obligor (and at the State's discretion the support obligee) to the extent known, including such factors as the support obligor's:

assets
residence
employment and earnings history
job skills
educational attainment
literacy
age
health
criminal record and other employment barriers record of seeking work
the local job market availability of local employers willing to hire the support payor prevailing earnings level in the local community other relevant background factors in the case

Current Illinois Law

Imputation of income for calculating child support is authorized by 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.2), which states:

If a parent is voluntarily unemployed or underemployed, child support shall be calculated based on a determination of potential income. A determination of potential income shall be made by determining employment potential and probable earnings level based on the obligor's work history, occupational qualifications, prevailing job opportunities, the ownership by a parent of a substantial non-income producing asset, and earnings levels in the community.

Findings

One of the issues before the Committee is whether 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.2) adequately comports with the requirements set forth in 45 CFR 302.56(c)(iii). In addition to reviewing the plain language of the statute, the Committee sought to determine how the existing statute is applied in practice by consulting with IV-D attorneys and family law judges.

Discussion with IV-D attorneys representing CSS in child support court proceedings revealed many courts impute full-time minimum wage earnings to support obligors without considering the requirements of 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.2). In other words, the only factor some courts consider when imputing income to the support obligor is the fact the support obligor is unemployed or underemployed. Additionally, some IV-D attorneys revealed they request courts impute minimum wage earnings to support obligors. As stated above, the case data file analysis shows the percentage of current support due on imputed income orders that actually is paid is only 45%.

Recommendation In an effort to reduce inappropriate imputation of income, which leads to uncollected debt, the Committee recommends the specific factors listed in 45 CFR 302.56(c)(iii) be incorporated into 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.2). The Committee further recommends additional language permitting courts to impute income to a party only upon conducting an evidentiary hearing or by agreement of the parties and requiring courts make specific written findings identifying the basis or bases for imputing income.

The Committee proposes the following statutory language:

(3.2) Unemployment or underemployment. If a parent is voluntarily unemployed or underemployed, child support shall be calculated based on a determination of potential income. A determination of potential income shall be made by determining employment potential and probable earnings level based on the obligor's work history, occupational qualifications, prevailing job opportunities, the ownership by a parent of a substantial non-income producing asset, and earnings levels in the community. If there is insufficient work history to determine employment potential and probable earnings level, there shall be a rebuttable presumption that the parent's potential income is 75% of the most recent United States Department of Health and Human Services Federal Poverty Guidelines for a family of one person.

(A) In determining potential income, the court shall consider the specific circumstances of a party, to the extent known, including but not limited to the parent's:

ownership of a substantial non-income producing asset

residence

employment and earnings history

job skills

health
criminal record and other employment barriers
record of seeking work

The court shall also consider the local job market, availability of local employers willing to hire the parent, prevailing earning levels in the local community, and other relevant background factors in the case. If there is insufficient work history to determine employment potential and probable earnings level, there shall be a rebuttable presumption that the parent's potential income is 75% of the most recent United States Department of Health and Human Services Federal Poverty Guidelines for a family of one person.

(B) The Court may impute income to a party only upon conducting an evidentiary hearing or by agreement of the parties. Imputation of income shall be accompanied by specific written findings identifying the basis or bases for imputation utilizing the above factors.

C. Incarcerated Support Obligors

Federal Requirements

Pursuant to 45 CFR 302.56(c)(3), state child support guidelines must provide that incarceration may not be treated as voluntary unemployment for purposes of establishing or modifying child support. Further, 45 CFR 303.8(b) provides a state, upon learning a support obligor will be incarcerated for more than 180 calendar days, may take one of two actions to effect a modification of the order. Under 45 CFR 303.8(b)(2), a state may, without the need for a request and upon notice to both parties, automatically review and, if appropriate, adjust the order without proof of a substantial change in circumstances. If a state elects not to implement the option in (b)(2), then, pursuant to 45 CFR 303.8(b)(7)(ii), the state must, within 15 business days of learning of the incarceration, send notice to both parties notifying them of their right to request a review and adjustment, if appropriate. Notice and review under (b)(7)(ii) are not required if a state has a law or rule that modifies child support by operation of law upon incarceration.

Current Illinois Law

750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.3b) provides a rebuttable presumption that a zero-dollar order shall enter for parents who cannot work due to incarceration. Illinois law does not, however, provide a framework consistent with 45 CFR 303.8(b) that would allow for automatic review and adjustment upon incarceration or modification by operation of law. The practical effect of this is that IV-D and non IV-D child support cases are treated disparately. For example, when a IV-D child support order requires modification due to incarceration, CSS follows the process detailed in 45 CFR 303.8(b)(7)(ii) by sending notice to both parties of their right to request review and adjustment. CSS also follows up with incarcerated support obligors by sending staff to Department of Corrections facilities to assist incarcerated support obligors in completing the necessary paperwork to pursue a modification due to incarceration. For non IV-D child support orders, however, the incarcerated support obligor is required to pursue a modification on their own or with the assistance of an attorney, and failure to pursue a modification means the support obligation remains in effect.

Committee Findings

In Illinois, incarcerated support obligors have more than twice the child support debt as non-incarcerated support obligors.

In response to 45 CFR 303.8, multiple other states have implemented legislation allowing for termination of child support orders by operation of law when a support obligor is incarcerated.

- California 2015 California AB 610
- Connecticut Conn. Gen. State § 46b-215e
- Georgia Ga. Code § 19-6-15 (see also 2018 SB 427 line 117)
- Indiana Ind Code § 31-9-2-54.7, 31-16-6-1, 31-16-8-4, 31-24-4-17 (see also 2018 SB 179)
- Louisiana La. Rev. Stat. § 9:311, 9:311.1, 9:315.11, La. Children's Code, Art. 1353: G
- Michigan 552.605d
- Nebraska Neb. Rev. Stat. § 43-512.12, 43-512.15
- North Dakota 14-09-09.38
- Oregon Or. Rev. Stat. § 25.247
- Rhode Island R.I. Gen. Laws § 15-5-16.2
- Utah Utah Code § 78B-12-203

Post-townhall survey data indicated 63% of responding participants believe child support should terminate automatically while a parent is incarcerated. Additionally, participants raised concerns about resuming child support upon a support obligor's release, including how soon after parole and at what level.

Recommendation The Committee recommends language be added to 750 ILCS 5/510 and 305 ILCS 5/10-10 stating that incarceration for at least 180 consecutive days constitutes a substantial change of circumstances for purposes of modifying child support. The Committee further recommends 750 ILCS 5/510 be amended to include a rebuttable presumption that a child support obligation be modified to $0 (zero dollars), provided:

- the child support agency or incarcerated support obligor files a Notice of Incarceration with the Clerk of the Court with jurisdiction over the support order and properly serves a copy upon the support obligee; and
- 2) the support obligee fails to request a hearing within 30 days of the date of service of the Notice of Incarceration.

The Committee recommends specific statutory requirements relative to the Notice of Incarceration be incorporated into 750 ILCS 5/510 and elsewhere as appropriate.

In an effort to balance the interests of both the support obligee and the support obligor, the Committee recommends additional legislative provision that, when support has been reduced to zero based on a Notice of Incarceration, upon a support obligor being paroled, child support shall resume under the same terms in effect prior to incarceration and within a reasonable period of time after parole unless the child support agency or the support obligor files a petition seeking further modification. As the Committee's recommendations make incarceration a substantial change of circumstances, the support obligor may file a motion to modify the amount of support any time after parole.

D. Multi-Family Adjustment

Current Illinois Law 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3)(f)(I) includes a multi-family adjustment to income for parents who are legally responsible for the support of a child not shared with the other parent and not subject to the child support proceeding before the tribunal. The multi-family adjustment takes two forms. First, a parent can receive a multi-family adjustment with a court order for support actually paid pursuant to a child support order. Second, upon the request of a parent actually supporting a presumed, acknowledged, or adjudicated child living in or outside the parent's home for whom there is no court order for support, the parent can receive a deduction from their income for the lesser of the amount of financial support actually paid or 75% of what the parent should pay for support under the guidelines. Under both options, the deduction is required unless the court makes a finding the adjustment would cause economic hardship to the child who is the subject of the support proceeding. These adjustments are available to both parents.

Committee Findings The Committee considered comments from IV-D attorneys, family law practitioners, and the judiciary when reviewing the multi-family adjustment. Overall, the Committee found the multi-family adjustment, both with and without a court order, met the needs of families and fulfilled the intent of those who aided in drafting the income shares model to treat all children fairly. Because multi-family court orders are not usually determined contemporaneously, there may be an initial disparity in child support orders, but if those orders are later reviewed and modified contemporaneously, the results have been fair and equitable.

Regarding the multi-family adjustment without a court order, family law private practitioners expressed concern about requiring parents who request this adjustment to prove they are legally responsible for the child(ren) for whom they are requesting the adjustment. Although 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3)(f)(I)(ii) references presumed, acknowledged, or adjudicated child, it does not require the parent requesting the deduction to provide proof of a legal relationship with the child.

Recommendation That additional language is needed to clarify the multi-family adjustment without order provision in 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3)(f)(I)(ii). Specifically, the Committee recommends this provision be clarified to make clear the term "child" as used in this subsection is ascribed the same definition as that found at the beginning of 505(a), which includes "any child under age 18 and any child age 19 or younger who is still attending high school." Additionally, the Committee recommends adding language that any parent requesting the multi-family adjustment without a court order be required to provide documentation they are legally responsible for the child for whom the adjustment is sought.

E. Shared Physical Care Child Support Formula

Current Illinois Law 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.8) sets forth a child support formula for the shared physical care of a child by the parents, which provides that when the non-majority time parent has 146 or more overnights per year, the basic child support obligation is multiplied by 1.5. The multiplier is used to help the parents defray the additional fixed and variable expenses incurred with the shared physical care of their child. Each parent's share of child support is determined, and the child support obligation is then computed for each parent by multiplying the parent's portion of the shared care support obligation by the percentage of time the child spends with the other parent. The respective child support obligations are then offset with the parent owing more child support paying the difference between the child support amounts. This is a "cross-credit" formula used to determine child support when parents have shared physical care of their children.

Committee Findings The shared physical care child support formula was part of the income shares statute that became effective July 1, 2017. Although parents, family law private practitioners, and the judiciary welcomed the concept of child support for cases involving shared physical care, there has been much criticism of this formula. Support obligees contend the formula creates a "cliff effect" that significantly reduces child support beginning at 146 overnights of parenting time with the non-majority time parent.

Many non-majority time parents believe the threshold of 146 overnights is too high to achieve shared care parenting time. The judiciary and family law private practitioners have observed there is increased litigation over parenting time as parties attempt to reach or resist the 146 overnight per year parenting time threshold.

What are Other States Doing? The Committee studied other states' shared care formulas. Currently, 20 states utilize the same cross-credit formula with a multiplier of 1.5. One state uses a cross-credit formula with no multiplier, and yet another utilizes a cross-credit formula with a multiplier of 1.4.

The Committee also reviewed other shared care formulas, including sliding scale formulas, which provide for parenting time credits beginning after a certain number of overnights per year. For example, Oregon's child support formula provides for a parenting time credit beginning at 38 overnights per year. Although the mathematical formula is quite complex, a parenting time credit schedule for each parenting time overnight can be created and utilized when parties have shared physical care of their children. By providing a credit that reflects incremental daily percentages, it is believed this may eliminate the "cliff effect," which in turn should decrease litigation between parents who are attempting to reach or resist a parenting time threshold.

After reviewing other shared care formulas and computations, the Committee determined it would be possible to remove the "cliff effect" in shared care cases by both using a multiplier of 1.7 and lowering the parenting time threshold. The 1.7 multiplier was arrived at by the income shares/maintenance subcommittee of the Illinois State Bar Association, and their PowerPoint presentation is attached as Appendix G. The multiplier was increased to defray the actual cost of shared physical care parenting time for Illinois families, as the subcommittee determined the 1.5 multiplier was too low for Illinois families sharing physical care of their children.

Recommendation The Committee recommends 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.8) be researched to determine if the shared physical care parenting time threshold of 146 overnights per year should be reduced and the shared physical care multiplier increased based on economic data or, alternatively, whether an incremental (daily) parenting time credit schedule should be developed when a specified parenting time threshold is attained by the non-majority time parent before the credit is applied. Until a new Schedule of Basic Child Support Obligation is available, the Committee believes it is premature to recommend a specific shared care parenting time formula.

F. Minimum Child Support Orders

The Committee recommends there be no change to 750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.3a) with respect to the $40 per month per child minimum support order (capped at $120 per month for all of a support obligor's children).

G. Self-Support Reserve

750 ILCS 5/505(a)(3.3a) sets forth a rebuttable presumption for a minimum child support obligation when the obligor has actual or imputed income at or less than 75% of the most recent United States Department of Health and Human Services Federal Poverty Guidelines for a single person. After careful consideration, the Committee recommends HFS promulgate and determine the computational basis for minimum dollar orders based on the most recent United States Department of Health and Human Services Federal Poverty Guidelines.

SECTION 1: INTRODUCTION AND PURPOSE

This report summarizes the findings from the data analysis conducted for Illinois's 2022 child support guidelines review and uses more current data to prepare an updated child support schedule for Illinois. Federal regulation (45 C.F.R. § 302.56) requires states to review their guidelines at least once every four years. As part of that review, states must consider economic data on the cost of raising children; examine case file data to analyze the application and deviation from the guidelines, payment data, and the rates of income imputation, default, and application of the low-income adjustment; consider labor market data; and fulfill other requirements.

This report documents Illinois's compliance with the federal data requirements. It also documents the economic basis of the updated child support schedule favored by the Commission reviewing the child support guidelines.

Illinois provides its child support schedule in state statute (750 ILCS 5/505.2). The core of the guidelines calculation is a schedule that specifies the basic support obligation depending on the combined income of the parents and the number of children. It is based on economic evidence on the cost of raising children. Exhibit 1 provides an excerpt of the existing schedule. The support obligation is determined by prorating the payer-parent's share of the basic obligation. For example, if the income of the paying-parent is $3,050 per month and the income of the receiving-parent is $2,000 per month, the combined monthly income is $5,050 per month. The basic obligation for a combined monthly income of $5,050 for one child, based on Exhibit 1, is $949 per month. This reflects economic data on how much parents spend on the child based on their combined income. Each parent is financially responsible their prorated share of $949. The payer-parent's prorated share of the parents' combined net income is 60.4 percent (i.e., $3,050 divided by $5,050), which is $573 per month (60.4% multiplied by $949). This is the basis of the child support obligation, although there may be additional adjustments for other considerations such as joint/shared physical custody.

Illinois adopted the income shares model (including the income shares schedule) in 2017. This is the last time the schedule was updated. It was based on February 2017 price levels. It is based on the most current economic study of child-rearing expenditures available at that time. Since then, a new study has been released. An updated schedule is developed in this report using the more current study.

ILLINOIS CHILDREN AND CHILD SUPPORT

Child support is an important source of income to many Illinois children. Based on the U.S. Census American Community Survey, 2,794,299 children lived in Illinois in 2021.<sup>1</sup> The 2022 Kids Count reports several statistics that are relevant to child support.<sup>2</sup>

- The percentage of Illinois children living in poverty is 16 percent, while it is 17 percent nationally.3
- The percentage of children whose parents lack secure employment is 26 percent in Illinois and 27 percent nationally.
- The percentage of children living in single-parent families is 33 percent in Illinois and 34 percent nationally.
- The percentage of Illinois female-headed families receiving child support is 28 percent, while it is 26 percent nationally.<sup>4</sup>

Still, many Illinois families benefit from child support. In federal fiscal year (FFY) 2021, the state child support agency, which is called the Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) and is under the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (DHFS), served 377,915 cases. In FFY 2021, DCSS established 21,267 support orders, collected and distributed over $754 million in child support, and received 62 percent of the current support due. Other than certain types of public assistance cases, use of DCSS is not mandated. The number of child support cases that are not part of DCSS, and the collections on those cases are unknown. National data finds that the characteristics of cases receiving government child support services differ vastly from those that do not. One way they differ is cases in the government caseload are more likely to involve impoverished families and families receiving meanstested assistance.

Although state data are not available, a 2015 national study found that without child support, the child poverty rate would be 7.0 percentage points higher. 8 Nonetheless, other national research finds that almost a quarter of nonresidential parents have no or limited reported earnings. <sup>9</sup> These statistics underscore the delicate balance at low incomes where child support can help lift families out of poverty, but must recognize that low-income parents who are not living with the child may have a limited ability to pay.

FEDERAL REQUIREMENTS

As shown in Exhibit 2, federal regulation imposes many requirements of state child support guidelines and state guidelines review processes. Federal regulation expanded state requirements in 2016 through the Flexibility, Efficiency, and Modernization in Child Support Enforcement Programs (FEM) rule. <sup>10</sup> The 2022 Illinois Child Support Advisory Committee addressed the expanded federal requirements of state guidelines. Their findings are summarized in their report.

The FEM rule also expanded what data states must consider as part of their periodic guidelines review. Prior to FEM, states only needed to consider economic data on the cost of raising children and collect and analyze case file data on guidelines deviations. The intent was to use the economic data to update the child support schedule/formula if deemed appropriate by the state, and to use the deviation data to develop guidelines provisions that would keep deviations at a minimum. Besides economic data and deviation data, states are now also required to consider labor market data and use their case file data to analyze payment data and rates of income imputation, defaults, and application of the low-income adjustment.

In general, the 2016 federal rule changes aim to increase regular, on-time payment to families; increase the number of obligated parents working and supporting their children; and reduce the accumulation of unpayable arrears accumulated by parents with no or little ability-to-pay. The federal rule changes were particularly intent on improving child support policies among low-income cases. The expanded data requirements are intended to encourage states to develop data-based recommendations that will improve their guidelines. The final rule signaled out income imputation as an overused approach to determining income among low-income obligated parents. The narrative surrounding the FEM rule also noted the correlation between income imputation and default orders as well as the importance of engaging both parents in the order establishment process in order to produce more accurate order

ORGANIZATION OF REPORT

Section 2 summarizes the findings from the analysis of case file data and labor market data.

Section 3 reviews the economic data on the cost of raising children and uses it to develop an updated schedule. It also lists the steps and economic data used to develop an updated child support schedule.

Section 4 analyzes the impact of the existing and updated schedule using case scenarios.

Section 5 provides conclusions.

Appendix A provides additional analysis of payment data for the case file review.

Appendix B provides a side-by-side comparison of the updated schedules to the existing schedule.

Exhibit 2: Federal Regulations Pertaining to State Child Support Guidelines

45 C.F.R. § 302.56 Guidelines for setting child support orders

- (a) Within 1 year after completion of the State's next quadrennial review of its child support guidelines, that commences more than 1 year after publication of the final rule, in accordance with § 302.56(e), as a condition of approval of its State plan, the State must establish one set of child support guidelines by law or by judicial or administrative action for setting and modifying child support order amounts within the State that meet the requirements in this section.
- (b) The State must have procedures for making the guidelines available to all persons in the State.
- (c) The child support guidelines established under paragraph (a) of this section must at a minimum:
  - (1) Provide that the child support order is based on the noncustodial parent's earnings, income, and other evidence of ability to pay that:
    - (i) Takes into consideration all earnings and income of the noncustodial parent (and at the State's discretion, the custodial parent);
    - (ii) Takes into consideration the basic subsistence needs of the noncustodial parent (and at the State's discretion, the custodial parent and children) who has a limited ability to pay by incorporating a low-income adjustment, such as a self-support reserve or some other method determined by the State; and
    - (iii) If imputation of income is authorized, takes into consideration the specific circumstances of the noncustodial parent (and at the State's discretion, the custodial parent) to the extent known, including such factors as the noncustodial parent's assets, residence, employment and earnings history, job skills, educational attainment, literacy, age, health, criminal record and other employment barriers, and record of seeking work, as well as the local job market, the availability of employers willing to hire the noncustodial parent, prevailing earnings level in the local community, and other relevant background factors in the case.
  - (2) Address how the parents will provide for the child's health care needs through private or public health care coverage and/or through cash medical support;
  - (3) Provide that incarceration may not be treated as voluntary unemployment in establishing or modifying support orders; and
  - (4) Be based on specific descriptive and numeric criteria and result in a computation of the child support obligation.
- (d) The State must include a copy of the child support guidelines in its State plan.
- (e) The State must review, and revise, if appropriate, the child support guidelines established under paragraph (a) of this section at least once every four years to ensure that their application results in the determination of appropriate child support order amounts. The State shall publish on the internet and make accessible to the public all reports of the guidelines reviewing body, the effective date of the guidelines, and the date of the next quadrennial review.
- (f) The State must provide that there will be a rebuttable presumption, in any judicial or administrative proceeding for the establishment and modification of a child support order, that the amount of the order which would result from the application of the child support guidelines established under paragraph (a) of this section is the correct amount of child support to be ordered.
- (g) A written finding or specific finding on the record of a judicial or administrative proceeding for the establishment or modification of a child support order that the application of the child support guidelines established under paragraph (a) of this section would be unjust or inappropriate in a particular case will be sufficient to rebut the presumption in that case, as determined under criteria established by the State. Such criteria must take into consideration the best interests of the child. Findings that rebut the child support guidelines shall state the amount of support that would have been required under the guidelines and include a justification of why the order varies from the guidelines.
- (h) As part of the review of a State's child support guidelines required under paragraph (e) of this section, a State must:
  - (1) Consider economic data on the cost of raising children, labor market data (such as unemployment rates, employment rates, hours worked, and earnings) by occupation and skill-level for the State and local job markets, the impact of guidelines policies and amounts on custodial and noncustodial parents who have family incomes below 200 percent of the Federal poverty level, and factors that influence employment rates among noncustodial parents and compliance with child support orders;
    - (2) Analyze case data, gathered through sampling or other methods, on the application of and deviations from the child support guidelines, as well as the rates of default and imputed child support orders and orders determined using the low-income adjustment required under paragraph (c)(1)(ii) of this section. The analysis must also include a comparison of payments on child support orders by case characteristics, including whether the order was entered by default, based on imputed income, or determined using the low-income adjustment required under paragraph (c)(1)(ii). The analysis of the data must be used in the State's review of the child support guidelines to ensure that deviations from the guidelines are limited and guideline amounts are appropriate based on criteria established by the State under paragraph (g); and
- (3) Provide a meaningful opportunity for public input, including input from low-income custodial and noncustodial parents and their representatives. The State must also obtain the views and advice of the State child support agency funded under title IV–D of the Act.

SECTION 2: FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS OF CASE FILE DATA AND LABOR MARKET DATA

This section documents the findings from the analysis of case file data and labor market data considered for the 2022 review of the Illinois child support guidelines. The analyses fulfill the federal requirements (45 C.F.R § 302.56(h)) pertaining to case file and labor market data shown in Exhibit 2.

FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS OF CASE FILE DATA

The analysis of case file data is based upon orders that were extracted from the management information system used by the Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) for tracking child support orders in Illinois (KIDS). Orders extracted for analysis were selected using the following criteria:

- The order was newly established in state fiscal year 2020 (July 1, 2019 June 30, 2020) for a DCSS case; and
- The order was a non-responding interstate order; in other words, the Illinois guidelines would apply to the order.

This resulted in 10,095 unique orders for analysis. The data extract request included all data fields or proxy fields necessary to fulfill federal data analysis requirements (i.e., deviations, whether income was imputed to the obligated parent, whether the order was entered by default, whether the low-income adjustment was applied, and payment data) as well as other information such as the order amounts, number of children, and TANF status. The payment data included the amounts due and paid in the following year (state fiscal year 2021). This allows for a complete year of payment data to be analyzed for each order.

There are least three limitations to the data. One limitation is that the database's primary purpose is to track IV-D orders and actions, where IV-D stands for Title IV-D of the Social Security Act that enables state child support programs. CPR's analyses from other states where data is available find non-IV-D cases account for about 40 percent to 60 percent of all orders within the state. IV-D and non-IV-D orders typically differ in several key characteristics. Analysis from states that include both have usually found that IV-D orders have fewer children, lower rates of deviations, lower order amounts, lower incomes, and higher payments than non-IV-D orders.

A second limitation is that KIDS does not contain all the data fields of federal interest (i.e., whether income was imputed to the obligated parent and application of the self-support reserve) nor other key data fields that can be used to develop proxies for these fields such as the income of the parties. A third limitation concerns the sample time period, which includes the first part of the COVID-19 pandemic that altered DCSS and court workflow and case processing. This was evident in payment data anomalies in the last six months of 2020 (which would be the first six months of the SFY 2021). The anomalies appeared to be caused by process changes required to accommodate remote work rather than actual payment outcomes. The anomaly did not appear in the last six months of payment data. Due to this, the analysis of payment data is limited to the final six months of data collected in SFY 2021.

Exclusion of Cases Closed

Some of the orders within the sample were closed or suspended during the data sampling period. Since closed cases would not have orders or payments, they are excluded from the analysis. Closed orders made up 8 percent of the total sample, or 819 orders. The most common reason for closure was that the case was cancelled (64% of closures), which means the custodial person requested cancelation of DCSS services. Eleven percent of closures were because the obligated parent was disabled, deceased, or incarcerated; another 11 percent were coded without the specified closure reason but a code noting that the case could be purged; and 8 percent were because the child was emancipated. After removing closed orders, the remaining sample available for analysis was 9,276 orders.

Characteristics of Orders

This subsection reports findings on the characteristics of orders, including information about the parties to the order. Data permitting, the findings from this review were compared to a case file review conducted in 2010 from orders established in SFY2009 sampled from KIDS using a similar case selection criteria.

Order Established Administratively or Judicially

Child support orders can be established either administratively in a DCSS office or judicially by a circuit court judge. Assuming certain criteria are met, administrative orders can be established through consent conferences where a DCSS hearing officer presides. Hearing officers must begin the calculation of support using the DCSS guidelines calculator, but may deviate from the guidelines when inappropriate considering the best interest of the child. If a parent appeals to an administrative order, it is heard by an administrative law judge within the Executive Branch, rather than the courts.

Most (98%) of the analyzed orders were established judicially. Cook County was the only county to have over 10 administrative orders issued during the sample timeframe. As a comparison, 86 percent of orders analyzed from the 2010 sample were established judicially. The reason for the decline was not investigated. The COVID-19 pandemic may have been a factor.

County of the Order

Almost a third (32%) of all orders were from Cook County, which includes Chicago and some of the surrounding suburbs. It is the most populous county in Illinois. Outside of Cook County, the next largest counties were DuPage, Kane, Lake, Will, and St. Clair. Each of these counties had only 4 percent of all analyzed orders. Not one county had an inordinate percentage of orders administratively. Cook County had the highest count: just over 100 administrative orders but administrative orders only comprised 4 percent of all Cook County orders.

Selected Characteristics of the Order and Parties

Exhibit 3 displays the percentage of orders by number of children, age of the youngest child, whether the mother or father was the obligated parent, and the relationship of the custodial person to the child. In general, most orders cover one child and are owed by the father to the mother. There has been little change in this pattern since the last case file review was conducted.

Exhibit 3: Selected Characteristics of the Order and Parties (% of orders*)

	2020 Orders	2009 Orders
	(N=9,276)	(N=22,049)

Non-Assistance	28%	65%
Foster Care	6%	2%
Medicaid Only	57%	23%

Exhibit 3 also shows the public assistance status of the custodial household. The percentage enrolled in TANF has been stable at 10 percent over the two time periods. The percentage in foster care has increased from 2 percent to 6 percent. (The difference is statistically significant. <sup>16</sup>) Moreover, the percentage of child support orders where the family is enrolled in Medicaid only has dramatically increased. Undoubtedly, this results from expansion of Illinois medical programs for children including those authorized by the federal Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance (CHIP) program. One information source reports a 27 percent increase in Illinois Medicaid/CHIP enrollment between 2013 to 2021 alone and attributes the increase to Illinois Medicaid expansion and national healthcare reform. <sup>17</sup>

Additional Child Support Orders

KIDS also contains information about whether the parties had other DCSS orders, as well as whether they were the obligated parent, custodial person, or child on that DCSS order. When the party was a child on another DCSS order, it means that DCSS involvement is multigenerational. For example, an obligated parent may have been a child to a DCSS case when the obligated parent was growing up. As shown in Exhibit 4, among the 2020 orders, 52 percent of obligated parents had no additional orders, while 3 percent were custodians on another order, 26 percent were obligated parents on another order, 1 percent were on at least one order as a custodian and at least one order as an obligated parent, and 18 percent of obligated parents had been on another order in which they were the child. Most (56%) of custodians on the order had no other cases; however, 21 percent of custodians were also custodians on another order, 3 percent were obligated parents for another order, 1 percent had other orders for which they were the custodian on one order and the obligated parent on another, and 19 percent were children on another order.

Some the differences between the 2020 sample and 2009 sample are statistically significant. The increase is statistically significant for four groups: more obligated parents with no other DCSS case; more obligated parents who were a child on another DCSS case; more custodial persons with no other DCSS case; and more custodial persons who were a child on another DCSS case. The decrease is statistically significant for these two groups: fewer obligated parents who are an obligated parent on another DCSS case; and fewer custodial person who are a custodial person another DCSS case. In all, these statistics may reflect a reduction in fertility (hence, fewer multiple cases) and increases in multi-generation poverty (hence, more parents being the child of an older child support case).

Amount of Current Support Ordered

Exhibit 5 displays the average and median order amounts from the 2020 and 2009 samples. Among the 2020 sample, the average order amount was $370 per month and the median order amount was $325 per month. This represents a significant increase from the 2010 analysis in which the average order amount was $331 per month and the median was $250 per month. The increase may reflect changes in incomes over time or a change in the guidelines. Minimum wage alone increased between the two sample periods.

Among the 25 percent of the 2020 sample that had orders more than $500, they were further broken down into 21 percent were $501 to $1,000 per month and 4 percent were more than $1,000 per month.

Zero Orders

Since the last case file review was conducted, Illinois changed its child support guidelines. The current guidelines identifies certain conditions where a zero order is appropriate (e.g., the obligated parent is incarcerated). Exhibit 6 shows the guidelines provisions for awarding a zero-order amount.

Exhibit 6: Guidelines Provision for Zero Dollar Orders

Illinois Statutes Chapter 750. Families § 5/505. Child support; contempt; penalties

(3.3b) Zero dollar child support order. For parents with no gross income, who receive only means-tested assistance, or who cannot work due to a medically proven disability, incarceration, or institutionalization, there is a rebuttable presumption that the $40 per month minimum support order is inapplicable and a zero dollar order shall be entered.

Zero orders made up 8 percent of all 2020 orders. The automated system data noted that the obligated parent was incarcerated among 15 percent of the zero orders, and the obligated parent was receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) in 2 percent of the zero orders. Zero orders were more likely to be TANF and foster care cases and less likely to be non-assistance or Medicaid only cases.

Supplemental Security Income among Obligated Parents

Only a few (1%) orders noted that the obligated parent received SSI. Orders in which the obligor was receiving SSI were considerably more likely to be zero orders, involve families enrolled in TANF, and have worse payment outcomes than orders in which the obligor was not receiving SSI. Among obligors receiving SSI, the average and median order amounts were $156 and $166 per month, respectively, and 16 percent were zero orders. Only 54 percent of obligors receiving SSI made any child support payments; on average they paid $59 per month, 36 percent of the total payment due, and made payments for four months. Among those receiving SSI, 30 percent of the custodial families were enrolled in TANF, 24 percent were non-assistance, 19 percent were foster care, and 33 percent were Medicaid only.

Obligors with Incarceration Noted

Incarceration was noted among only 2 percent of obligated parents in the 2020 sample. This may be understated due to data limitations. System interfaces between child support and department of corrections and other databases tracking incarceration can limit knowledge of incarceration to a child support agency. Orders in which the obligated parent was incarcerated were considerably more likely to be zero orders and to have worse payment outcomes than orders in which the obligated parent was not incarcerated. Among orders where the obligated parent was incarcerated, the average and median order amounts were $73 and $142 per month, respectively. Additionally, the majority (62%) of orders that noted incarceration were zero orders. Only 21 percent of incarcerated obligated parents made any payments in the six months that payments were analyzed. They paid an average of 5 percent of the total amount due. Among orders where it was noted that the obligated parent was incarcerated, 24 percent were TANF cases, 16 percent were non-assistance cases, 14 percent were foster care, and 46 percent were Medicaid only.

Medical Support

As shown in Exhibit 7, the Illinois child support guidelines provide for the child's health care needs several different ways.

Exhibit 7: Guidelines Provision for the Child's Health Care Coverage

Illinois Statutes Chapter 750. Families § 5/505. Child support; contempt; penalties

(4)Health Care

- (A) A portion of the basic child support obligation is intended to cover basic ordinary out-of-pocket medical expenses. The court, in its discretion, in addition to the basic child support obligation, shall also provide for the child's current and future medical needs by ordering either or both parents to initiate health insurance coverage for the child through currently effective health insurance policies held by the parent or parents, purchase one or more or all health, dental, or vision insurance policies for the child, or provide for the child's current and future medical needs through some other manner.
- (B) The court, in its discretion, may order either or both parents to contribute to the reasonable health care needs of the child not covered by insurance, including, but not limited to, unreimbursed medical, dental, orthodontic, or vision expenses and any prescription medication for the child not covered under the child's health insurance.
- (C) If neither parent has access to appropriate private health insurance coverage, the court may order:
- (I) one or both parents to provide health insurance coverage at any time it becomes available at a reasonable cost; or
- (II) the parent or non-parent custodian with primary physical responsibility for the child to apply for public health insurance coverage for the child and require either or both parents to pay a reasonable amount of the cost of health insurance for the child. The order may also provide that any time private health insurance coverage is available at a reasonable cost to that party it will be provided instead of cash medical support. As used in this Section, "cash medical support" means an amount ordered to be paid toward the cost of health insurance provided by a public entity or by another person through employment or otherwise or for other medical costs not covered by insurance.

The schedule also includes an amount to cover the child's basic ordinary out-of-pocket medical expenses. At its discretion, the court can also order either or both parents to initiate health insurance coverage for the child or "cash medical support," which is an amount to be paid toward the cost of insurance provided by a public entity or by another person.

Exhibit 8 shows how medical support was ordered among sampled orders. The most common way according to the 2020 sample is for the custodial person to provide healthcare coverage: this occurs in 48 percent of the orders. This may include Medicaid enrollment that could be initiated by the custodial person: the custodial family was enrolled in Medicaid among 16 percent of the orders where healthcare coverage was provided by the custodial persons. The decline in orders for employment-related healthcare (insurance offered by an employer or union) is evident in Exhibit 8: it declined from 29 percent in 2009 to 11 percent in 2020. It may reflect that parents do not have jobs with health benefits or when they do have them, they are not reasonable in cost or accessible to the child. Medical support orders were either not addressed or not ordered in 23 percent of all 2020 orders, and 19 percent of all 2009 orders. This may reflect that the federal Office of Child Support Enforcement backed off from monitoring child medical support shortly after 2010 national healthcare reform to allow for time to implement the changes and assess the impact to child medical support.<sup>20</sup>

Medical support orders were reserved, and the issue withdrawn for 6 percent of the 2020 orders and 22 percent of the 2009 orders. In all, insurance appeared to be ordered and provided in just over 60 percent of all 2020 orders (where the total includes 48 percent where health insurance was provided by the custodial person, 11 percent ordered through employer or union, and 2 percent private policy if unavailable through employer or union). The comparable percentage among the 2009 orders was close to 70 percent (i.e., 19 percent where health insurance was provided by the custodial person, 29 percent where health insurance was ordered through employer or union, and 6 percent where a private policy was ordered if unavailable through employer or union). In 7 percent of 2020 orders, the custodian was ordered to pay premiums, copays, and/or deductibles. Few orders (3% in 2020 and 4% in 2009) provided that both the noncustodial and custodial parties shared in uninsured medical bills.

KIDS also tracked if cash medical support was ordered to be paid and what the amount of cash medical was. Among the 2020 orders, 18 percent had orders for cash medical support. By comparison, only 1 percent of the 2009 orders contained orders for cash medical support. The average amount of cash medical support ordered in 2020 was $69 per month, with a median of $54 per month.

Analysis of Federally Required Fields

Federal regulation (C.F.R. § 302.56(h)(2)) requires the analysis of rates of deviation, application of the low-income adjustment, income imputation, and orders entered by default. This section is broken down into separate discussions for each of these topic areas, and includes an analysis of payments for each topic. KIDS contained explicit fields for tracking deviations and default orders, but did not note if income was imputed to a party or if a low-income adjustment was applied. As will be noted in greater detail, proxies for these fields were created using order amounts and the number of children on the order. As noted previously, there appeared to be data issues within the first six months of the payment period, which were likely due to the COVID-19 pandemic; thus, the analysis of payments was restricted to only the final six months of the payment year. The analysis of payments was further limited to only orders that had any payment amount due in the last six months. Payment outcomes are analyzed by the percentage making any payments, the average monthly amount paid (which is the total amount paid over the six months, divided by six months), the percentage of support that was due that was paid, and the average number of months with payment during the six-month period.

Deviations

Federal regulation requires states to have deviation criteria that is appropriate and just and considers the best interest of the child. The precise criteria are at the discretion of the state. Exhibit 9 shows the Illinois provisions for granting deviations. Deviation data can be recorded in KIDS, but like most state automated systems, the deviation data fields are not always populated. DCSS staff entering the information about the case may not have the record of the deviation from the court proceeding or it may not be obvious in the court order. CPR generally finds that among states that use their system data to analyze deviations, they have significantly lower deviation rates than states that sample from their court records or use other methods.

Exhibit 9: Illinois Guidelines Provision for Deviations<sup>21</sup>

Illinois Statutes Chapter 750. Families § 5/505. Child support; contempt; penalties

(3.4) Deviation factors. In any action to establish or modify child support, whether pursuant to a temporary or final administrative or court order, the child support guidelines shall be used as a rebuttable presumption for the establishment or modification of the amount of child support. The court may deviate from the child support guidelines if the application would be inequitable, unjust, or inappropriate. Any deviation from the guidelines shall be accompanied by written findings by the court specifying the reasons for the deviation and the presumed amount under the child support guidelines without a deviation. These reasons may include:

(A) extraordinary medical expenditures necessary to preserve the life or health of a party or a child of either or both of the parties;

(B) additional expenses incurred for a child subject to the child support order who has special medical, physical, or developmental needs; and

(C) any other factor the court determines should be applied upon a finding that the application of the child support guidelines would be inappropriate, after considering the best interest of the child.

Exhibit 10 displays the deviation rates among orders in both the 2009 and 2020 analyses. As shown, orders with guidelines deviations accounted for only 3 percent of all orders in both the 2020 and 2009 samples. Of those with deviations in the 2020 sample, 84 percent of deviations were downward and 16 percent were upward. This represents a significant increase in downward deviations since the 2009 sample, in which 44 percent of all deviations were upward, and 56 percent were downward.

Exhibit 10: Guidelines Deviation Rates and Reasons for Deviations (% of orders or % of deviations*)

	2020 Orders	2009 Orders

Yes	3%	3%
No	97%	97%

Downward, time children reside with obligor	10%	2%

Upward, financial resources, unspecified	7%	15%
Upward, standard of living of the child	1%	1%

Exhibit 10 also displays the reasons for deviations. As shown, downward deviations due to the financial needs of the obligor was the primary reason for deviation in both samples, making up 74 percent of deviations in the 2020 sample and 54 percent of deviations in the 2009 sample. The use of this deviation criterion may relate to the limited application of the existing low-income adjustment and increased national awareness of the limited ability of low-income parents to pay child support, as well as the negative consequences of requiring support beyond the obligated parent's ability to pay to the family and children.<sup>22</sup> Although Illinois has a low-income adjustment, it is not similar to the self-support reserve (SSR) adjustment common to other states. Instead, the Illinois low-income adjustment is limited to obligated parents with incomes below 75 percent of the federal poverty guidelines (FPG) for one person. This is significantly less than income from even part-time, minimum-wage employment. The more common approach is to ensure that the obligated parent's remaining after-tax income after payment of the guidelines amount is at least equal to the SSR. So, using the 2022 FPG ($1,133 per month), if the SSR was 75 percent of the FPG, the SSR would be $850 per month. Under the SSR-adjustment, an obligated parent with income of $1,000 per month would still be entitled to an adjustment although the obligated parent's income was more than $850 per month. The order amount would never be more than $150 per month, which is the difference between the obligated parent's income and the SSR. In short, the Illinois low-income adjustment is a conversative adjustment relative to those of other states.

The second most common reason for a downward deviation is the amount of time the children reside with the obligated parent. It increased to 10 percent in the 2020 sample, up from just 2 percent in the 2009 sample. As a reminder, this is the percentage among IV-D orders. The percentage may be higher among non-IV-D orders. The guidelines provide for an adjustment for shared physical care, which is

Meanwhile, upwards deviations for the financial needs of the children declined from 28 percent in 2010 to 7 percent in 2020. This may have decreased due to more detailed provisions on how to handle additional child-rearing expenses such as childcare and extracurricular activities. Upwards deviations for other financial resources similarly fell from 15 percent in 2010 to 7 percent in the 2020 sample. Upwards deviations for the standard of living of the child remained at 1 percent across both samples.

Several neighboring states have analyzed case file data to meet the federal requirement. Iowa, Kentucky, and Missouri relied on samples of case files from their automated systems and the deviation fields on those automated systems to determine their respective guidelines deviation rate. For its most recent review, Iowa found that the deviation rate was 3.6 percent.<sup>23</sup> The Kentucky and Missouri studies are unpublished but were conducted by CPR. Their respective deviation rates were 3 and 9 percent for their most recent guidelines reviews. Wisconsin researchers used a different method for their most recently published review.<sup>24</sup> They simulated the guidelines calculation to determine whether the order amount was consistent with the guidelines calculation. Among orders where there was sufficient information to assess the application of the guidelines, they found that 65 percent were consistent with the guidelines calculation. The rate of inconsistency varied by case characteristics. For example, it was higher among shared-placement cases.

Payment Information for Deviations

Exhibit 11 compares the payment outcomes for orders with and without guidelines deviations. As shown, orders with deviations often had better payment outcomes, with 82 percent making any payments, paying an average of $267 per month and 67 percent of the total support due over an average of four months with payments. These were generally better than for orders without deviations, with only 68 percent making any payment, and paying an average of $240 per month, 57 percent of the total support due over an average of three months. The differences do not necessarily reflect cause and effect—that is, payments are better when there is a guidelines deviation. The difference could be because those who plan on paying are more likely to seek a deviation.

Low-Income Adjustment and Minimum Orders

The data extract did not explicitly note if the low-income adjustment was applied. However, the minimum order is a special case of the low-income adjustment. Minimum order amounts can be detected from the case file data. Minimum orders would apply when the difference between the obligated parent's income and 75 percent of the federal poverty guidelines is less than the minimum order. Exhibit 12 shows the Illinois guidelines for establishing minimum child support orders.

Exhibit 12: Illinois Provisions for Minimum Child Support Obligations

Illinois Statutes Chapter 750. Families § 5/505. Child support; contempt; penalties

(3.3a) Minimum child support obligation. There is a rebuttable presumption that a minimum child support obligation of $40 per month, per child, will be entered for an obligor who has actual or imputed gross income at or less than 75% of the most recent United States Department of Health and Human Services Federal Poverty Guidelines for a family of one person, with a maximum total child support obligation for that obligor of $120 per month to be divided equally among all of the obligor's children.

Using the above criteria, Exhibit 13 displays the percentage of orders that are calculated at $40 per child per month, shown by the number of children. As shown, 10 percent of all one-child orders were set at $40 per month, 7 percent of two-child orders were set at $80 per month, and 11 percent of three-child orders were set at $120 per month. Overall, 10 percent of all orders were set at the $40 per child per month amount. This understates the actual percentage of orders where the low-income adjustment was applied because some low-income adjusted orders would be set above the minimum amount.

Exhibit 14 displays the payment outcomes among these orders using the $40 per child per month calculation. As shown, minimum orders generally had worse payment outcomes, with just 46 percent making any payments, paying an average of $26 per month and paying 53 percent of the total due paid over an average of 1.7 months. Most (71%) orders not set at the minimum order amounts made payments, and the average payment per month was $265, and they paid 58 percent of the total amount due over an average of 3.3 months.

Defaults

Default orders generally refer to an order that is entered if a parent does not show up to a hearing or responds to the hearing notice. The KIDS extract contained a field noting if the order was entered by default. The percentage of default orders was 9 percent. This is a low default rate relative to other states. Default orders were slightly more likely to note obligor incarceration, with 3 percent of all default orders noting incarceration, while the incarceration rate of non-default orders was just under 2 percent. Only 38 percent of default orders had income withholding, which is lower than the 55 percent of non-default orders that had income withholding.

The default rate is 9 percent.

Payment outcomes among default orders were worse than for non-default orders. Half of all default orders made any payments. The average monthly payment amount was $90, and they paid an average of 33 percent of the total amount due over an average of 2.0 months. Among orders not entered by default, 70 percent made any payments and made average monthly payments of $256, and paid 60 percent of the total amount due over an average of 3.3 months over the six-month period in which payment data were analyzed. Although lower payment is correlated with default, it does not mean cause and effect. There may be other factors that contribute to both (e.g., obligated parent is not engaged as a parent or not engaged in the legal process).

Income Imputation

When issuing 2016 rule changes, OCSE expressed concerns that low-income parents had incomes imputed beyond what they had the capacity to earn. Like many states, the Illinois data system does not yet contain a variable for tracking if the order was calculated using imputed income. The KIDS extract also did not contain detailed income information for the parties on the order. Without these data points, it can be difficult to determine if an order was calculated using income imputation. In some other states without these variables, analysts look for clustering in the order amounts that might hint at a common income assumption. There was no obvious clustering in the data extract. Another method involves assuming orders reflecting minimum wage incomes are based on imputed income. Across the country, income is often imputed at minimum-wage income when there is no or limited income information. There are several limitations to this proxy: actual income may be minimum wage, income may be imputed at 40-hour work week or another number of hours, there may be other factors considered in the guidelines calculation (e.g., childcare expenses).

Even assuming a 40-hour work week, computing potential minimum wage orders for the sample requires looking at three different minimum wage standards for Illinois during the sample period:

- $8.25 per hour, which was effective throughout 2019;
- $9.25 per hour, which took effect on January 1, 2020; and
- $10.00 per hour, which took effect on July 1, 2020.<sup>25</sup>

Gross income was calculated for each of these hourly wages by assuming 40 hours per week. Net income was then determined using the standardized net income conversion table for the 2020 tax rates. <sup>26</sup> The following reflects the monthly income of obligated and custodial parties, assuming a 40-hour work week at each of the minimum wage assumptions:

- $8.25 per hour amounts to $1,430 in gross income, which is computed to be $1,199 net for the obligor and $1,235 for the custodial party, and which would be $2,434 in combined income.
- $9.25 per hour amounts to gross income of $1,603, which would be $1,313 net for the obligor and $1351 for the custodial party, and which would be $2,664 in combined income.
- Finally, at a $10.00 per hour minimum wage, gross income would be $1,733 monthly, or $1,427 for the obligor and $1,467 for the custodial party, and which would be $2,894 net.

The Illinois income shares schedule<sup>27</sup>was applied to these incomes to determine what the order amounts would be. Exhibit 16 shows the results.

approximate ranges of order amounts reflecting full-time, minimum wage earnings. Using this approximation, 8 percent of all orders fell within the specified ranges. This is low rate of income imputation compared to other states. Exhibit 17 further examines the percentage of orders falling within the estimated imputed income range by the number of children on the order.

Exhibit 18 displays the payment outcomes for orders that appeared to be based on full-time, minimum wage earnings. As shown, orders that fell within the range of estimated imputed income generally had slightly worse payment outcomes in the last six months of the payment year than those that did not fall within this range. Most (64%) of orders that fell within the imputation proxy made any payments. They paid an average of $159 per month, which was 45 percent of the total amount due, and paid an average of 2.8 months. While only a slightly higher percentage of orders (68%) that did not fall within the imputation proxy made any payments, they paid an average of $248 per month, or 58 percent of the total support due, and paid an average of 3.2 months.

Analysis of Payments: Summary and by Other Characteristics

Exhibit 19 displays the average payment outcomes of all orders, as well as for the federally required review fields. In general, only those orders with guidelines deviations had better payment outcomes than the payment outcomes for all orders; the worst payment outcomes were among minimum and default orders. As mentioned earlier, the analysis may not reflect cause and effect. For example, parties requesting deviations may have more ability to pay. Those with minimum orders may not pay because of their low income.

Income Withholding Orders

Over half (54%) of all orders noted income withholding in effect during the last month that payment data were analyzed. The average and median order amounts for orders with effective income withholding orders were $370 and $315 per month, respectively. Nearly all (94%) orders with income withholding made any payments in the last six months that payment data were analyzed. The average amount paid was $363 per month, which was an average of 83 percent of the total support due, and they made payments over an average of four months. These payment outcomes are significantly better than those without income withholding, of which only 30 percent made any payments, paid an average of $66 per month, paid 21 percent of the total due, and paid for an average of one month over the six months that payment data were analyzed.

FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS OF LABOR MARKET DATA

Federal regulation (45 C.F.R. § 302.56(h)(1)) requires the consideration of:

... labor market data (such as unemployment rates, employment rates, hours worked, and earnings) by occupation and skill-level for the State and local job markets, the impact of guidelines policies and amounts on custodial and noncustodial parents who have family incomes below 200 percent of the Federal poverty level, and factors that influence employment rates among noncustodial parents and compliance with child support orders . . . .

The review of labor market data appears to be aimed at informing recommendations for guidelines provisions for income imputation and low-income adjustments. Recent national research found that one-third (35%) of nonresidential parents not living with one or more of their children under age 21 had incomes below 200 percent of poverty.<sup>28</sup> These low-income nonresident parents were more likely to not work full-time and year-round than moderate- and higher-income nonresident parents were. About a quarter (27%) of low-income, nonresidents parents worked full-time year-round, compared to 73 percent of moderate- and higher-income nonresident parents. An examination of labor market data helps inform why this occurs.

Further, one of the new federal requirements centers around considering the actual circumstances of the obligated parent when income imputation is authorized. This includes consideration of the employment opportunities available to the parent given local labor market conditions. Since labor market conditions may change more frequently than every four years, which is the minimum amount of time in which a state's guidelines must be reviewed, it also makes sense to simply adopt the federal language about considering employment opportunities available to a parent given local labor market conditions.

The primary data sources for this section include the Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES)<sup>29</sup> and U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Unemployment and Employment Rates and Labor Force Participation

The official measurement of unemployment, known as U-3, includes "all jobless persons who are available to take a job and have actively sought work in the past four weeks." It is measured as a percentage of those in the civilian labor force, which includes employed and unemployed individuals. To be employed, a person must have worked at least one hour as a paid employee or self-employed or been temporarily absent from their job or business or met other criteria. Actively seeking work means contacting an employer about a job opportunity, submitting a job application or resume, using an employment service, or a similar activity. Persons not in the labor force may not want a job, are not currently available for work, or available for work but have haven't looked in the last four weeks and may be "discouraged worker" (i.e., don't believe a job exists).

As of May 2022, the U.S. unemployment rate (seasonally adjusted) was 3.6 percent while the Illinois unemployment rate was 4.6 percent. The unemployment rate varied by county. Several Illinois counties had unemployment rates below 4.0 percent and a couple even had rates below 3.0 percent (e.g., Brown County's unemployment rate was 2.5% and Washington County's unemployment rate was 2.7%). Four Illinois counties had unemployment rates greater than 8 percent: Alexander County (8.1%), Boone County (8.5%), Pulaski County (8.5%), and Winnebago County (8.3%). As shown in Exhibit 20, several metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs) had unemployment rates above the May 2022 state unseasonably

All May 2022 rates are lower than their April 2020 high, which occurred during the COVID-19 pandemic quarantine. In April 2020, the U.S. seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 14.7 percent and the Illinois unemployment rate was 17.4 percent.

IDES has investigated several labor market issues since the pandemic began. In June 2021, it released a report on the pandemic's impact on Illinois' Economic Development Regions.<sup>33</sup> From April 2019 to April 2020, employment decreased 13.0 percent statewide; three regions—Northern Statewide (15.0%), Southern (14.4%), and Northeast (13.3%)—had larger decreases. These regions also contain the counties that currently have above-average unemployment rates (i.e., Boone County and Winnebago County are in the Northern Statewide region and Alexander County and Pulaski County are in the Southern region). Like most parts of the nation, the most precipitous decreases in Illinois were in the leisure and hospitality, education and health services, and retail trade sectors.

Labor Force Participation

The Illinois civilian labor force consisted of an estimated 6,465,000 workers statewide, as of May 2022.<sup>34</sup> The total included 3,799,800 in the Chicago-Naperville-Arlington Heights Metropolitan Division, which comprises 59 percent of the statewide labor force. The Illinois labor force participation rate was 64.6 percent statewide as of May 2022; it was slightly higher in the Chicago-Naperville-Arlington Heights Metropolitan Division at 65.7 percent. In contrast, the U.S. labor force participation rate was 62.3 percent.<sup>35</sup> Labor force participation generally declined with the pandemic and has recently risen. In the past five years, the highest Illinois labor force participation was 65.1 percent from January through April 2019; the lowest was 62.3 percent in November 2020 and January 2021.

Across the nation, labor force participation rates plummeted at the beginning of the pandemic and have not fully rebounded. A U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics study found that about 7 percent of those not in the labor force nationally as of July 2021 were prevented from looking for work because of the pandemic.<sup>36</sup> Other studies find the rebound rates vary by age. For example, workers of retirement age have not returned to the labor force, but very young workers have.<sup>37</sup> In fact, about half of the decline nationally in the labor force is among workers of 55 years of age.

A Brookings Institute report suggests that women dropped from labor force participation to care for young children during the pandemic.<sup>38</sup> The report found a 6 percent drop in the participation rate among women with young children, while the drop was only 4 percent among women and men without young children. It also found some but a modest association between decreases in female labor force participation and the share of children in virtual or hybrid schooling in a given state. A Federal Reserve study estimates that one-third of the overall decline in the labor force participation rate during the pandemic is attributable to caretaking, but was not always parents caretaking their own minor children.<sup>39</sup>

The relevance to child support is whether these are valid reasons not to impute income to employable parents who are not working. Some state guidelines actually have provisions that address extreme circumstances that share some similarities to the pandemic. For example, the Louisiana guidelines specifically mention that a party temporarily unable to find work or temporarily forced to take a lower-paying job as a direct result of Hurricanes Katrina or Rita shall not be deemed voluntarily unemployed or underemployed. Similarly, "a natural disaster" is one of the circumstances to be considered to ensure that the obligated parent is not denied a means of self-support or a subsistence level in the Indiana guidelines.

Other Unemployment Measures

The unemployment rates above reflect the official unemployment rate (the U-3 measurement), which only measures the total percentage of the civilian labor force that is unemployed. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, however, has developed alternative measures that better reflect all persons who are unemployed, including those who are marginally attached workers (i.e., those who want to work but are discouraged and not looking) and workers employed part-time but who would work full-time if they could. The average Illinois unemployment rate in 2021, according to this measure (called the U-6), is 10.0 percent, while the national rate of 9.4 percent.<sup>42</sup>

Hours Worked and Income Imputation

Hours worked has been used to inform income imputation policies. For example, South Dakota used labor market data on hours worked to reduce the presumption of a 40-hour work week when imputing income that is embedded in its child support guidelines since labor market data indicates South Dakota workers usually work 35 hours per week. In 2021, the average work week in Illinois private industries was 34.6 hours. <sup>43</sup> However, it varied by industry. For example, national data from May 2022 finds that the average is 34.6 hours per week for all total private employees, 30.1 hours per week for those in the retail trade, and 25.9 hours per week for those in the leisure and hospitality industry. Exhibit 21 shows the average hours worked per week for industries in Illinois with over 100,000 employees, as of May 2022, according to IDES.

Factors Affecting Full-Time, Year-Round Work among Low-Wage Earners

There are many factors that contribute to the lack of full-time, year-round work. Some pertain to the employability of a parent, and other factors pertain to the structure of low-wage employment. A national study found that the highest educational attainment of 60 percent of the low-income, nonresident parents was a high school degree or less. 44 Obligated parents also face other barriers to employment. A multisite national evaluation of obligated parents in a work demonstration program provides some insights on this. 45 It found that 64 percent of program participants had at least one employment barrier that made it difficult to find or keep a job. Common employment barriers consisted of problems getting to work (30 percent), criminal records (30 percent), and lack of a steady place to live (20 percent). Other employment barriers noted not having the skills sought by employers, taking care of other family members, health issues, and alcohol or drug problems. Many of the participants also cited mental health issues, but few noted it as being a major barrier to employment.

Low-wage jobs do not always provide consistent hours week to week or an opportunity to work every week of the year. This causes unpredictable and erratic income, which can affect child support compliance. Over half (58 percent) of national workers are paid hourly. <sup>46</sup> As mentioned previously, the usual weekly hours are considerably less in some industries (e.g., leisure and hospitality). A Brookings Institute study defines vulnerable workers as those earning less than median earnings and having no healthcare benefits. <sup>47</sup> Most vulnerable workers are concentrated in the hospitality, retail, and healthcare sectors. There is considerable turnover in some of these industries. For example, the leisure and hospitality industry has an annual quit rate of 55.4 percent and a 21.5 percent annual rate of layoffs and discharges. 48 High levels of turnover contribute to periods of non-work that can depress earnings.

The lack of healthcare benefits also contributes to fewer hours, fewer weeks worked, and voluntary and involuntary employment separations. Only one-third of workers in the lowest 10th percentile of wages have access to paid sick time, compared to 78 percent among all civilian workers. <sup>49</sup> For those with access to paid sick time, the average is eight days per year. Similarly, those in the lowest 10th percentile of wages are less likely to have access to paid vacation time: 40 percent have access, compared to 76 percent of all workers. Those with paid vacation time have an average of 11 days per year. Without paid sick time or vacation time, a worker may terminate employment voluntarily or be involuntary terminated when the worker needs to take time off due to an illness or to attend to personal matters. If a parent without access to paid sick time and paid vacation time did not work for 19 days (which is the sum of the average number of paid sick days and paid vacation days), they would miss about four weeks of work throughout the year.

Another indicator of the economic challenges of low-wage parents is the percentage of households that cannot cover a $400 emergency expense. A Federal Reserve survey finds that 36 percent of households could not cover a $400 emergency expense in 2020. Although the Federal Reserve survey does not specifically address child support debt and considers all households and not just those where a household members owes child support, it is a salient finding when considering low-income obligated parents in a vulnerable labor market where automated child support enforcement actions (e.g., driver's license and professional license suspension) are triggered when child support is 30 days past due. The $400 level in the Federal Reserve study is less than some child support orders.

Non-Managerial and Non-Technical Employment Opportunities

Exhibit 22 shows non-managerial and non-technical jobs in high demand in Illinois in June 2022. It also shows the median wage and entry level wage for that occupation. All of the occupations in high demand pay more than the 2022 state minimum wage of $12.00 per hour—albeit the entry wage for retail salespersons and food preparation workers is not much more: $12.13 and $12.43 per hour, respectively. The number of workweek hours is unknown, but it may be less than 40 hours per week.

Factors that Influence Employment Rates and Compliance

Federal regulation requires the consideration of factors that influence employment rates and compliance. There is some older academic research that finds child support can affect employment among obligated parents. <sup>51</sup> Another study finds some weak association of changes in father's earnings with changes in orders among fathers in couples that had their first child support ordered in 2000.<sup>52</sup> There also are many anecdotes of obligated parents who quit working or turn to unreported employment (also called the underground economy) once wages are garnished for child support.

These studies are of limited value for this analysis because they are dated (hence do not consider today's labor market and child support enforcement practices) and not specific to Illinois. The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on employment may also overshadow other factors. Another issue is that opportunities for income from unreported employment are rapidly changing and even more difficult to research. It is becoming more common to have multiple jobs where one may be unreported employment and the other may be reported employment. Still, more mechanisms are being developed to facilitate the reporting of gig economy jobs (e.g., drivers for ridesharing). The earnings from unreported employment are often sporadic and yield inconsistent earnings. This exacerbates any attempt to study them within a short period.

SECTION 3: COST OF RAISING CHILDREN AND SCHEDULE UPDATE

Child support schedules and formulas are part policy and part economic data. Most state guidelines, including Illinois, rely on a study of child-rearing expenditures as the underlying basis of their child support schedule or formula. Federal regulation (45 C.F.R. § 302.56 (h)(1)) requires states to consider economic data on the cost of raising children as part of a state's child support guidelines review. The existing Illinois schedule relies on a 2010 study of child-rearing expenditures from families surveyed in 2004–2009. The findings from the study were converted into a child support schedule by updating the 2010 study to 2017 price levels, excluding expenditures for the childcare expenses and all out-of-pocket healthcare costs for the child except a nominal amount and making another adjustment to account for some families spending more or less than their after-tax income on average. Childcare expenses and most healthcare expenses are excluded from the schedule because the actual amounts expended for these items are considered on a case-by-case basis in the child support guidelines calculation.

This section documents more current economic studies on the cost of raising children and uses a more current study on child-rearing expenditures to update the Illinois child support schedule. It also documents the major data sources, assumptions, and steps used to develop an updated schedule.

KEY ASSUMPTIONS OF UPDATED SCHEDULE

The key economic data and assumptions underlying the updated schedule are summarized below. Each is discussed in more detail in the next section.

- There are no significant changes in the underlying policy principles and guidelines model—that is, the Illinois guidelines relies and continues to rely on the income shares model.
- The updated schedules are based on the 2021 Betson-Rothbarth (BR) measurements of child-rearing expenditures estimated from families participating in the 2013–2019 Consumer Expenditure (CE) survey. <sup>56</sup> Professor Betson is the economist who developed the measurements using the "Rothbarth" methodology to separate the child's share of expenditures from total household expenditures. The current Illinois schedule is based on an earlier BR study.
- For the purposes of developing a schedule, the BR measurements are updated to October 2022 price levels.
- The schedule does not include childcare expenses; the cost of the child's health insurance premium; and the extraordinary, unreimbursed medical expenses of the child. The guidelines consider the actual amounts expended for these items on a case-by-case basis. Specifically, each parent is responsible for his or her prorated share of actual expenses.

- The BR measurements of child-rearing expenditures are expressed as a percentage of total family expenditures and are converted to net income for guidelines purposes.
- The schedule is based on the average of all expenditures on children from ages 0 through 17 years. There is no adjustment for the child's age.

UNDERLYING DATA AND ASSUMPTIONS USED TO DEVELOP UPDATED SCHEDULE

Besides the economic basis of an updated schedule, there are many other factors considered in the development of a child support schedule:

- 1. The guidelines model is a policy decision that directs what type of economic study of childrearing expenditures to use;
- 2. Which economic study to use;
- 3. Adjust the study results for current price levels since there are lags between when expenditures data are collected and analyzed and available for use;
- 4. Exclude childcare, child's health insurance premium, and extraordinary out-of-pocket medical expenses since the actual amount expended for each of these items is considered on a case-by-case basis; and
- Consider expenditures to net income ratio, which is the first step to converting the BR measurements, that are measured as a percentage of total household expenditures, to grossincome basis because the child support schedule relates to the combined gross income of the parents.

Appendix A provides more detailed technical documentation of how these factors are used to develop an updated schedule. Exhibit 23 compares the key economic data and assumptions underlying the existing schedule to those of the proposed schedule. It also summarizes alternative data and assumptions. Each factor is discussed in more detail following the table.

FACTOR 1: GUIDELINES MODEL

The guidelines model, which is a policy decision, is important to directing what economic data on the cost of raising children to use. The most common principle used for state guidelines models is what University of Wisconsin researchers call the "continuity of expenditures model"—that is, the child support award should allow the children to benefit from the same level of expenditures had the children and both parents lived together.<sup>57</sup> In the income shares guidelines model—which is used by 41 states, &lt;sup>57</sup> Ingrid Rothe & Lawrence Berger. (Apr. 2007). including Illinois—the obligated parent's prorated share of that amount forms the basis of the guidelines-determined amount. Most states that use the percentage-of-obligor income guidelines model use the same economic studies but presume that the custodial parent contributes an equal dollar amount or percentage of income to child-rearing expenditures.

Besides the income shares and the percentage-of-obligor income guidelines model, three states (i.e., Delaware, Hawaii, and Montana) use the Melson formula, which is a hybrid of the income shares approach and the percentage-of-obligor income guidelines. Each of these states prorates a basic level of support to meet the primary needs of the child; then, if the obligated parent has any income remaining after meeting his or her share of the child's primary support, his or her own basic needs, and payroll taxes, an additional percentage of his or her income is added to his or her share of the child's primary support.

Research finds that other factors (e.g., economic basis, whether the schedule has been updated for changes in price levels, and adjustments for low-income parents) affect state differences in guidelines more than the guidelines model. <sup>58</sup> Illinois switched to the income shares model in 2017. All states that have switched guidelines models in the last two decades have switched to the income shares model (i.e., Arkansas, District of Columbia, Georgia, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Tennessee). Common reasons for switching to the income shares model are its perception of equity because it considers each parent's income in the calculation of support and its flexibility to consider individual case circumstances such as extraordinary child-rearing expenses that vary from case to case (e.g., childcare expenses) and timesharing arrangements. Besides the guidelines models in use, there are several other guidelines models not in use that have been proposed in several states. <sup>59</sup> Each have failed for various reasons. In general, there is no overwhelming reason for Illinois to consider switching guidelines models.

FACTOR 2: ECONOMIC STUDY

There are several measurements of child-rearing expenditures that form the basis of state guidelines. The newest Betson-Rothbarth (BR5) clearly emerges as the most appropriate study to use for updating the Illinois schedule. Its underlying data is more current than that of any other study besides the Florida study that is not used by any state. It also uses the same methodology and assumptions as the basis of the existing schedule, which is an earlier Betson-Rothbarth (BR) study. Most states rely on a BR study.

Betson-Rothbarth Studies

When Congress first passed legislation (i.e., the Family Support Act of 1988) requiring presumptive state child support guidelines, it also mandated the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to develop a report analyzing expenditures on children and explain how the analysis could be used to help states develop child support guidelines. This was fulfilled by two reports that were both released in 1990. One was by Professor David Betson, University of Notre Dame. <sup>60</sup> Using five different economic methodologies to measure child-rearing expenditures, Betson concluded that the Rothbarth methodology was the most robust <sup>61</sup> and, hence, recommended that it be used for state guidelines. second study resulting from the Congressional mandate was by Lewin/ICF.<sup>62</sup> It assessed the use of measurements of child-rearing expenditures, including the Betson measurements, for use by state child support guidelines.

The Rothbarth methodology is named after the economist, Irwin Rothbarth, who developed it. It is considered a marginal cost approach—that is, it considers how much more is spent by a couple with children than a childless couple of child-rearing age. To that end, the methodology compares expenditures of two sets of equally well-off families: one with children and one without children. The difference in expenditures between the two sets is deemed to be child-rearing expenditures. The Rothbarth methodology relies on expenditures for adult goods to determine equally well-off families. Through calculus, economists have proven that using expenditures on adult goods understates actual child-rearing expenditures because parents essentially substitute away from adult goods when they have children. In contrast, the Engel methodology, which is also a marginal cost approach but relies on food shares to determine equally well-off families overstates actual child-rearing expenditures because children are relatively food intensive.

At the time of Betson's 1990 study, most states had already adopted guidelines to meet the 1987 federal requirement to have advisory child support guidelines. (The requirement was extended to be rebuttal presumptive guidelines in 1989.) Most states were using older measurements of child-rearing expenditures, <sup>66</sup> but many (including Illinois) began using the Betson-Rothbarth 1990 (BR1) study in the mid- to late 1990s. Subsequently, various states and the University of Wisconsin Institute of Research commissioned updates to the BR study over time. <sup>67</sup>

Although Betson recommended the Rothbarth methodology for state guidelines usage in his 1990 report, another study commissioned by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in 1990 by Lewin/ICF suggested that states assess their guidelines using more than one study since not all economists agree on which methodology best measures actual child-rearing expenditures. <sup>68</sup> For its 1990 report, Lewin/ICF assessed state guidelines by generally examining whether a state's guidelines amount was between the lowest and the highest of credible measurements of child-rearing expenditures. Lewin/ICF used the Rothbarth measurements as the lower bound. Amounts that were above the lowest credible measurement of child-rearing expenditures were deemed as adequate support for children. This also responded to a major concern in the 1980s that state child support guidelines provided inadequate amounts for children.<sup>69</sup> Since then, most states have adapted a BR measurement as the basis of their guidelines schedule or formula.

Most Current BR Measurements and the COVID-19 Pandemic

The most current BR measurements consider expenditure data from 2013–2019, which is before the COVID-19 pandemic began in 2020. The pandemic impacts the economy and expenditures in many ways. The ideal would be to have more current measurements of child-rearing expenditures, but there are several problems with that. One is that the economy and consumption are still changing. Another concerns the underlying data source, the Consumer Expenditure (CE) survey. The CE response rate in 2020, the year the pandemic began, declined.<sup>70</sup> The impact of this decline on survey results is still being assessed.

Using basic economic theory, almost every factor known to affect supply and demand level has changed since the pandemic began. At the microeconomic level (which considers individual goods and services), these factors include changes in price levels, income (including changes caused by government stimulus payments and the temporary increase in the child tax credit),<sup>71</sup> prices of related goods and services, and taste and preferences (e.g., increased demand for at-home entertainment at the beginning of the pandemic); consumers' expectations about the future; the number of buyers; changes in input prices (e.g., availability of semi-conductor chips) and technology (e.g., technology that affects ability to work remotely); suppliers' expectations about the future prices; and the number of sellers.

An example of change in taste and preferences is observed by changes in consumption from the beginning of the pandemic (2020) to when most people became vaccinated and new viral strains were less likely to require hospitalizations (2021–2022) to now. Consumer spending declined for several expenditure categories in 2020 when the pandemic began. At the end of the second quarter of 2020 and over the past year, consumption of food away from home declined by 54 percent, apparel and services declined by 49 percent, entertainment declined by 21 percent, and transportation declined by 19 percent. In the following year (the second quarter of 2020 to the second quarter of 2021), several of these categories rebounded: consumption of food away from home rose 91 percent, apparel and services rose 70 percent, entertainment rose 28 percent, and transportation rose 23 percent.

The changes extend to the macroeconomic model of aggregate demand and aggregate supply that affects overall price levels (in other words, inflation) and the economy's total output of goods and services. The aggregate demand/supply model is affected by interest rates (which are affected by the Federal Reserve's policies) and changes in consumer demand, investment, government purchases (which increased due to stimulus bills), net export (e.g., changes in overseas shipping affected net exports), labor (where labor generally declined as evidenced by the reduction of labor force participation), capital stock, and natural resources (e.g., reduction in oil drilling), and technological knowledge. In general, several of these factors contribute to increased demand, while few of these factors suggest that supply is increasing to offset the pressure that increased demand imposes on prices.

The result is increased price levels—that is, inflation. From March 2020 through May 2022, prices have increased by 14 percent. In the last year, prices have increased 8.6 percent alone. Price changes have not been uniform across all goods and services. For example, although the all-items price index increased 8.6 percent in the last year, the food price index increased 10.1 percent and the energy price index rose 34.6 percent over the same period. In all, price increases generally suggest increases to the schedule are warranted. There are some possible exceptions due to substitution effects. For example, increases to the cost of childcare may cause families to cut back on other child-rearing expenditures. If enough families cut back on other child-rearing expenditures, this could indirectly suggest schedule decreases. This is because the schedule does not consider childcare expenses (rather, the actual cost of childcare is considered on a case-by-case basis) but the schedule does consider other child-rearing expenditures. To date, there is no evidence to suggest that this has indeed occurred, although there is research that suggests that childcare expense have increased substantially since the pandemic began. As an aside, one of the major contributing factors is a shortage of childcare workers.

Inflation can have unequal effects on low and high-income families. Low-income families devote a larger budget share to necessities than higher income families do. They do not have the same ability to cut expenditures on luxury items or dip into savings to offset the rising cost of necessities as higher income families do. Unequal price changes across goods and services may cause changes in the composition of what families consume.

In all, the impact of the pandemic on child-rearing expenditures and a child support schedule is unknown. If only inflation were considered, it would increase, but there are too many factors to consider (e.g., changes in the cost of childcare and the child's healthcare) and changes in income tax rates, which affect spendable income. It is anticipated though that the changes will not be uniform across all incomes and family sizes.

Overview of the Consumer Expenditure (CE) Survey

Each BR study used more current Consumer Expenditure (CE) data. The 1990 study relied on the 1980–1886 CE and the 2021 study relied on the 2013–2019 CE. Conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), the CE is a comprehensive and rigorous survey with over a hundred-year history. Today, the CE surveys about 6,000 households a quarter on hundreds of expenditures items. Households stay in the survey for four quarters, yet households rotate in and out each quarter. The primary purpose of the CE is to calibrate the market basket used to measure changes in price levels over time. Committed to producing data that are of consistently high statistical quality, relevance, and timeliness, the BLS closely monitors and continuously assesses the quality of the CE and makes improvements when appropriate. Some of these improvements have occurred in between BR studies and, hence, can affect differences between BR study years.

The sampling of the CE is not designed to produce state-specific measurements of expenditures.<sup>78</sup> To expand the CE so it could produce state-specific measurements would require a much larger sample and other resources and would take several years. Instead, Betson develops national measurements of childrearing expenditures from the CE. Multiple data years are pooled to obtain an adequate sample size. Betson's sample selection is described more thoroughly his report.

Betson compiles other statistics from the same subset of CE families that he uses to measure child-rearing expenditures. These other statistics are used to develop a child support schedule. This includes the average ratio of expenditures to income, average childcare expenditures, and average healthcare expenses for several income ranges. This additional data is shown and explained in Appendix A.

Changes in the CE

The major change in the CE since the BR4 study was conducted is an improvement to how taxes were measured. In prior surveys, households would self-report taxes. The BLS learned that families underestimated taxes paid, particularly at high incomes; hence, their after-tax income (spendable income) was smaller than measured. Beginning in 2013, the BLS began using their internal tax calculator to calculate each household's taxes. This effectively reduced the after-tax income available for expenditures. Another indirect impact was to the average ratio of expenditures to after-tax income, which is used in the conversion of the measurement of child-rearing expenditures to a child support schedule, increased. (This can be illustrated through Exhibit 24, by assuming a drop in the after-tax income line for the cluster of families to the right that have higher incomes.) This increases the amounts from BR4 to BR5 for high-income families because they pay a larger amount of taxes. Their after-tax income is less; hence, the ratio of expenditures to after-tax income is larger.

Exhibit 24: Relationship between Expenditures and Income

Changes in the BR Measurements over Time

Changes in the Betson-Rothbarth (BR) measurements of child-rearing expenditures over time may reflect actual changes in how much families spend on their children, sampling differences in the different study years, changes in the underlying expenditures data used to develop the measurements, or a combination of these factors. In addition, changes in other factors (e.g., the ratio of expenditures to after-tax income) considered in the conversion of the BR measurements, which are expressed as a percentage of total household expenditures, to a gross income-based schedule may have changed so also affect perceived changes to the BR measurements over time. Understanding the root of the changes is important to Illinois if Illinois updates its schedule using the BR 2021 study.

The two major factors in determining child support are the number of children and the incomes of the parties. Child support schedules provide higher amounts when there are more children because the economic evidence on child-rearing expenditures finds more is spent when there are more children. Further, the economic evidence suggests some economies of scale: expenditures for two children are not twice that of expenditures for one child; rather, they are less than double.

Income follows a similar pattern—that is, economic evidence finds that higher incomes spend more on children and the schedule amounts reflect that. Underlying the premise of most state guidelines is that if the child has a parent living outside the home whose income affords that parent a higher standard of living, that child should share that parent's standard of living. (Obviously, the situation is more complicated in shared physical parenting situations, but that adjustment is layered on to the schedule through a formula that is applied later in the child support calculation.)

Comparisons by Number of Children

The five Betson studies using the Rothbarth methodology were published in 1990,<sup>79</sup> 2000,<sup>80</sup> 2006,<sup>81</sup> 2010,<sup>82</sup> and 2021.<sup>83</sup> Exhibit 25 compares the percentage of total family expenditures devoted to child rearing for the five BR studies where BR1 stands for the first study, BR2 stands for the second study, and so forth. Each study uses more current CE data. Exhibit 25 shows the percentages for one, two, and three children. The sample size of families with four or more children is too small to produce measurements for larger families. Instead, as discussed in Appendix A, equivalence scales are used to adjust the measurements for larger family sizes.

Exhibit 25 shows small variation in the percentage of total expenditures devoted to one child over time. The difference between the lowest and the highest estimate for one child is less than two percentage points. This is less than the standard deviation in the estimates due to sampling variation.

For two and three children, Exhibit 25 shows the percentage of total expenditures devoted to childrearing expenditures increasing slightly over time. However, Betson suggests that expenditures for two and three children should be examined in context of marginal expenditures—that is, starting with expenditures for the first child, how much more was spent for the second child? If the same amount is spent, the marginal increase in expenditures is 100 percent. If the amount is less than 100 percent, there is some economies of scale to having more children. The BR studies find that the marginal increase in expenditures from one to two children is about 40 to 55 percent, depending on the age of the study, and that the marginal increase in expenditures from two to three children is about 15 to 23 percent, depending on the age of the study. Generally, the older studies have smaller marginal increases, while the more recent studies have larger marginal increases. This suggests that the economies of scale of having more children is decreasing slightly. In turn, this suggests slightly larger increases to updated schedule amounts for more children.

Comparisons by Income Ranges

☐ BR4 (2004-09 data)

There are at least two caveats to using Exhibit 25 to imply the impact of using more current BR measurements.

□ BR5 (2013-2019 data)

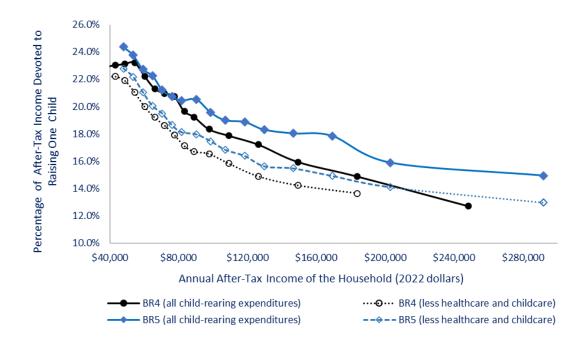

- Exhibit 25 compares the measurements as percentages of total household expenditures. As discussed later, this base—total household expenditures—is converted to after-tax (net) income, then converted to a gross-income basis, which is the foundation of the Illinois child support schedule. As discussed in more detail in Appendix A, they are converted to net income using the average expenditures to net income ratios of the same families from the 2013–2019 CE data that Betson used to prepare his most recent estimates.
- Exhibit 25 compares the measurements for all child-rearing expenditures including expenditures for the child's healthcare expenses and childcare expenses. The current Illinois schedule does not include the cost of the child's health insurance, the child's extraordinary medical expenses (e.g., out-of-pocket expense for an ambulance), or work-related child-care expenses. These expenses are subtracted out of the BR measurements using average expenditures for health care and childcare for the same families from the 2013–2019 CE data. (This is also discussed in Appendix A).

Exhibit 26, Exhibit 27, and Exhibit 28 are better at illustrating the impact of changes over time. Exhibit 26 compares the changes for one child, Exhibit 27 compares the changes for two children, and Exhibit 28 compares the changes for three children. The time periods examined in these exhibits are 2004–2009 (which is the BR4 measurement that forms the basis of the existing schedule) and 2013–2019 (which is the BR5 measurement that forms the basis of the proposed schedule).

Each exhibit compares:

- The percentage of after-tax income devoted to all child-rearing expenditures; and
- The percentage of after-tax income devoted to all child-rearing expenditures less healthcare expenses (except an amount to cover ordinary medical expenses) and childcare expenses.

Exhibit 26: Comparisons of BR Measurements by After-Tax Income for One Child

There are at least three major observations from the exhibits.

- The percentage of net income devoted to child-rearing expenditures decreases with more after-tax income regardless of the age of the underlying data. This is because as net income increases, households on average save more and may spend on others outside the home or make donations. To be clear, the average dollar amount expended on children increases with income, but the average percentage of after net income devoted to child-rearing expenditures decreases.
- Changes are unequal across incomes. The dotted lines are what the schedules are based (i.e., total expenditures less healthcare costs and childcare costs). BR5 is generally higher than BR4, which suggests increases, but the increases are not equal across all incomes.
  - The change in the percentages from BR4 (2004–2009) to BR5 (2013–2019) is not consistent by the number of children and income. This suggests that an across-theboard uniform change regardless of the number of children and income would be inappropriate.

- There is an anomalous decreases or little change at some incomes. This may reflect substitution away from other child-rearing expenses to compensate for the increase in childcare and out-of-pocket medical expenses.
- Changes are unequal across incomes partially due to unequal changes in childcare and the children's healthcare expenses. The percentage expended on the child's healthcare (less ordinary medical expenses) and childcare is depicted by the gap between the line tracking all expenditures (which are solid lines) and the line tracking expenditures less healthcare costs and childcare (which are dotted lines). The gap is generally consistent using the BR4 data (2004–2009) but appears to widen with income for the more current data for the BR5 data (2013–2019). This is most evident in Exhibit 28. that compares the amounts for three children. The BR5 (2013–2019 data) are the lighter shade lines with diamond markers and the BR4 (2004–2009 data) is the black line with circle markers. In short, expenditures for child's healthcare and childcare have increased. The increase is more at middle and higher incomes. Families may face higher out-of-pocket healthcare costs at higher incomes and may reduce their consumption on other items.

Other Economic Studies

Besides the Rothbarth methodology, there are several other economic methodologies used to separate the child's share of expenditures from total household expenditures. Betson assessed four other alternatives, including the USDA methodology, in his 1990 study. He concluded that the Rothbarth methodology produced the most statistically robust estimates and recommended for use in state guidelines. In general, economists do not agree which methodology comes the closest to measuring actual child-rearing expenditures. Most conventional economists, including Betson, believe that the Rothbarth methodology understates actual child-rearing expenditures. Many other studies based on alternative methodologies, however, use older data or are not used by any state as the basis of their guidelines.

Four studies that are frequently mentioned in state guidelines reviews are a the USDA study of child-rearing expenditures in 2015;<sup>85</sup> a 2017 study conducted for California applying the Rothbarth methodology to expenditures data collected in 2000–2015;<sup>86</sup> a 2016 study by Professor Emeritus William Comanor, University of California at Santa Barbara;<sup>87</sup> and a 2021 Florida State University study that used expenditures data collected in 2013–2019.<sup>88</sup> With the exception of the USDA study, none of these studies form the basis of any state's guidelines. The USDA study forms the basis of the upper half of the Maryland guidelines schedule and was used as the basis of the Minnesota guidelines schedule with many adjustments.

USDA Study

The USDA first measures expenditures for seven different categories (i.e., housing, food, transportation, clothing, healthcare, childcare and education, and miscellaneous) and then sums them to arrive at a total measurement of child-rearing expenditures. Some of the methodologies use a pro rata approach, which is believed to overstate child-rearing expenditures. The USDA reports its estimates on an annual basis for one child in a two-child household. The USDA provides measurements for the United States as a whole and as four regions: the South, Midwest, Mid-Atlantic, and West. The USDA also produces measurements for rural areas and single-parent families. These measurements are for the nation as whole and not provided individually by region.

The USDA amounts also vary by age of the child and household income. The most recent USDA measurements are from expenditures data collected in 2011 through 2015. They are shown in Exhibit 29. This is the amount for one child in two-child households. If there is only one child in the household, the USDA found the amounts should be increased by 27 percent. If there are three or more children in the household, the amounts should be adjusted by the number of children multiplied by 76 percent. (These adjustments for less and more children were incorporated into the existing schedule.) The amounts include expenditures for the child's healthcare and childcare expenses.

One salient finding (as shown in Exhibit 29) that is pertinent to addressing concerns about using expenditures data from intact families as the basis of state child support guidelines is that single-parent families with low income and married-couple families with low income devote about the same amount to child-rearing expenditures. It should also be noted that the amounts for middle incomes and high incomes for single-parent families are not separated because they are too few high income, single-parent families from which to produce measurements. More single-parent families with children live in poverty than married-couple families with children. Nonetheless, as shown in Exhibit 30, the USDA amounts are generally more than the BR amounts.

Other Recent Studies

Exhibit 30 also shows some of the results of other recent studies. In 2021, the Florida researchers applied both the Rothbarth and Engel approach to 2013–2019 expenditures data, which is the same data years of the most current BR study. Only a few states still rely on Engel estimates. Most states that previously used Engel estimates have switched to Rothbarth estimates. The Florida researchers reported their estimates as a percentage of consumption (total household expenditures) for five quintiles of income. Using the Rothbarth methodology, they ranged from 21.0 percent to 21.5 percent for one child, 32.9 percent to 33.7 percent for two children, and 40.8 percent to 41.7 percent for three children. Using the Engel methodology, they ranged from 20.4 percent to 22.3 percent for one child, 32.1 percent to 34.7 percent for two children, and 39.8 percent to 41.7 percent for three children. The percentages generally increased with more income.

The 2017 Rodgers study tested the sensitivity of using multiple data years. One reason for this was to capture a variety of economic cycles ranging from boom to recession, particularly the Great Recession that began late 2017 and officially ended in 2019 but had many lingering adverse effects including above-average unemployment rates and depressed incomes. The 2018 Comanor study is criticized for yielding amounts near poverty for all income ranges and not including all child-rearing expenditures (i.e., it does not include entertainment and miscellaneous expenses). It also found no additional out-of-medical expenses for having children. It is not used by any state.

FACTOR 3: ADJUST TO CURRENT PRICE LEVELS

The existing schedule is based on price levels from February 2017. The most current price level data available when this report was written was from October 2022. Prices have increased by 22.3 percent between the two time periods. This does not mean a 22.3 percent increase in the schedule amounts because some of the increase is offset by incomes that have also increased over time.

FACTOR 4: EXCLUDE CHILDCARE EXPENSES AND OUT-OF-POCKET HEALTHCARE COSTS

The measurements of child-rearing expenditures cover all child-rearing expenditures, including childcare expenses and the out-of-pocket healthcare expenses for the child. This includes out-of-pocket insurance premium on behalf of the child and out-of-pocket extraordinary, unreimbursed medical expenses such as deductibles. These expenses are widely variable among cases (e.g., childcare expenses for an infant are high, and there is no need for childcare for a teenager). Instead of putting them in the schedule, the actual amounts of the expenses are or can be addressed on a case-by-case basis within the guidelines. To avoid double-accounting in the schedule, these expenses are subtracted from the measurements

The third quintile is used for the average in the Florida studies because they do not report an average. Rather, they report quintiles. The third is the midpoint.

when developing the existing and updated schedules. Appendix A provides the technical details on how this is done.

Inclusion of $250 per Child per Year for Out-of-Pocket Medical Expenses

There is an exception to excluding the child's healthcare expenses from the schedule. An amount to cover ordinary, out-of-pocket healthcare expenses (e.g., aspirin and copays for well visits) was retained in both the existing and updated schedules. The current schedule assumes up to $250 per child per year for ordinary, out-of-pocket healthcare expenses. That assumption is retained for the proposed, updated schedule because the average is still near $250 per child per year. The concern, however, is the amount varies significantly among those with Medicaid and those with private insurance, particularly with high deductibles. The 2015 Medical Expenditure Panel Survey (MEPS) finds that the average out-of-pocket medical expense per child was $248 per year but varied depending on whether the child was enrolled in public insurance such as Medicaid or had private insurance. Based on MEPS data, out-of-pocket medical expenses averaged $63 per child per year for children who had public insurance and $388 per child per year for those with private insurance. "The 2017 MEPS data, which is the most current available, has not drilled down to the public insurance and private insurance level, but they do report an average for all children, $271 per child, which is close to the $250 level.

Some states are responding to the disparity in out-of-pocket expenses between those with public insurance and those with private insurance in two ways. One way is to include no ordinary out-of-pocket medical expenses (e.g., Connecticut and Virginia) in their schedules. This would reduce the schedule amounts. This means parents must share receipts for all out-of-pocket medical expenses, not just those exceeding $250 per child per year. The major pro of this approach is it more accurate. The major cons are that it requires more information sharing and coordination between the parties and that the burden falls on the parent incurring the expense. The parent incurring the expense must save receipts, notify the other parent, and initiate an enforcement action if the other party fails to pay his or her share. In addition to including no ordinary, out-of-pocket medical expenses in the schedules, Michigan and Ohio take the method one step further. Not only do they exclude all healthcare expenses from the schedule, but they provide a standardized amount of out-of-pocket medical expenses that is added in the worksheet as a line item similar to the add-on for childcare expenses. That amount can vary depending on whether the insurance is private insurance or Medicaid enrollment.

Exhibit 31 illustrates how this works in Ohio, which uses annual income. The pros to this approach are that it can better address the out-of-pocket healthcare expenses and does not require a change in the schedules to update the standardized amount for out-of-pocket medical expenses. The cons are that it makes the calculation more cumbersome and requires knowledge of whether the children are enrolled in Medicaid (which may change frequently).

Although there are some concerns about the treatment of healthcare expenses, no alternative has emerged as clearly superior and more appropriate than the current approach.

FACTOR 5: CONVERSION OF EXPENDITURES TO AFTER-TAX INCOME

The need for this conversion is illustrated by Exhibit 24 that shows some families spend more or less than their income. As stated earlier, Betson reports the measurements of child-rearing expenditures as a percentage of total expenditures. Thus, they must be converted from a percentage of total expenditures to a net-income basis because the child support schedule relates to net income.

The conversion was done by taking the expenditures-to-income ratio for the same subset of CE families used to develop the measurements of child-rearing expenditures for both the existing and proposed child support schedules. The ratios from the most recent BR5 study are shown in Appendix A, as well as an example of how the conversion is made. An exception is made at lower incomes, because as shown in Exhibit 24, they spend more than their after-tax income on average.

This conversion method is common among most income shares guidelines. The only known exception is that the District of Columbia assumes that all after-tax income is spent, and hence, makes no adjustment. (This results in larger schedule amounts that become progressively larger as income increases.) There is no compelling reason for Illinois to adapt the District of Columbia approach.

FACTOR 6: EXTEND TO HIGHER INCOMES

Both the economic studies from 2010 and 2021 cover expenditures on children up to incomes of about $25,000 net per month. There are too few families with incomes above that to produce reliable estimates. For the existing schedule, the data from lower incomes was used to estimate schedule amounts through $30,000 net per year. The advisory committee favored not making a similar extraction for the updated schedule; rather, it favored just extending the schedule to the highest income for which the data were reliable, which was about $25,000 net per month.

SECTION 4: IMPACT OF UPDATING THE SCHEDULE

This section considers the impact of updating the child support schedule. It uses case scenarios to examine the impact of updating the schedule. Appendix B provides side-by-side comparisons of the existing and proposed schedules.

Exhibit 32 shows the average and median change for combined monthly incomes below $7,500 net; Exhibit 33 show the same statistics for incomes between $7,501 through $15,000 net; and Exhibit 34 shows the same statistics for incomes more than $15,000 net. For the lowest income range, the average increase is modest: 5 percent to 6 percent depending on the number of children. The average increase is more for the middle-income range (Exhibit 33): 6 percent to 11 percent, depending on the number of children. The average increase is significantly more for the highest income range: 17 percent to 22 percent, depending on the number of children. The new economic study on child-rearing expenditures indicates that higher income families spend more. Inflation also affects higher incomes more because they make more expenditures.

COMPARISONS OF CASE SCENARIOS

Exhibit 35 shows the case scenarios examined. The first scenario assumes minimum wage earnings at a 40-hour work week. The 2022 minimum wage is $12.00 per hour and increases to $13.00 per hour in 2023. The median earnings of Illinois workers by highest educational attainment and gender are the basis of case scenarios 2–6. Earnings are reported for five levels of educational attainment and gender for Illinois workers by the U.S. Census 2020 American Community Survey. Male median earnings are used as the incomes of the obligated parent in the scenarios, and female median earnings are used for the receiving party's income. The last scenario considers a scenario where both parents have high incomes. There are no adjustments to base support or deductions from income for special factors such as the cost of the child's health insurance premium or substantial shared physical custody.

The comparisons also consider the guidelines of neighboring states. Exhibit 36 compares the guidelines basis of Illinois to that of nearby states and other state characteristics. All the states shown in the exhibit rely on the income shares model except Wisconsin which relies on a percentage of obligor income (i.e., 17% of gross income for one child and 25% of gross income for two children with smaller amounts at very low income and very high incomes). The comparisons also consider the USDA study updated to 2022 price levels and adjusted to exclude childcare expenses and extraordinary, out-of-pocket healthcare expenses for the child to be comparable to the Illinois schedule.

Exhibit 37, Exhibit 38, and Exhibit 39 compare scenarios 1–4 for one, two, and three children, respectively. Exhibit 40, Exhibit 41, and Exhibit 42 compare scenarios 5–7 for one, two, and three children.

The general findings are summarized below.

- The increase from the existing schedule to the updated schedule is never more than $100 per month for one child. (The case file data found that 70 percent of orders cover one child.)
- The increase from the existing schedule to the updated schedule is more for more children. With that said, only 8 percent of cases have three or more children.
- The increase from the existing schedule to the updated schedule generally increases with more income. For three children, the scenario involving a combined income of $25,000 gross per month suggests a $375 per month increase. This is the largest increase of any case scenario. It is also the least likely case scenario.
- The updated Illinois schedule yields amount higher than all neighboring income shares guidelines. This is due to high inflation since 2020, which is the last year that any of the neighboring income shares updated.
- The Wisconsin guidelines yields amounts higher than any state at very high income. This is common among percentage-of-income guidelines.
- The USDA yields amounts higher than most states. This is because the USDA is generally a higher estimate of child-rearing expenditures. There is also USDA amount provided for Scenario
   This is because the USDA does not provide sufficient information to estimate child-rearing expenditures beyond about $18,000 gross per year.

SECTION 5: SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

Illinois is reviewing its child support guidelines. This report fulfills federal data requirements of a state guidelines review. This includes the examination of case file data, labor market data, and economic data on the cost of raising children.

FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS CASE FILE DATA

Case file data were analyzed to fulfill federal requirements, specifically the analysis of guidelines deviations; child support payments; and rates of income imputation, default, and application of the low-income adjustment. The federal objective is for states to use the data to inform guidelines recommendations that limit guidelines deviations, income imputation, and defaults; and to set appropriate low-income adjustments. Federal rule changes in 2016 recognize the overuse of income imputation to low-income payer-parents, and that setting order amounts that consider the specific circumstances of payer-parents with limited ability to pay were more likely to be paid in full, timely, and have other positive outcomes.

The Illinois Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) provided an extract of recently established orders from its automated system to fulfill the federal requirements. The analysis of the case file data revealed a deviation rate of 3 percent. This rate was less or comparable to the deviation rates of neighboring states. Most Illinois deviations were downward and due to the financial resources and needs of the payer-parent.

A small percentage (9%) of analyzed orders were set by default. This is a low rate compared to other states. Still, only half of orders set by default had payments, while 70 percent of orders set by consent or hearing had payment. Another payment metric is percentage of current support paid. The average percentage of current support paid was 33 percent among default orders and 60 percent among those set by consent or hearing.

Although the DCSS automated system does not track income imputation and application of the low-income adjustment directly, proxies were developed. The rate of income imputation was estimated by identifying the percentage of analyzed orders set at amounts equivalent to the guidelines amounts for minimum wage earners. (Other states use this estimation methodology because income imputation at full-time minimum wage is common across the nation.) This yielded an estimated income imputation rate of 8 percent. This is low compared to other states. Payment outcomes were slightly worse among those estimated to have had income imputed compared to those that did not. For example, only 45 percent of current support due was paid among those estimated to have had income imputed, while those that did not paid 58 percent of current support due.

The minimum order ($40 per child) was used as a proxy for application of the low-income adjustment: 10 percent of analyzed orders were set at the minimum order. This is likely to understate the application of the low-income adjustment because the low-income adjustment could also result in an order above the minimum amount. Generally, minimum orders have poorer payments than all analyzed orders. For example, only 46 percent of minimum orders had any payments, while 71 percent of orders that were not based on the minimum order had payments. Undoubtedly, this reflects the lower income of those eligible for the minimum order.

FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS OF LABOR MARKET DATA

Federal regulation requires the analysis of labor market data. The intent is to gather information about the employability of low-skilled workers within a state to help inform income imputation provisions and the low-income adjustment. In most states, many parents with government child support cases have barriers to employment and earnings including limited job skills, low educational attainment, history of incarceration, and other barriers.

Although state data are not available, national data finds that 35 percent of parents not living with at least one of their children have incomes below 200 percent of poverty, almost half have a high school degree or less, and they are less likely to work full-time and year-round. Labor market data reveals that many low-skilled and low-paying jobs do not offer a 40-hour work week or an opportunity for paid work each week of the year. The average number of hours worked per week in Illinois is 34.6 hours per week. The average hours worked is significantly less in some industries particularly those paying low wages (e.g., the average hours worked per week in Illinois retail trade was 29.4 hours per week). Exacerbating the issue is that employment opportunities in Illinois are more limited than they are in the U.S. as a whole. This is evident by Illinois's higher unemployment rate, which was 4.5 percent in May 2022, while it was 3.6 percent for the nation as a whole in May 2022.

FINDINGS FROM THE ANALYSIS OF ECONOMIC DATA AND SCHEDULE UPDATE

This report reviews the economic data on the cost of raising children and uses more current data to prepare an updated child support schedule. The update also considers recent inflation. Price levels have increased 22.3 percent since the existing schedule was developed and October 2022, which is the most recent data available when this report was written.

The updated schedule produces increases that vary with income and the number of children. The increases become larger with more income. At combined incomes below $7,500 net per month, the average increase is 8 to 10 percent depending on the number of children. For combined income between $7,500 to $15,000 net per month, the average increase is 6 to 11 percent. For combined incomes above $15,000 net per month, the average increase is 17 to 22 percent.

CONCLUSION

Updating the schedule is appropriate given recent inflation changes and better and more current economic data on the cost of raising children.

APPENDIX A: TECHNICAL DOCUMENTATION OF THE UPDATED SCHEDULE

There are several technical considerations and steps taken to update a child support schedule. Exhibit A-1 shows the national data that Betson provided CPR to convert the BR5 measurements to a child support schedule that is adjusted for Illinois.

Overview of Income Ranges

For Exhibit A-1, which considers national data, Betson provided CPR with information for 25 income ranges that were generally income intervals of $5,000 to $20,000 per year. CPR collapsed a few of them to average out some anomalies (e.g., a spike in the percentage of total expenditures devoted to child-rearing expenditures once childcare and extraordinary medical expenses were excluded from a particular income range). The collapsing resulted in the 20 income ranges shown in Exhibit A-1.

DETAILED STEPS USED TO ARRIVE AT SCHEDULE

The steps used to convert the information from Exhibit A-1 to the updated schedules are generally the same steps used to develop the existing schedule.

The steps are presented in the order they occur, not in the order of the factors discussed in Section 2.

The steps consist of:

- Step 1: Exclude childcare expenses;
- Step 2: Exclude child's healthcare expenses except up to the first $250 per year per child that is used to cover ordinary, out-of-pocket medical expenses for the child;
- Step 3: Adjust for ratio of expenditures to after-tax income;
- Step 4: Update for current price levels;
- Step 5: Develop marginal percentages; and
- Step 6: Extend measurements to four and more children.

Step 1: Exclude Childcare Expenses

Childcare expenses are excluded because the actual amount of work-related childcare expenses is considered in the guidelines calculation on a case-by-case basis. The actual amount is considered because of the large variation in childcare expenses: the childcare expense is none for some children (e.g., older children) and substantial for others (e.g., infants in center-based care). Not to exclude them from the schedule and to include the actual amount in the guidelines calculation (typically as a line item in the worksheet) would be double-accounting.

Starting with the expenditures on children, which is shown in fourth column of Exhibit A-1, average childcare expenses are subtracted from the percentage of total income devoted to child-rearing. For example, at combined incomes of $60,000 to $64,999 per year, 37.945 percent of total expenditures is devoted to child-rearing expenditures for two children. Childcare comprises 0.776 percent of total expenditures per child. The percentage may appear small compared to the cost of childcare, but it reflects the average across all children regardless of whether they incur childcare expenses. Childcare expenses may not incur because the children are older, a relative provides childcare at no expense, or another situation.

The percentage of total expenditures devoted to childcare is multiplied by the number of children (e.g., 0.776 multiplied by children is 1.552%). Continuing with the example of a combined income of $60,000 to $64,999 net per year, 1.552 percent is subtracted from 37.945 percent. The remainder, 36.393 percent (37.945 minus 1.552 equals 36.393) is the adjusted percentage devoted to child-rearing expenditures for two children that excludes childcare expenses.

One limitation is that the CE does not discern between work-related childcare expenses and childcare expenses the parents incurred due to entertainment (e.g., they incurred childcare expenses when they went out to dinner). This means that work-related childcare expenses may be slightly overstated. In turn, this would understate the schedule amounts. Similarly, if there are economies to scale for childcare, multiplying the number of children by the percentage per child would overstate actual childcare expenses. When subtracted from the schedule, this would reduce the schedule too much. However, due to the small percentage devoted to childcare expenses, any understatement is likely to be small.

Step 2: Exclude Medical Expenses

A similar adjustment is made for the child's medical expenses except an additional step is taken. Exhibit A-1 shows the excess medical percentage, which is defined as the cost of health insurance and out-of-pocket medical expenses exceeding $250 per person per year. It is shown two ways: the per-capita amount and the average amount for the entire household. Either way considers expenditures on the two adults in the household. It is adjusted to a per-child amount since medical expenses of children are less. The underlying data do not track whether the insurance premium or medical expense was made for an adult's or a child's healthcare needs.

Based on the 2017 National Medical Expenditure survey, the annual out-of-pocket medical expense per child is $270, while it is $615 for an adult between the ages of 18 and 64.<sup>94</sup> In other words, an adult's out-of-medical expenses is 2.28 more than a child's. This information is used to recalibrate the perperson excessive medical amount shown in Exhibit A-1 to a per-child amount. For example, at combined incomes of $60,000 to $64,999 per year, the total excess medical expense is 7.474 percent. The adjusted child amount is 7.474 divided by the weighted amounts for family members (6.1684 based on 2.28 times two adults plus the average number of children for this income range, 1.6084). The quotient, 1.212 percent, is the per-child amount for excess medical. It is less than the per-capita amount of 2.071 percent.

Continuing from the example in Step 1, where 36.393 is the percentage that excludes childcare for two children at a combined income of $60,000 to $64,999 per year, 1.212 multiplied by two children is subtracted to exclude the children's excessive medical expenses. This leaves 33.969 as the percentage of total expenditures devoted to raising two children, less childcare expenses and excess medical expenses.

Step 3: Convert to After-Tax Income

The next step is to convert the percentage from above to an after-tax income by multiplying it by expenditures to after-tax income ratios. Continuing using the example of combined income of $60,000 to $64,999 per year, the ratio is 86.130. When multiplied by 33.969, this yields 29.257 percent of after-tax income being the percentage of after-tax income devoted to raising two children, excluding their childcare and excess medical expenses.

Step 4: Adjust to Current Price Levels

The amounts in Exhibit A-1 are based on May 2020 price levels. They are converted to October 2022 price levels using changes to the Consumer Price Index (CPI-U), which is the most used price index. <sup>95</sup> The adjustment is applied to the midpoint of each after-tax income range. Exhibit A-2 shows the midpoint in January 2022 dollars.

$200,000 or more	$283,881	12.968%		19.046%		22.187%

Step 5: Develop Marginal Percentages

In this step, the information from the previous steps is used to compute a tax schedule-like schedule of proportions for one, two, and three children that is shown in Exhibit A-4. The percentages from above (e.g., 29.257 percent for two children for the combined income of $60,000 to $64,999 per year in 2020 dollars) are assigned to the midpoint of that income range adjusted for inflation ($68,534 in 2022 dollars). Marginal percentages are created by interpolating between income ranges. For the highest income range, the midpoint was supplied by Betson: $258,887 per year in May 2020 dollars.

Another adjustment was made at low incomes. The percentages for incomes below $30,000 net per year were less than the amounts for the net income range $30,000 to $34,999 per year. This is an artificial result caused by the cap on expenditures in Step 3 because families of this income range spend more than their after-tax income, on average. Decreasing percentages result in a smooth decrease when the parent receiving support has more income. This is the general result of the steps so far. The exception is at low incomes because of the cap. Without the cap, it will also produce decreasing percentages. For the purposes of the child support schedule, the percentage from the $30,000 to $34,999 are applied to all incomes less than $30,000 per year. For one child, the percentages are actually from the $35,000 to $39,999 income range. To be clear, this is still less than what families of this income range actually spend on children.

Step 6: Extend to More Children

Most of the measurements only cover one, two, and three children. The number of families in the CE with four or more children is insufficient to produce reliable estimates. For many child support guidelines, the National Research Council's (NRC) equivalence scale, as shown below, is used to extend the three-child estimate to four and more children:<sup>96</sup>

=  $(number of adults + 0.7 \times number of children)^{0.7}$

Application of the equivalence scale implies that expenditures on four children are 11.7 percent more than the expenditures for three children, expenditures on five children are 10.0 percent more than the expenditures for four children, and expenditures on six children are 8.7 percent more than the expenditures for five children.

CONSUMER EXPENDITURE DATA

Most studies of child-rearing expenditures, including the BR measurements, draw on expenditures data collected from families participating in the Consumers Expenditures Survey (CE) that is administered by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Economists use the CE because it is the most comprehensive and detailed survey conducted on household expenditures and consists of a large sample. The CE surveys about 7,000 households per quarter on expenditures, income, and household characteristics (e.g., family size). Households remain in the survey for four consecutive quarters, with households rotating in and out each quarter. Most economists, including Betson, use three or four quarters of expenditures data for a surveyed family. This means that family expenditures are averaged for about a year rather than over a quarter, which may not be as reflective of typical family expenditures.

In all, the BR5 study relies on expenditures/outlays data from almost 14,000 households, in which over half had a minor child present in the household. The subset of CE households considered for the BR5 measurements used to develop the existing updated schedule consisted of married couples of child-rearing age with no other adults living in the household (e.g., grandparents), households with no change in family size or composition during the survey period, and households with at least three completed interviews. Other family types were considered, which also changed the sample size, but the percentage of child-rearing expenditures in these alternative assumptions did not significantly change the percentage of expenditures devoted to child-rearing expenditures. The other family types included in these expanded samples were households with adult children living with them and domestic partners with children.

The CES asks households about expenditures on over 100 detailed items. Exhibit A-4 shows the major categories of expenditures captured by the CE. It includes the purchase price and sales tax on all goods purchased within the survey period. In recent years, the CE has added another measure of expenditures called "outlays." The key difference is that outlays essentially include installment plans on purchases, mortgage principal payments, and payments on home equity loans, while expenditures do not. To illustrate the difference, consider a family who purchases a home theater system during the survey period, puts nothing down, and pays for the home theater system through 36 months of installment payments. The expenditures measure would capture the total purchase price of the home theater system. The outlays measure would only capture the installment payments made in the survey period.

Exhibit A-4: Part	ial List of Expenditure Items Considered in the Consumer Expenditure Survey
Housing	Rent paid for dwellings, rent received as pay, parking fees, maintenance, and other expenses for rented dwellings; interest and principal payments on mortgages, interest and principal payments on home equity loans and lines of credit, property taxes and insurance, refinancing and prepayment charges, ground rent, expenses for property management and security, homeowners' insurance, fire insurance and extended coverage, expenses for repairs and maintenance contracted out, and expenses of materials for owner-performed repairs and maintenance for dwellings used or maintained by the consumer unit. Also includes utilities, cleaning supplies, household textiles, furniture, major and small appliances, and other miscellaneous household equipment (tools, plants, decorative items).
Food	Food at home purchased at grocery or other food stores, as well as meals, including tips, purchased away from home (e.g., full-service and fast-food restaurant, vending machines).
Transportation	Vehicle finance charges, gasoline and motor oil, maintenance and repairs, vehicle insurance, public transportation, leases, parking fees, and other transportation expenditures.
Entertainment	Admission to sporting events, movies, concerts, health clubs, recreational lessons, television/radio/sound equipment, pets, toys, hobbies, and other entertainment equipment and services.
Apparel	Apparel, footwear, uniforms, diapers, alterations and repairs, dry cleaning, sent-out laundry, watches, and jewelry.
Other	Personal care products, reading materials, education fees, banking fees, interest paid on lines of credit, and other expenses.

The BLS designed the CE to produce a nationally representative sample and samples representative of the four regions (Midwest, Northeast, South, and West). The sample sizes for each state, however, are not large enough to estimate child-rearing costs for families within a state. We know of no state that has seriously contemplated conducting a survey similar to the CE at a state level. The costs and time requirements would be prohibitive.

Outlays include mortgage principal payments, payments on second mortgages, and home equity payments, which is what the 2020 Betson-Rothbarth (BR) measurement considers. As explained in Section 3, this is a change from BR measurements underlying the existing schedule. The CE traditional measure of expenditures does not consider these outlays. The merit of using expenditures, which does not include mortgage principal payments, is that any equity in the home should be considered part of the property settlement and not part of the child support payments. The limitations are that not all families have substantial equity in their homes and some families have second mortgages or home equity loans that further reduce home equity. The merit of using outlays is that it is more in line with family budgeting on a monthly basis in that it considers the entire mortgage payment including the amounts paid toward both interest and principal, and the amount paid toward a second mortgage or home equity loan if there is such a payment. Both measures include payment of the mortgage interest, rent among households dwelling in apartments, utilities, property taxes, and other housing expenses as indicated in the above schedule. Housing-related items, which are identified in Exhibit A-5, comprise the largest share of total family expenditures. Housing expenses compose about 40 percent of total family expenditures.

Transportation expenses account for about one-sixth of total family expenditures. In the category of "transportation," the CES includes net vehicle outlays; vehicle finance charges; gasoline and motor oil; maintenance and repairs; vehicle insurance; public transportation expenses; and vehicle rentals, leases, licenses, and other charges. The net vehicle outlay is the purchase price of a vehicle less the trade-in value. Net vehicle outlays account for just over one-third of all transportation expenses. Net vehicle outlays are an important consideration when measuring child-rearing expenditures because the family's use of the vehicle is often longer than the survey period. In Betson's first three studies, he excluded them because in his earlier estimates that consider expenditures the vehicle can be sold again later, after the survey period. In contrast, Betson's 2020 estimates that consider outlays capture vehicle payments made over the survey period. The USDA, which relies on expenditures, includes all transportation expenses including net vehicle outlays. There are some advantages and disadvantages to each approach. Excluding it makes sense when the vehicle may be part of the property settlement in a divorce. An alternative to that would be to include a value that reflects depreciation of the vehicle over time, but that information is not available. Including the entire net vehicle outlay when expenditures are used as the basis of the estimate likely overstates depreciation. When the basis of the estimates is outlays, it includes only vehicle installment payments rather than net vehicle outlays. This effectively avoids the issues of vehicle equity and depreciation.

Betson excludes some expenditure items captured by the CE because they are obviously not child-rearing expenses. Specifically, he excludes contributions by family members to Social Security and private pension plans, and cash contributions made to members outside the surveyed household. The USDA also excludes these expenses from its estimates of child-rearing expenditures.

Gross and net incomes are reported by families participating in the CE. The difference between gross and net income is taxes. In fact, the CE uses the terms "income before taxes" and "income after taxes" instead of gross and net income. Income before taxes is the total money earnings and selected money receipts. It includes wages and salary, self-employment income, Social Security benefits, pension income, rental income, unemployment compensation, workers' compensation, veterans' benefits, public assistance, and other sources of income. Income and taxes are based on self-reports and not checked against actual records.

The BLS has concerns that income may be underreported in the CE. Although underreporting of income is a problem inherent to surveys, the BLS is particularly concerned because expenditures exceed income among low-income households participating in the CE. The BLS does not know whether the cause is underreporting of income or that low-income households are actually spending more than their incomes because of an unemployment spell, the primary earner is a student, or the household is otherwise withdrawing from its savings. To improve income information, the BLS added and revised income questions in 2001. The new questions impute income based on a relationship to its expenditures when households do not report income. The 2010 and 2020 Betson-Rothbarth measurements rely on these new questions. Previous Betson measurements do not.

The BLS also had concerns with taxes being underreported. Beginning in 2013, the BLS began calculating taxes for families using a tax calculator, rather than relying self-reported amounts. This also affected differences between the BR5 measurements and earlier measurements.

The BLS also does not include changes in net assets or liabilities as income or expenditures. In all, the BLS makes it clear that reconciling differences between income and expenditures and precisely measuring income are not parts of the core mission of the CES. Rather, the core mission is to measure and track expenditures. The BLS recognizes that at some low-income levels the CES shows that total expenditures exceed after-tax incomes, and that at very high incomes the CES shows total expenditures are considerably less than after-tax incomes. However, the changes to the income measure, the use of outlays rather than expenditures, and use of the tax calculator have lessened some of these issues.

Dear Community Partner:

On behalf of The Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services, Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) and the Illinois Child Support Advisory Committee (CSAC) members, we are asking for your assistance in reaching out to the community you serve to provide feedback regarding changes in the child support guidelines.

On July 1, 2017, Public Act 100-15 was enacted, which changed the calculation of child support to an income shares model. Previously, Illinois used a percentage of obligor income model. The reason the income shares model was adopted was to more fairly allocate financial obligations between parents for the benefit of their children. The Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) is preparing for its four-year review of the Illinois child support guidelines, which is mandated by federal law. The purpose of the review is to evaluate the effectiveness and fairness of the child support guidelines.

Community input in the evaluation process is essential to address any gaps or challenges the guidelines might create for parents and their children. To accomplish this, we need your assistance in reaching out to your community base. DCSS and CSAC will be hosting Virtual Town Hall meetings to obtain community input throughout the State.

As a partner with Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS), Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS), Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence (ICADV), we are asking your organization to please assist in any or all the following:

- 1. Share information using email, your social media, and by word-of mouth with your customer base.
- 2. Share your location as a place where internet access can be offered to customers in your service areas without WIFI/Internet access.
- 3. Share the Virtual Town Hall information contained in the enclosed flier with your partners.

Community involvement is essential to good governmental practices and policies. Helping to obtain community input will strengthen the families and communities that we all serve. If you are interested in partnering with us on these efforts, please contact us at HFS.DCSSGuidelines@illinois.gov. We thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully yours,

Thank you!

Join us for a Virtual Town Hall to talk about how child support works in Illinois. The Illinois Division of Child Support Services, and the Illinois Child Support Advisory Committee is preparing for its four-year review of the Illinois child support guidelines. Your input is essential. Virtual Town Halls are to be held each Wednesday from 7-8:30pm, now through June 22, 2022.

Topics scheduled to be discussed include:

What are the child support guidelines in Illinois?
What are basic family needs?
How do the child support guidelines work in a blended household?
What is shared physical care?
What other factors should the courts consider when addressing support?
Who is responsible for health care?
What are child support modification options for incarcerated parents?
When does child support stop?

Unfortunately, during the Town Halls, we will not be able to address any case specific questions. If you have case specific questions, visit our new Contact Us page for options to connect with the Division of Child Support Services staff directly.

There is one more way to let your voice be heard. Please consider taking our short survey. The survey results will serve as our measurement in implementing future improvements to enhance Division of Child Support Services efforts.

Please join us, and let your voice be heard!

Kind regards,

Q7 Household income?

Answered: 611 Skipped: 3

Q8 How should support be addressed with an incarcerated individual?

Q9 Upon release of the incarcerated individual, how should support be addressed?

Q10 Upon release of the incarcerated individual, who should be responsible for taking the action to continue with previous set amount or set a new order?

#	OTHER (PLEASE SPECIFY)	DATE
1	all three parent paying, parent receiving and HFS	6/8/2022 7:25 PM
2	I don't believe the previous order should apply because more than likely a person won't have the same job they had before previously being incarcerated. Sometimes they have no job and sometimes they received training for a job before release nevertheless the income won't be the same so a new order must be set in place upon release.	5/27/2022 3:00 PM
3	If HFS initiates the modification for incarcerated then HFS should file to raise and notify CP when prison is over that a filing may be warranted	5/26/2022 9:10 AM
4	This is crazy! Support should not be stopped unless a death occurs and even then there should be a way to collect what is owed. Keep brainstorming because this isn't it in my opinion.	5/17/2022 12:20 PM
5	HFS, esp as govt can best keep track of whereabouts of those newly released from prison	5/4/2022 8:51 PM
6	Parent entitled to support should be able to work with HFS to determine what is fair and retroactive	5/4/2022 7:24 PM
7	Continue paying support	4/26/2022 7:23 AM
8	parents and court	4/20/2022 8:32 AM
9	Depends if payer or payee is incarcerated	4/20/2022 7:04 AM
10	whoever is in charge of this program that has access to all information or address needed.	4/12/2022 4:26 PM
11	Court room decision	4/5/2022 5:59 PM
12	not sure	4/5/2022 12:13 PM

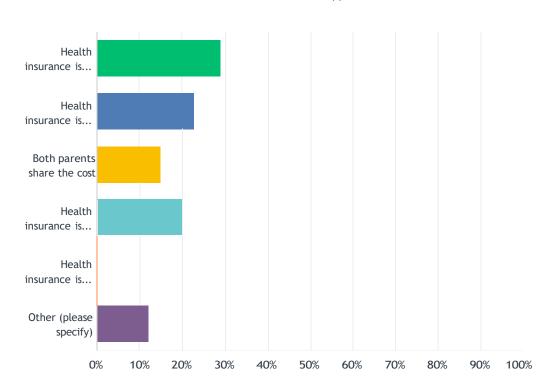

13	HFS aslong the parent paying has a steady income	4/5/2022 10:14 AM
14	Court system	4/5/2022 6:02 AM
15	Make support part of conditions for release, make new order	4/5/2022 12:26 AM
16	If it doesn't happen automatically, then the parent responsible for paying should take it upon themself to continue paying what was expected before incarceration. The children and other parent should not have to suffer financially because the person was incarcerated.	4/4/2022 8:33 PM
17	All parties involved, including HFS	4/4/2022 5:20 PM
18	The criminal	4/4/2022 12:55 PM
19	All parties	4/4/2022 12:34 PM
20	Both parents should take action.	4/4/2022 12:25 PM
21	Parent paying support, as a condition of release	4/4/2022 10:55 AM
22	Contigent upon employment	4/4/2022 10:43 AM
23	Should be a hearing scheduled for parties	4/4/2022 10:10 AM
24	No experience with this	4/4/2022 9:51 AM
25	once a person is released they should make contact with the HFS and upon securing a job, or income producing work then a hearing for modification should be held to determine the correct amount to give for child support	3/29/2022 3:25 PM
26	An incarcerated individual will have a lot of difficulty finding a job and will have to likely provide for their children while they are with that person. Reestablishment of support should be VERY sensitive because the economic considerations will be very different than pre-incarceration.	3/24/2022 3:07 PM
27	Department of Corrections should notify DCSS that the person was released from incarceration.	2/17/2022 9:25 AM
28	HFS, but NOT at the circuit court by the States Atty.	2/13/2022 10:53 AM
29	The parent paying support should be given a certain amount of time to find employment if it was lost due to being incarcerated. Once that time frame has been reached, the parent paying support should have the responsibility to have a new order set. Otherwise, it will default to the previous set amount.	1/31/2022 9:24 AM
30	I want to say automatically, however that is not realistic. Someone has to be responsible to ensure the process it started. A couple of thoughts here It is not the child/PRS fault that the PPS was incarcerated so why do they get punished because the PPS committed crime? The PPS goes to jail so therefore has no further responsibility to support the child during that time? It just doesn't seem fair. I realize they may not have the means to pay, however I am just not 100% on board with automatically establishing a zero dollar order. Inmates also have the opportunity to work so why can't they pay at least some support out of that?	1/28/2022 9:17 AM
31	Ideally the last, but that creates a responsibility issue. Rather, HFS should be responsible for mods on order below a certain financial amount. This ensures special cases may be handled by PPS/PRS, but other cases may be handled faster by HFS to prevent a period of no support or support in excess of income.	1/27/2022 1:25 PM
32	I think their should be some type of report that we get with shows the NCP has been released, then we can refer the case for the modification to the SAO, but allow us to sign the petitions.	1/27/2022 1:04 PM
33	It should reinstate automatically after a specified time unless a modification if requested to evaluate the previous support amount.	1/27/2022 1:03 PM

Q11 Was health insurance addressed in your order?

Q12 Who was responsible for providing insurance? (Choose one)

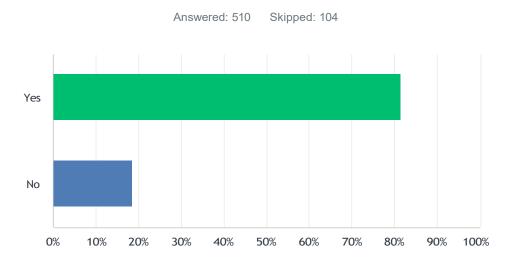

#	OTHER (PLEASE SPECIFY)	DATE
1	don't know on the order. I custodial provided all I could.	6/15/2022 9:11 PM
2	It was ordered that he provide insurance, although he does not comply.	6/1/2022 8:45 PM
3	I don't have an order	5/26/2022 9:10 AM
4	Both parents were to share cost, however non custodial parent has never contributed	5/26/2022 6:43 AM
5	It is presently undecided	5/22/2022 8:57 PM
6	At the time of my divorce, I was working so I continued paying health insurance till this day. Father barely pays child support.	5/18/2022 5:37 PM
7	The non-custodial parent played around with the system so much and so well that I applied for a medical card and thank you Jesus, I was able to receive it.	5/17/2022 12:22 PM
8	Provided by me/receiving and HFS.	5/10/2022 3:56 PM
9	court order for parent paying support, but this is not enforced or carried by parent	5/6/2022 4:20 PM
10	The court order stated both parents but the other parent went to court and stated she was low income to get more money and asked for the state to pay for insurance she applied for that dad already had the children on medical and he ended up paying the state insurance and his employer	5/4/2022 9:28 PM
11	One order is Medicaid, I pay insurance in the other order	5/4/2022 8:51 PM
12	They removed the health insurance from my case	5/4/2022 8:40 PM
13	Parent paying with portion not covered split between both parents	5/4/2022 7:25 PM

14	The father	4/26/2022 7:24 AM
15	Parent who has insurance/ best insurance	4/21/2022 9:57 AM
16	The one paying support is supposed to but he doesn't.	4/21/2022 7:21 AM
17	Father was ordered but never provided it. Some years I had employer benefits but father never contributed to paying for it.	4/20/2022 8:04 PM
18	Insurance provided by parent receiving support; half is reimbursed by the other parent most of the time	4/20/2022 8:16 AM
19	Required for the child support paying parent, but child winds up being daily covered bc my plan is more comprehensive and rules applied make my plan primary	4/20/2022 5:55 AM
20	Hes ordered to pay but they have medicaid he don't pay anything	4/13/2022 5:15 PM
21	Custodial parent provided insurance, not support was ordered	4/13/2022 3:44 PM
22	i don't know if the order specified. i, the custodial parent have been the only one to provide insurance.	4/12/2022 4:27 PM
23	The one with best insurance if employer offers afordablity	4/10/2022 7:11 PM
24	Parent providing support was supposed to care support but doesn't	4/8/2022 8:04 PM
25	Both parents are required to have insurance for the children. Waste of resources.	4/7/2022 8:55 AM
26	Waiting for court date. Illinois has had my paperwork for 3 years now.	4/6/2022 8:32 PM
27	Health insurance provided by custodial parent not receiving support	4/6/2022 4:46 PM
28	Parent received child support paid (me) and mother was to pay half of all out of pocket	4/5/2022 7:42 PM
29	Both parents provided	4/5/2022 1:12 PM
30	The health insurance decision should be whatever the most logical and fair option is, on a case-by-case basis.	4/5/2022 12:14 PM
31	Health insurance was supposed to be provided by my ex-husband but he never worked so I had to work & pay extra every month for my children's health insurance.	4/5/2022 11:52 AM
32	Neither party was required to have health insurance. But i presented my health insurance	4/5/2022 10:17 AM
33	A joke; because biodad sperm donor "can't" afford it, the state steps in. ENFORCEMENT on the NCP should be made!	4/5/2022 10:10 AM
34	If employment covers kids parent who works there. But watch for abuse of medical. Ex payed cash for medical treatment, gave bill to judge showing full amount owed, judge orders payment of half the bill, then she submitted the cash bill to the insurance company for payment of their part. Between the two payments she made hundred of dollars in cash just by going to unessary visits	4/5/2022 12:41 AM
35	Medicare and my insurance towards end.	4/4/2022 10:57 PM
36	He pays i get no support	4/4/2022 8:34 PM
37	Parent paying was to pay coverage then remaining is split however it would start for a few weeks then stop continually making it difficult to ensure children are covered. No actions have been taken against inconsistent and or non existent support for over 17 years.	4/4/2022 7:53 PM
38	It was not addressed.	4/4/2022 7:34 PM
39	parent paying support to provide insurance, both parents split costs not covered 50-50	4/4/2022 7:19 PM
40	Original order parent receiving support supplied and payer paid half via support order. New order did not address parent receiving support covers full cost	4/4/2022 5:15 PM
41	The parent who has the child	4/4/2022 4:03 PM
42	Non custodial is responsible but refuses to provide it!	4/4/2022 1:56 PM
43	Court ordered parent paying support but receiving parent never received insurance card so	4/4/2022 1:07 PM couldn't use it. When calling child support for help they give you the insurance company but tell you to call them for insurance card. When you call insurance company you have to be the primary insurance holder for them to give you any information. Therefore, child has health insurance under the father but the mother can never utilize it if the father don't provide an insurance card nor does, the health insurance company or child support office.

	meanance can a meanance company or company company
44	Parent getting support carried insurance and both parties were to share extra costs	4/4/2022 12:51 PM
45	NCP PAID FOR THE INSURANCE. CUSTODIAL PARENT NEVER USED IT BECAUSE SHE WAS ON STATE SUPPLIED INSURANCE.	4/4/2022 12:28 PM
46	My husband handles our insurance. Medicaid before that.	4/4/2022 11:47 AM
47	other	4/4/2022 11:39 AM
48	I pay by me the parent receiving support and also, he pays for medicaid. But I pay a higher premium than him	4/4/2022 11:24 AM
49	Insurance supposed to be payed by parent paying support but he doesn't	4/4/2022 10:40 AM
50	custodial parent	4/4/2022 10:40 AM
51	Insurance is through Public Aid but I still have to pay the monthly fee and all the copays for the insurance even though the order has the non-custodial parent paying health insurance	4/4/2022 10:28 AM
52	Divorce court determined health insurance by non-custodial parent	4/4/2022 10:12 AM
53	Other parent paying support was unable to provide insurance so it was my responsibility (person receiving support) to provide insurance	4/4/2022 10:05 AM
54	Each parent carried it	3/31/2022 4:57 PM
55	Waiting on order	3/30/2022 11:20 AM
56	Both parents, and it was an exceptional waste of money as Tricare covered all the costs, and the other parents insurance did nothing as a secondary provider.	3/24/2022 3:07 PM

59	the parent receiving child support paying $100/mo for health insurance, then he goes files $15,000 charges against me in court for bogus expenses including medical expenses. He's the one receiving Explanation of Benefits and making decisions, yet never provides EOB to a paying child support parent. For example, receiving child support parent who is paying insurance premiums takes the child to a doctor and pays $600 out of his pocket. Then he adds the $600 to ask of the other parent to pay a half of. He, in the meantime, files a claim with insurance which the other parent has no access to, and gets reimbursed $550. Yet there is no way for the other parent to prove it, while being screwed for accumulated halves of 100% bills (before even applying insurance)	2/9/2022 9:31 PM

Q15 Were these other child(ren) taken into consideration when setting your support obligation?

Q16 In your opinion, was the amount of credit provided for other children for whom you are providing support and used to reduce your income for the purposes of determining your income fair?

#	WHY? (FOR EXAMPLE, THE CREDIT WAS TOO MUCH OR TOO LITTLE)	DATE
1	The laws continue to favor the mother, and in my case, the mother has more financial assets than I, yet I pay all the support costs and barely see my child.	7/10/2022 8:11 PM

Q17 Was the amount of overnight time spent with the child(ren) considered when setting your support obligation (i.e., the time the child slept over at your home)?

Q18 Was the 146 overnights too high or too low?

#	WHY?	DATE
1	Fine	9/7/2022 3:58 AM
2	I am currently seeing my child ~104 nights and I feel this is extremely unfair given I am paying all the costs for support.	7/10/2022 8:13 PM
3	Modified due to ex husbands violence among other issues	7/5/2022 5:44 PM
4	Have them more nights.	6/28/2022 8:49 PM
5	I believe it should be closer to the days equivalent to half of the year.	6/22/2022 9:39 AM
6	It doesn't take into account how many nights a parent actually cares for children. Only what is ordered.	6/20/2022 11:22 AM
7	My ex only has the kids about 35 nights a year. It is FAAAAR too low	6/16/2022 9:26 AM
8	I had sole custody	6/15/2022 9:14 PM
9	NA	6/15/2022 7:58 PM
10	I wanted my children to have equal time with each of us.	6/14/2022 11:30 PM

272	n/a. father chooses not to have them that much	4/4/2022 9:46 AM
273	I think it brings a lot of confusion. In my personal case, we have not been to court since Feb 2017. The days that the father has the child are completely different now than what they were 5 years ago. 5 years ago, the order stated he was to have the child x amount of time. Due to his work schedule changing several times over the years, we have agreed on what time he will have with the child, thankfully. With that being said, we have not had to return to court to amend the court order. Technically, if the father wanted to go back to court to try to reduce his income based on the 146 overnights, he could certainly do that, but he would be using the information from the court order in 2017 that we haven't followed since that time. That would then require us to go back in front of a judge at our expense (for attorneys) to prove that he does not have the child for 146 nights or more.	4/1/2022 10:53 AM

279	When the residential parent has 80, 90, 100% of parenting time because of the other parents actions - moving out of state, traveling etc the increase in financial obligation is significant and the 143 night rule does not address this. It is a financial risk to go to court to ask a judge to make an exception to that guideline. In my case when the non-custodial parent moved out of state and came for visits much less frequently than in Agreement and when they finally gave notice they were not going to take the children for any overnights, he directed me to this guidance on state website to prove I was not entitled to any additional support.	3/11/2022 6:15 AM

I find that a lot of ncp's don't get their kids as agreed and because it is a custody issue, we can't assist the cp's in having the custody order modified. which in my opinion is not fair because a lot of cp's can't afford private counsel or are intimadated by the court system to file it themselves.	1/27/2022 1:14 PM

210	The income shares and reduced support responsibility encourages a race to the bottom. The less someone works/less they make, the less they are responsible for. The non-custodial parent should not have less responsibility due having the kids less than half the time. It's completely unfair. I pay for everything, take them to appointments, take time off work, and he gets to pay less for having them less time than me? Ridiculous. This needs to be revised ASAP, as hard working single parents are unfairly facing a lionshare of the burden both physically and financially. Further, the income shares model is a DIS-incentive for upward mobility, since parents are rewarded with reduced support responsibility by keeping their income low.	4/4/2022 10:49 AM

Forced to choose between still having parenting time with my child and keep trying to get help to stop the abuse being suffered which would also make me instantly suddenly homeless while also stripping me of every material possession and leaving me with not a single asset or dollar, or having the trial and having my parental bond all but severed in the entirety which would leave my child wholly at the mercy of a cruel and abusive parent but which would leave open the possibility of still being made homeless but not immediately and maybe be able to save material possessions such as clothing. 45	Suck it up as they say it. My ex is dead beat self employed/getting paid under table dad, working the system, educated by his attorney that he can afford. While I am disabled cancer survivor on feeding tube, so there is no opportunity for me to earn more, or work, no opportunity to qualify for aid either since my disability benefits is right border line on poverty guidelines so I am glad my child and I can at least qualify for Medicaid but we definitely dont qualify for food stamps or anything else. It is very unfair knowing that my ex pays almost no child support at all, but drives brand new Audi, has built a brand new $300k house, has plenty of cash getting paid under table and is cooking tax books so he does not need to pay more child support bringing my child's living standard to the same standard that he, his new family, his new kids enjoy. While our state child support enforcement acts as if there is nothing they can do to make sure that he pays at least regular child support. He has over $50k child support arrearage without intrests since the state child support removed the intrests, otherwise he would be close to $100k arrearage if intrest was not removed. If state would follow his whereabouts for few months, the state would have a strong case to not just put him in jail for laying to the court/judge about his income but to put him in jail for irs fraud and welfare fraud. 31	I received $80 a month for each of my twin daughters. It was basically an insult to the needs of my daughters. I attempted to hire an attorney to update the child support in court but they charge over $5,000 and I could not afford those legal fees. The state basically leave it up to the parent who receives the child support to figure out where the other parent works, how much he makes and send all the paperwork to the agency to start the process. That is inappropriate especially when the reason for divorce was domestic violence. 46	It is a very complex case due to my disability. I am already dealing with few government agencies (state/federal) where laws are literally contradicting/overlapping each other. What has happened to me and my child I call it disabled people abuse and child abuse by government agency negligence and not too well thought out programs. Social security provides benefits to my child ue to me being disabled mother, however that federal government provided benefits to my child is for my child's benefits/use only and I as parent can get prosecuted if I use her benefits for my needs/wants. Our wonderful State of Illinois publicaid office tells me that all the benefits I get for me and my child is my household income and based on combined income I should be on spend down for Medicaid and plus I have plenty of non covered medical supply/meds that Medicare/Medicaid dont cover anyhow, so I explain to publication that I literally should not touch my child's federal social security benefits since as representative payee it is for child not for me, so my own benefits between housing, food, utilities, transportation, my medical expenses etc can't be enough for the household less for medical non covered expenses. Where I again should not use my child's benefits to cover my bills and my medical stuff. Then my ex, dead beat parents very seldom child support payments throw all that borderline Medicaid qualifications out the window when he sends one month no support, one month $100, one month $350, then few months nothing again, and so on. I have enough stress dealing with my cancer stuff, medical appointments, therapies, spending hours on phone between doctors, insurances, pharmacies, prior authorizations, then being a mom running household, chores, raising a child, school stuff, extra curricular stuff, where dealing with government agencies which have not even made clear laws how state and federal agencies should work together or where federal or state laws over ride each other, and how to treat disabled case combined with Medicaid	4/9/2022 5:31 PM

120	With initial order- cost of day care. I was required to pay it all. He did not have to help. $200 did not even scratch the surface of diapers and daycare a month. As our child grew older a cost of living expense would have been nice but not sure with the way he job jumped he would have been able to do that. Also, I was aware that he had large sums of money in his name, and accounts is both his and his father's name that he would live off of for long stretches of time so that he would not have to work. Since it was not income it could not be considered for support. So he was able to continue to pay low amounts of support which I found to be frustrating. I was fortunate that I have a job that I could take care of my child without the support. She just would not get all of the extras. I got to where I put the money aside to use for Prom, homecoming and college. I was fortunate enough to be able to do that and use the support for the extras. Many parents cannot.	2/4/2022 12:05 PM

My ex ended up quitting her full time job and taking a part-time job that paid less than half while I struggled. I made four times as much and still had a much lower standard of living due to the excessive support.	4/8/2022 8:24 PM

16	The amount order is not fair, nor equitable, because it is based on a system of nights that the child spends with CP/NCP. However, the system that dictates the amount to pay, does not dictate the number of overnights allowed. To be fair and equitable, the same system should oversee that the number of nights (or quantifiable amount of time) is equally divided too. In my case, the CP made that decision and has refused to allow any time for me to get to know my child.	4/5/2022 5:20 PM

34	No easy process to modify child support based on loss or a job. Ordered based on imputed income, which was unreasonable - family court completely disregarded pandemic, and then lockdown. Ethical dilemma here as well: should a parent pay child support (I do) to a Millionare if he completely "erased" the paying child support parent from the child's life? For example, my ex prevented me from seeing my daughter for 4 years, while keeping asking more and more of child support as a means to keep abusing me (a Millionare doesn't need more money from a non-working mother, based on imputed income, to care for 1 child. Very often child support laws are being used by abusers to keep abusing/punishing their former intimate partner	2/9/2022 9:43 PM
33	Support did not consider fixed expenses of the obligor for providing for the child - Duplicate items (both parents provide), such as shelter, clothing, toys, etc. Also, imputing income is subjective and often unrealistic.	2/10/2022 11:20 AM

7	The town hall was a hot mess! Connection was bad, timing was TERRIBLE! - really, 7:00 we are single parents. I personally was calling in from my daughters softball game. thats dinner/homework/sports/bed time. Why is there so much consideration given to the incarcerated individual. Yea, they are in jail fine. Their support order should go into automatic Forbearance. They owe the money when they get out. It should not be eliminated for the period they are incarcerated. The CP still has to support those children but yet they get off the hook. I am disappointed and disgusted at the lack of support or compassion for CP's who are owed support but yet do not collect it. We still have to figure it out and keep things going for the kids while they get off with little punishment. How about, if any monies is more than a 3 years in arrears that amount can be deduced from ones taxable income. Its not going to solve all the problems in the world, but given that in my situation my ex is nearing $40k in arrears having a deduction like that would be a great help. There is no help for us. The courts are a joke! I have tried to go Pro Se and its like you get punished for not understanding what the Judge is saying. Why can't there be a division that handles these cases where you can present the facts and stand up for on behalf of your kids without being admonished by the judge. I have lots of strong feelings about this, as you can tell. I feel that the entire system is broken and we single moms are left to try and put together some kind of life for our kids. I am going into debt on a daily basis - especially now with inflation and gas prices - but yet don't qualify for any kind of public aid because of my salary. Just because I make a good living doesn't mean I don't struggle and make sacrifices - the kids make sacrifices too. I wish DCSS could be more helpful.	6/16/2022 9:38 AM

20	I think you may need to have panelists or moderators who are obligors to participate and also there should be at least an appearance of unbias. Many times I heard people who are paying support speak and use their personal stories as examples of what they were trying to convey and not actually seeking help for personal cases and they were told repeatedly they are not allowed to give legal advice or relate to personal cases, however when many people who received support complained about not receiving their support, panelist seemed to go out of their way to not only give resources but sometimes legal advice and strategies. That's not fair or just, especially if you're truly trying to improve the guidelines moving forward.	5/27/2022 3:19 PM
21	The chat option was not enabled for me during the Town Hall. Someone needed to message or text the moderator that their connection was spotty because her sound was so distorted I couldn't understand her. Margaret Bennet was the best presenter of the bunch. The notice of the Town Hall was not publicized very well to the community. HFS should be sending notices by email to Bar Associations and attorneys to send to their clients as well as other public methods and ads (using Facebook ads., etc). I am active in child support community and I didn't hear about the Town Halls until several had already been held. The survey needs to be reformatted. It is missing legitimate options for takers to consider and then requires a mandatory response that makes assumptions that public takers of the survey WILL have a child support ordernot true (at least in my case). #8 of the survey for example only had 3 options and was missing an option that would allow for "For an incarcerated individual - leave any previous support order in place until the incarcerated individual files a Modification (presumably to lower)". I don't believe bad faith actors (those who commit severe crimes against individuals and the public, i.e. felonies) should receive automatic lowering of their support obligation just because they committed a felony. This isn't in the best interest of children as they need support regardless of the bad faith behavior of the parent. The "drive" to automatically lower to $0 child support has never been in the children's best interest only the economic interest of the system and/or HFS, possibly the NCP who is incarcerated - not children. They should never be assumed to require or need $0 support orders. There should be at the very least a return to statutory minimums. The idea that children are entitled to $0 support orders is detached from reality and the best interest standard for children. Town Halls could address some of the topics on HFS policy that HFS doesn't want to talk about but the public does: i.e. 1. more	5/26/2022 9:25 AM

37	This is the first I am hearing of this meeting and I am happy to be a part of it. There are parents that are paying out support and have a seperate order for a different child to receive support. I am one of these. The court process is daunting and scary. I honestly would appreciate if these things were more automatic payment change wise and or we could file motions for change via online or mail instead of taking off work and going to court.	5/10/2022 3:13 PM

41	Everyone's situation is different. I didn't get enough of my questions answered. Perhaps in the near future give different scenarios on non married parents who are battling with child support. Power points are also a great way to share with people. We spend more time voicing our opinions rather than getting the knowledge and answers needed when dealing within a child support case. Voices matter but that is why there are surveys. I appreciate that the Town Hall exists to get an understanding the rules and regulations for a child support case. However, I attended to recieve some sort of legal guidance due to the fact I'm unable to afford a lawyer.	5/4/2022 10:24 PM

T e v a r a t	This will be my first town hall meeting, so I'm not familiar with what happens, but in my case The non-custodial parent would say he was unemployed but had his own business and no one ever went after him and he was able to live comfortably while I did have a great paying job, when he did pay support the biggest amount I received was when he was on unemployment and really nothing after until he just received another job now that my children are grown I receive $65 and I never was on public assistance, so think help with collecting just be addressed somewhere help is needed Custodial parents feel like they can't get good help unless they spend the money that they do have taking care of the kids on a lawyer that they really can't afford. Where do we go.	4/20/2022 2:49 PM

ti r ii a a t t s	Hard to know how this will have an impact. To pursue these issues, such as money due we are old to take that parent to court. That costs additional monies, time away from work and in most cases provide a payment plan with no accountability. Support should include health insurance, school registration, account for health visits. There needs to a way to hold a parent accountability for basic financial responsibility. The issued child support barely covers housing and utilities. With inflation, there is no consideration for that with support. No accountability for hings like clothes, a coat, shoes, supplies for school, etc. Perhaps for town halls, offering small group discussions where dialog can occur for feedback from both sides parents taking on responsibility and parents not taking on responsibility. There may be alot to be learned and more proactive planning for both sides and resources for both to better support the children.	4/20/2022 8:44 AM

103	i have not been to a town hall before. I plan to be at the nest town hall if it is in a platform that i can access with a chromebook.	4/12/2022 4:37 PM
104	All children should continue help during college if parents are not married. The same-sex laws should be an accountable consideration. A pay raise should have some kind of account every years not 3 years.	4/10/2022 7:20 PM
105	Allow parents to use specific case details (without names) in town hall meetings, otherwise how can I participate in town hall meeting to explain that child support enforcement has failed my child by not sending a dead beat dad in front of a judge in 15 years just because he is paying every 90 days a little in support which over rides your rules to take him to court, never suspended his professional CDL driver license, or that when he was stranded in foreign country (his USA passport expiring within 6 months of travel) not even then child support managed to make him pay little child support arrearage as leverage to bring him back to USA but he came back on limited validity USA passport which he got because he has money for attorneys to help him out with all his troubles except he got no money for child support hence his $100k child support arrearage is growing bigger every month, but he did not pay a dime extra in child support arrearage in order to obtain that limited validity USApassport and came back to USA without any issues! I asked child support enforcement to list him on the dead beat parent website and they have not even managed yet to do that, they never did put liens on his	4/9/2022 6:03 PM accounts, never put liens on his cars or never investigated his ability to build brand new home while claiming himself and his family here in USA as poor on food stamps/Medicaid while he literally built $300k house, etc. So yes, I will join the town halls meetings and I hope I will be able to speak up and out how child support enforcement is pointless in self employed, getting paid under table, dead beat parent cases that live on welfare in luxury, while the parents that are raising kids are molested, ignored, and neglected by state/federal agencies. Again, shame on all of you! There are apparently 20 remedies for child support non paying parents but in case of my ex non seem to work or none are used by the child support enforcement since he is still free man, was never held in contempt, never in jail, never made to find a real payroll company working job to have child support withhold from his paycheck, never paid full child support any given month in last 15 years, was able to travel internationally, was able to import wife, was able to import step child, was able to father 2 more kids, again drives an Audi, his step son drives Mercedes, his wife is stay at home mom to 2 more kids since they can afford it, they again built $300k home, they are all on welfare, his taxes never got intercepted (except stimulus money in 2020, I am surprised that even that worked out somehow), and on and on. For him everything works with blessings of child support enforcement, driver license facility, irs, passport agency, public aid, etc but for my child, you are even trying to make me use her social security benefits on my medical expenses so she can't even enjoy that little benefits she gets. Shame on all of you, from politicians that make those laws, to case workers that don't give a damn, to state i vestigation units, to attorney general, to who ever is reading this and won't even bother making my concerns any big deal in this injustice system that needs to be addressed big time!

106	DO NOT WASTE RESOURCES ON MEETING TO TALK ABOUT WHAT TO DO. Do it. DO SOMETHING WASTES SO MUCH TIME, ENERGY, FUNDS.	4/8/2022 9:13 PM
107	Consider asking parents that are taking care of kids what is needed as kids get older	4/8/2022 8:08 PM
108	Annual cost of living adjustments/consideration for raises and overtime should be calculated	4/7/2022 11:14 AM
109	I have not attended one so I do not know.	4/7/2022 6:35 AM
110	I left the meeting early because the guests were asking too many case specific/personal questions. I attended the meeting to understand the "ins & outs" of the child support system in Illinois. However, people were asking questions and getting emotional about their Orders. An improvement can be to only answer questions that were emailed. Save questions for the end.	4/7/2022 6:13 AM
111	Show clear guidelines or procedures in your presentation. Have an attorney who can answer questions. Have a plan of presentation and stick to it. Do not let people tell you what to do. You are the experts.	4/7/2022 6:00 AM
112	Not have people ask questions unless they are screened beforehand sounded like a bunch of African Americans upset and Caucasians telling them to get a lawyer and my question got skipped	4/6/2022 10:01 PM
113	I'm doing the survey before the town hall. My case has been in Illinois for 3 years. I have been lied to multiple times. I've asked for the form for the Administrative Accountability Analysis Unit 3 times now and I still do not have this form to file a explanation of inaction on my case. I'm assuming the town hall will only address child support for normal children because guidelines are only based on normal children that can understand what's happening. I have a severely non verbal autistic child that doesn't even know what a mother or father even is. He has no idea why he has to go sleep at some man's house once a week. This is devastating to my child every week. Separate Guidelines need to be in places for these children. You can't count on a Judge with their zero medical education to do the right thing.	4/6/2022 9:02 PM
114	Maybe considering having an attorney present because it seems as though many had more legal/personal questions than suggestions.	4/6/2022 8:51 PM
115	Just give the guidelines and not let people talk. Wasted alot of time cause they didn't understand this wasn't a legal consult	4/6/2022 8:50 PM
116	I like this because it gives me more insight and hopefully resources available to be able to collect on the past arrears	4/6/2022 8:49 PM
117	Have more educational topics regarding to the child	4/6/2022 8:41 PM
118	Have actual attorneys at the meeting for legal advice	4/6/2022 8:40 PM
119	Haven't attended yet. Will attend next Wednesday's session.	4/6/2022 8:05 PM

120	Should have a limited admit of participants. Allow a certain amount of people register for certain dates	4/6/2022 7:44 PM
121	Child support should still be taken when a parent owes even if the child turns 18 or in college if there a balance still owed.	4/6/2022 7:05 PM
122	nothing	4/6/2022 7:00 PM
123	I haven't attended Town Hall - just filled form because I never felt support from HFS.DCSS. Non custodial parent left state, support not enforced during children's youth. Interest removed from support. There are no consequences for non-payment. Now receiving reduced payments (arrears) which will never be paid in my lifetime, based on payment amount.	4/6/2022 4:58 PM
124	Speak with judges how to handle support cases, not put it on the parent already providing support to get support. Consequences for non-paying parent.	4/6/2022 2:01 PM
125	Actually work by seeing that laws are changed. No reason to TALK about this just pay off a lobbyist to get these laws changed.	4/6/2022 11:04 AM
126	I have not attended one yet, so I am intrigued.	4/6/2022 9:55 AM
127	Need to address noncustodial parents who repeatedly avoid support orders by frequent job changes.	4/6/2022 9:21 AM
128	Motion the Judge to Incarcerate the NCP setting bond and the Custodial receives it. Also jail time should be enforce with arrearages been over 20,000 motion the judge to enforce them to pay, and get a job. The State and Judges should take more action on these cases my case is behind 17 years and it's ridiculous NCP is in arrears of 30,000 plus dollars and he's free!	4/6/2022 2:04 AM
129	Parents that aren't paying garnishment should be in affect	4/6/2022 12:54 AM
130	I have never been but I would like to see what the Town Halls are like to answer appropriately.	4/5/2022 10:37 PM
131	Plan to attend my first town hall in 2 weeks.	4/5/2022 10:31 PM
132	Act on instead of just saying "ok" "yeah, we agree"	4/5/2022 7:49 PM
133	They would not be necessary if the employees WORKED for their pay and are all competent.	4/5/2022 7:38 PM
134	Listen to people for once. My support order was never "turned back on" after the NCP was out of prison. I filed 3 modification requests in 2021. Still, nothing. Cheap excuses for a dept not doing their job	4/5/2022 7:19 PM
135	Be able to ask questions about my case	4/5/2022 7:14 PM
136	Comply with the Court Order , respect the law , stop lying , be competent , stop misinform and misguide ,	4/5/2022 6:05 PM
137	Address the issues of parenting time, since the amount of support is based on parenting time. If the system makes a decision to base support on the number of nights that the child stays with each parent, the system should also be influencing/deciding the number of nights each parent has the child. Also, Section 513 needs a thorough review/overhaul by the Supreme Court of Illinois. Through the lens of modern times, this section of the Illinois Marriage and Dissolution of Marriage Act is antiquated, in the opinion of many Illinoisians. It is unfair to say that children of unmarried parents are so disadvantaged that the parents are required to pay for college. Many children from the products of intact marriages face similar disadvantages, and the state does not intervene to require these parents to pay for college.	4/5/2022 5:26 PM
138	Addressing changes that come with the new year as far as interest stopping sending out notices in regards to changing in withholding as well as new guidelines for stimulus income	4/5/2022 5:19 PM
139	Ask real questions and many more. You haven't addressed any of the "real life" issues with child support and maintenance in Illinois. This is another example of the state wasting money. I'm sure your CEO is someone's cousin in Illinois state politics	4/5/2022 3:03 PM
140	idk	4/5/2022 1:17 PM
141	I'm not sure if this is the correct place to provide this answer, but the "done" button at the bottom of the page prompts me to. I think child support is built on an approach that is not conducive to coparenting, especially in cases like mine where one parent is hostile toward the	4/5/2022 12:29 PM other. I pay support to a parent who has no interest in coparenting, or supporting my relationship with our children. She attempted to leave the state, and has made various legal moves to limit my parenting time to the fullest extent possible. Child support gives her financial incentive to do so. The less parenting time I have, the more money and parenting time she has. Also, she has no incentive to work. She lives with her fiancé who provides for her, and she works the most minimal of part time jobs. Child support does not consider the fiancé's income. So my ex gets to enjoy child support, without any incentive to work.

142	fight for fathers rights. giving the mother sole custody when a child born out of wedlock is not fair nor ethical and leaves good fathers behind and struggling just to be in the childern/childs life.	4/5/2022 12:02 PM
143	Put fathers, that are responsible for child support, into a mandatory work program, instead of letting them get away without working, and not paying child support, then they die and child support is never paid!	4/5/2022 11:57 AM
144	Make sure that everyone has a chance to speak	4/5/2022 10:26 AM
145	Go after these dead beat dads!! Enforce like the hotline claims. It is definitely NOT the #1 concern.	4/5/2022 10:13 AM
146	Just because the non custodial parent was(in) in the military, they told him thank you for your service and proceeded to give me 182. Every 2weeks. (Not enough to live on or get things the child needs.	4/5/2022 9:51 AM
147	I am not sure. Thank you for the opportunity to provide feedback.	4/5/2022 9:24 AM
148	Nothing	4/5/2022 9:07 AM
149	Listen Educate and implement policies to make sure child support amounts are fair and a livable wage for the parent receiving support	4/5/2022 12:09 AM
150	Dad's needs easier ways to know new laws,and get herd when things are wrong	4/4/2022 11:09 PM
151	Place more consideration on the custodial parents needs to adequately support the child and amend the statute.	4/4/2022 10:21 PM
152	update system to track down unpaid support or past due support. Tie in child care, school etc into support not divorce decree as most can't afford to go back to court to get it paid and thus the kids lose out	4/4/2022 9:35 PM
153	Make sure people are being aware of it.	4/4/2022 9:32 PM
154	Zoom link	4/4/2022 8:40 PM
155	Unsure	4/4/2022 8:38 PM
156	The laws are ridiculous for shared support. Needs to be addressed	4/4/2022 8:36 PM
157	follow thru after town halls. nonbiase case workers	4/4/2022 7:59 PM
158	I have never attended	4/4/2022 7:35 PM
159	Let public submit more info and case specific info so you can understand specific depths of wrongful parental share laws and decisions	4/4/2022 7:27 PM
160	Address custodial parents who's income exceeds guidelines for public assistance.	4/4/2022 7:22 PM
161	Speak about the internal issues with overseeing what is being taken out of people's income. I've taken several steps to show several mathematical errors done by child support and have won in court. To date they are still removing $ that should not be.	4/4/2022 7:20 PM
162	Help the parent who has the children more& receiving support.	4/4/2022 6:45 PM
163	Make sure all in attendees get at least 5-7 mins to bring up their input.	4/4/2022 6:38 PM
164	Provide options	4/4/2022 6:24 PM
165	Maybe offer counseling/parenting classs	4/4/2022 6:17 PM
166	Consider the feedback is making policy changes	4/4/2022 5:54 PM

167	ADA looks at us as just another case. Doesn't take the other parents past behaviors of dodging full time jobs to provide. Why isn't this enforced? Why are they not required to work full time job & I can work 2 jobs to provide for my child & then I "make" too much money.	4/4/2022 5:26 PM
168	It's not the town hall who didn't listen, it's our Governor	4/4/2022 4:59 PM
169	Hear fathers side and follow through	4/4/2022 4:45 PM
170	The cost of living per city/town/village should be considered, always. Also, disabled children have more expenses and that should also always be addressed. Issues involving time spent with parent that have had previous and/or ongoing mental difficulties, criminal offenses, and restraining orders, should be looked at more seriously. Children are not being properly protected by forcing them to spend excessive amounts of time with a parent that had such issues. Being around the other parent because they are biologically connected to a child does not make necessary make it a good relationship. More thought should be put towards children's psychological health as well as physical health in these scenarios; not what organization and government leaders believe will amount from a sometimes unrealistic fantasy model of how parent to child relationship building occurs.	4/4/2022 4:42 PM
171	Act like child support is important like other State's. Illinois enforcement of child support sucks & the obligated parent gets away scott free with no recourse or consequences for failure to pay.	4/4/2022 4:25 PM
172	Get some honest judges that are not partial to lawyer litigants that are pro se, in the circus cortisones division. 13D1926. look at the litigation abuse that is allowed to occur in this Case in the 1ST division in COOK Co. II	4/4/2022 4:22 PM
173	Make the process to allocate support amount and the process to remove children over 18 more transparent for the average citizen. Again, I needed to hire a lawyer to have my 20 year old son taken off my child support amount.	4/4/2022 4:13 PM
174	Child support is a scam the State actually takes out a loan on you and the party set to recieve the funds do not get but 2/3 of the money taken for child support. These are facts	4/4/2022 4:11 PM
175	Stop giving any rights to abusive males	4/4/2022 3:41 PM
176	I was informed attorneys is for the children not for the parent. They don't listen if my need we're met.	4/4/2022 3:40 PM
177	I'm not sure about that.	4/4/2022 3:25 PM
178	The state of illinois leans towards the mother in most support cases. As a father, we are often left unheard and feeling hopeless when it comes to child support and visitation with our kids. Its a shame that more isn't done to make sure the fathers are heard just as much as the mothers.	4/4/2022 2:54 PM
179	Unsure because this will be my first one	4/4/2022 2:33 PM
180	blah blah	4/4/2022 2:21 PM
181	Address how you are actively seeking dead beat parents to pay child support. My case has lingered for 25 years. I have received some payments the non-custodial parents owes over 100,000 in back payment.	4/4/2022 2:12 PM
182	We need to address the parents who refuse to pay support, provide insurance are thousands behind in support, who own $300,000 homes, $100,000 cars. While their child has needs!!!! The state of Illinois needs to do more as far as execution/retrieving funds of child support orders! These parents need to be held responsible	4/4/2022 2:01 PM
183	Non-custodial parents are important in raising children.	4/4/2022 1:59 PM
184	Nothing. It's the courts issue about changing the child support laws. It needs to consider larger families. They have different needs. I had 6 minor children and the amount I got/get was/is laughable.	4/4/2022 1:32 PM
185	It would be nice to join in on them as a video call if possible	4/4/2022 1:20 PM
186	listen	4/4/2022 1:14 PM
187	This can be addressed when child support orders are granted	4/4/2022 1:12 PM

188	Na	4/4/2022 1:01 PM
189	It would be helpful to have a contact person to address specific case related questions.	4/4/2022 12:58 PM
190	These should also address equal treatment of parents mother or father. Punishment for not following up with support should be equal	4/4/2022 12:56 PM
191	Make changes to show we are being heard	4/4/2022 12:45 PM
192	Consider routine checks of custodial parents at home	4/4/2022 12:37 PM
193	Be reasonable take into consideration the other bills the payee has.	4/4/2022 12:37 PM
194	Justification/ TRUSPEAKING be told and honesty and review cases	4/4/2022 12:13 PM
195	I haven't joined one, so I cannot answer this.	4/4/2022 11:55 AM
196	Address the issue of noncustodial parents being able to manipulate the system for modification. Non custodial parent falsifying work history or new employment after a judgment has been entered. The manipulate the system by using the rule of not being able to change judgment review until 2/3 years.	4/4/2022 11:55 AM
197	N/A	4/4/2022 11:52 AM
198	ask for question from participants prior if you don't want town halls to be bombarded with questions	4/4/2022 11:51 AM
199	I don't know, I haven't attended one yet.	4/4/2022 11:50 AM
200	Discuss more serious punishment for purposely delinquent parents. Those who don't care about having a driver's license or their credit, and secretly work under the table. There needs to be more enforcement of accountability and consequences	4/4/2022 11:48 AM
201	Especially in the case of incarcerated individuals, the Illinois Legislature should consider new policy regarding support. There is no solution beyond working two jobs, which I did, or welfare.	4/4/2022 11:46 AM
202	Address the process-especially with parents that are not cooperative co-parents. It was/is very confusing to know where to turn to for assistance. It makes it very easy for the parent that is supposed to be paying support to not pay support without repercussions.	4/4/2022 11:36 AM
203	Take everything in to consideration regarding the custodial parent CUSTODIAL PARENT HAS MUCH MORE EXPENSES AND RESPONSIBILITIES THAN WHAT STATE THINKS	4/4/2022 11:36 AM
204	Use actual cases as examples of what has worked and what has not. My case is 20yrs old, my ex still owes a huge arrearage and our youngest child is 21. Mine is a case of what DID NOT WORK.	4/4/2022 11:32 AM
205	More surveys. Communicate it better.	4/4/2022 11:30 AM
206	Stop rewarding deadbeat noncustodial parent who only take their kids a couple days a month and have fun with them and refused to work and support their children	4/4/2022 11:30 AM
207	Find a way to address hidden income When it can be easily proven.	4/4/2022 11:30 AM
208	Listen to concerns and issues of the parent that is actually taking care and raising the child and think about realistic expenses of what goes into raising a child outside of just rent & groceries. And how much that custodial parent has to maneuver and sometimes miss work(money) to handle something in regards to the childetc	4/4/2022 11:27 AM
209	Hold the parent that supposed to pay child support accountable. More actions needs to be taken & sooner. Especially when the parent is none or shown a pattern of quitting every time child support catches them. And better educate customer service the 800 # to be patient with the callers. And stop telling the customers we can't make them pay. It's insensitive and rude	4/4/2022 11:26 AM
210	Actually listen to the parents who want nothing more than to be a part of their kids lives ,NOT let the state fill their pockets at the childrens expense,end titleIVD,and it should not be up to the state to determine a price it costs to raise each child,and child support should be just that(CHILD SUPPORT) not rent payments,car payments,etc etc etc and50/50 means 50/50 no support	4/4/2022 11:26 AM
211	Address what can be done when the parent paying support does everything he can to avoid paying and avoids all remedies available to the disbursement unit. I'm currently owed over	4/4/2022 11:26 AM

	$12,000 with no hope of ever receiving it.
212	The court system and child support doesn't care. There is no real consequence when the other parent chooses not to work and provide support. It's such a process to get back to court. this should be done automatically by child support and the court system. Children are living in poverty. Also, child support should be considered when the student attends a university/college at least the first year or 19th birthday. 9 out of 10 times the full time parent is assisting throughout their college days.	4/4/2022 11:22 AM
213	First time I have been ask to participate in a town hall -	4/4/2022 11:20 AM
214	Allow questions about specific cases and phone numbers where individuals can receive live help.	4/4/2022 11:17 AM
215	Do something about parents that live in another state & have a child support order that they get notices for "whenever Illinois decides to send them out" & MAKE them pay or be accountable. I have an order that a payment has NOT been made since 2019 (the child is an adult now) but for 16 or 18 years child support was hit or miss if I received any. Also income tax getting taken for child support, haven't gotten any of that since around 2009 so if you take their taxes, money out of checks make sure it goes to ALL parents NOT just 1 parent "the oldest child"	4/4/2022 11:09 AM
216	Attend	4/4/2022 11:05 AM
217	Give rights to all parents so their circumstances are understood	4/4/2022 11:05 AM
218	You should have different town hall focus groups. One for shared custody, one for sole custody, one for incarcerated parent situations, one for deadbeats parent situations, one for minorities, one for those that don't speak English, situations where one parent lives in a non-border state, border state situations what if nobody lives in Illinois at all anymore. Gear the town halls to certain groups in order to get feedback more accurately conveyed to certain types of situations. The idea is to break it down into a similar group to better focus answers and then update the FAQ's if there are recurring topics rather than being overreaching and no commonality besides the fact that child support is ordered.	4/4/2022 11:03 AM
219	Provide opportunity to share information not questioned in the survey	4/4/2022 11:02 AM
220	Address the non existence enforcement of back pay allowance. The non custodial parent ignored child support documents for 11 years and there was nothing I could do about it.	4/4/2022 11:00 AM
221	Child support is antiquated and needs completely revamped. Please show how these town halls have invoked positive change	4/4/2022 10:57 AM
222	judges need to be impartial and hear the facts. Uprooting children from a safe and healthy environment for no good reason is unjust. CS needs to be enforced and not termed because its not fair. maybe you shouldn't have had kids or stayed away from their stable life, if you didn't want them. There was no reason after 8 years of being estranged to walk back in and upheave a childs happy stable life	4/4/2022 10:55 AM
223	I haven't been to a town hall yet (I just found out about them), but advising new initiatives that will address non-custodial parents responsibilities and under-employed non-custodial parental responsibilities (for the purposes of keeping child support low) need to be addressed, as well as the completely unfair "146" night rule. A town hall addressing how this will be changed and retroactively enacted would be incredible.	4/4/2022 10:55 AM
224	Not all non-custodial parents are deadbeats. Quit treating us like it. Quit making the system hard for non-custodial parents. Life is already hard enough not being able to be with our children. Train all levels of your staff to be kind a courteous to everyone regardless of situation.	4/4/2022 10:54 AM
225	Address how you are handling parents not paying support	4/4/2022 10:53 AM
226	I think you guys are doing a great job and I appreciate all of the help you are giving me. Thank you!	4/4/2022 10:53 AM
227	Listen to the mothers that have to work, work and work to provide for these children in the household and some fathers. The system is made for us to decline and receive any help from the system, or the noncustodial parent pay support.	4/4/2022 10:52 AM
228	I wrote a 5 page letter stating why my support amount was wrong and proved it with evidence	4/4/2022 10:48 AM

	(copies of cashed checks) and ISDU just brushed me off and never changed the total amount "I owed." The whole system needs an overhaul. Dad's are now stay at home Dad's, mom's work fulltime, the child support system was based off of 1980's that is 40 years ago. Go to a 50/50 system with no support unless one parent can't do 50/50. Get with the times please.
229	Establish forums for fathers who are majority of payors	4/4/2022 10:47 AM
230	My child's father works two jobs within the state of illinois, I've received nothing other than the bond he paid for missing court. While my other case being managed by Iowa I get income tax returns, they call often to check in, they email with updates or request information. My child's father received a bogus fraudulent PPP Ioan yet he's out here living his life with a child who benefits in no way from him.	4/4/2022 10:46 AM
231	Unsure	4/4/2022 10:45 AM

255	We fought in 2008 to push for a shared income model. It was intended to be variable for every case so that non-custodial parents would be able to care for their kids. An economist was hired at great expense to develop the cost tables for combined incomes. The committee ignored those recommendations, added a 1.5x multiplier to most orders, and set a high bar (146 overnights) before any consideration for deviation is considered. I have watched many divorced, non-primary parents, lose significant time and ultimately alienation from their children. Divorce should never be seen as an enrichment activity and it very much is. Kids are not property. Families are significantly harmed by these laws.	3/24/2022 3:20 PM

how many overnights (custody) an NCP has, then why are we assisting these CP's when the Ncp doesn't get their kids like they agreed to in the order? Why are some orders comprehensive and others are ordered the bare minimum? Why are certain communities orders say medical is reserved, but others not? Why isn't a dollar amount set for out of pocket expenses for medical instead of 50% each parent when we can't enforce percentages? Isn't there a way to get the average cost of out of pocket expenses for medical and divide that number by two so it doesn't become an issue in the future? Or leaving the CP to recoup those expenses on his/her own? And what about automatic cost of living increases. Some of our orders are never modified, so whatever the ncp was making in 2010 is the same amount the ncp is paying in 2022. Yet, we all know our buying power has decreased since 2010. If our agency is really looking to be equitable we need to address these. Also, what about the age of emancipation, I don't know too many 19 or 20 year olds that are self sufficient. Most of those emancipated adults by child support standards are still living with the cp. Those same emancipated adults are not considered emancipated per FAFSA, so most times it is the CP that has the burden of that costs, because how can we expect the emancipated adult to come up with thousands of dollars to pay for their education while also trying to attend school fulltime. Again, is this equitable? So, certain communities have to make the hard decision of go get a minimal paying job or endure the debt that comes along with higher education

WHY ARE WE ADDRESSING THIS?

Addressing the "Cliff Effect"

People are Counting Overnights

Perception of "Unfairness"

GOALS OF THE QUADRENNIAL REVIEW

- To achieve balance in our guidelines where parents are contributing to the care of their children
- ➤ To establish guidelines in a way that results in a fair and equitable award based on discernable facts so that debt is prevented from accruing and the negative impact to individuals, and the family, is minimized.

OVERALL OBJECTIVE

Draftling a child support statute that accurately reflects the cost of raising a shared-care family, based upon real economic data (i.e., using the appropriate multiplier) and accurately reflects the point at which the replicated expense become more than nominal (i.e., the number of overnights.

TYPES OF SHARED PHYSICAL CARE CHILD SUPPORT FORMULAS

- Simple percentage or sliding scale: & (AZ, DE, IA, MO, NJ &
- Per diem adjustment: HI, MT, PA & TN
- Advanced math formula: CA, MI, MN & OR
- Cross-credit with no multiplier: ND
- Cross-credit with 1.5 multiplier: 20 States

(MN, OR, CA, MI) ADVANCED MATH FORMULAS

Oregon:

Credit percentage=1/ (1+e^(-7.14*(overnights/365)-0.5)))-2.74%+(2*2.74*(overnights/36

- ► Minnesota: (A's Overnight)³ x (B's Basic Support) (B's Overnights)³ X (A's Basic Support)

SHARED PHYSICAL CARE CHILD SUPPORT EXPENSES

- Three Types of Child-Rearing Expenditures
- Variable (e.g., food)
- Fixed, Duplicated (e.g., housing)
- Fixed, Unduplicated (e.g., clothing)

PREMISE OF CROSS-CREDIT FORMULAS

- Cross-Credit Formula is used in 23 states, including Illinois.
- Increase the basic obligation by 150% to account for increase costs to raise a child in two households rather than one household
- The thresholds to begin using the formula differ by state from 90 to 146 overnights per year.
- Determine each parent's share of the basic child support obligation after multiplying the BCSO by 1.5.
- Multiply using the cross-credit formula.
- Subtract the lesser support from the greater.

MULTIPLIER? WHAT IS WRONG WITH THE CURRENT

- Too low
- Not supported by IL economic data

OUR PROPOSAL

- Reduce the shared care formula threshold to 92 overnights/year (25% of annual overnights)
- Increase the shared care formula multiplier to 1.66

92 overnights). current 1.5 multiplier (Starting at 146 overnights) and the proposed 1.6 and 1.7 multipliers (Starting at For comparison, this is the graph for the same family in Illinois, with including lines for each the

WHY WAS IT 1.5?

- Continuity of expenditures model:
- most income shares tables, (the basic child support obligation owed by both parents for a range of combined parental incomes and among intact families based on economic measurements of child-rearing expenditures number of children for whom support is being determined) are
- How much is spent on the children when the parents and the children live together.
- There is no timesharing arrangement in the underlying economic data because the parents live together. (Venohr article)
- Parenting time adjustment: premised on the assumption that, as childrearing costs of the obligor parent and reduces the the obligor-parent's parenting time increases, this increases the expenses of the other parent

$99.1 JHM

- increase the basic obligation owed by both parents by 50% to and some transportation expenses) both parents have substantial access (i.e., the cost of housing account for some child-rearing expenses being duplicated when
- Variable Expenses and Fixed Duplicated, and Nonduplicated Expenses – hard to define
- dearth of research confirming whether a particular expense is variable, duplicated fixed, or nonduplicated fixed
- Review of the tables of economic data (intact families) reveal in included in the economic data MORE than 50%, and are approximately 66% of the expenses percentages the Fixed Duplicated and Variable expenses total

SAMPLE FAMILIES

OTHER OBJECTIVES: ADDRESSING TO FAILURE TO EXERCISE PARENTING TIME

- 1. To revise the statute to address the financial injustice created when the obligor parent fails to exercise the number of overnights upon which child support is based.
- 2. To revise the statute to require the Court to consider failure to exercise parenting time overnights and provide a financial remedy to the obligee parent in the form of a "reimbursement" for children's expenses or costs.
- 3. To allow discretion to the Court when ordering a financial remedy to consider any legitimate reasons the obligor parent failed to exercise parenting overnights.
